Freshman Orientation

Orientation at Notre Dame has truly become big business. Long before the upperclassmen begin to invade the campus, the Blue Circle has the neophyte acquainted with the happenings around campus, from the well known story of Knute Rockne to the gals across the Dixie. In spite of the persistent advice offered by the men who give up that last week at home in order to run the recent high school graduates through the orientation mill, some frosh inevitably become even more confused than they were at the start. However, after almost a week of plodding through all the red tape Notre Dame has to offer, the new freshmen can turn their eager minds to the lighter things of University life. To begin with, they are introduced to the traditional Notre Dame-Saint Mary's mixer. This social event is marked by awkward, cliched questions and answers, but at least it is a step in the right direction. The culmination of orientation week comes with the picnic at Pottawatomie Park. With the things of home forgotten by now, the atmosphere is much more conducive to friendly relationships.

Mr. Robert F. O'Brien, Band Director.

Marching Band

The Notre Dame Marching Band appeared this year in a variety of colorful performances. The "Band of the Fighting Irish" played at five home football games as well as the Notre Dame-Pitt game at Pittsburgh. The marching unit also appeared before the Chicago Cardinal-Philadelphia Eagle game in Chicago on November 4, the Old Timers' game, and in the St. Patrick's Day parade at Bay City, Michigan.

NCAA statistics indicated that the band was viewed by more than 60,000,000 people over television, and the 95 band members appeared before more than 500,000 people in person.

The band, led by drum major Richard Kopituk, is one of the few college units that doesn't use sheet music when it plays. This necessitates the memorization of 12-13 songs for each half-time performance, though this number is reduced when a visiting band also performs. Mr. Robert F. O'Brien, band director, estimates that some 1500 man hours are put in each week in drawing up a show.

Visitors

Professor Jacques Maritain, one of the leading philosophers of our time, conducted a series of lectures at Notre Dame early in the school year on "The Dialectics of Hegel."

Professor Maritain has lectured annually at the University during recent years. He was at one time French ambassador to the Vatican and has also lectured at Princeton University.

On Oct. 6 the University received a $25,000 check from Mrs. John A. Morrissey to set up a loan fund for the emergency needs of undergraduate and law students during the academic year.

The John A. Morrissey Memorial Fund, which covers a 50 year period, immediately replaced the University sponsored loan fund. The late John Morrissey was the founder and first president of the Chicago Rivet and Machine Co.

Returning to Notre Dame for their eighth straight year, the Juilliard String Quartet opened the 1956-57 Concert and Lecture Series in Washington Hall on October 30 with a repertoire of stringed compositions by Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, and Schuman.

The musicians teaming up to compose this world famous quartet are Robert Mann and Robert Koff, violin, Raphael Hillyer, viola, and Claus Adam, cello.

The Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers appeared in Washington Hall on November 30, presenting an exhibition of dancing and singing skill.

The Chorus is comprised of the top singing talent from among the White Russian emigrants who fought communism in Russia as early as 1918-1920.

Since its beginnings in 1927, the group has toured every continent, and has visited 67 different countries. The Chorus first came to the United States in 1939, and since that time has given more than 1600 concerts in this country.

Vice-president and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon leaving Drill Hall after address.

Vice-president Richard M. Nixon made a special appearance at Notre Dame in October as he toured the country prior to the November elections.

Mr. Nixon stressed the importance of good foreign relations in his speech before 2,500 Notre Dame and St. Mary's students in the Drill Hall. He stated that it is the duty of everyone to "break down prejudices" and "practice what we preach" if we are to gain the respect of the other countries of the world.

Nixon, with his wife Pat, visited the campus as a stopping off place in the vice-president's Michigan-Illinois campaign swing.

Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic presidential candidate, took time out from his busy campaign to visit the University on Saturday, Oct. 20.

Following a political reception and speech in South Bend, Stevenson had lunch with Father Hesburgh and other University officials in the Morris Inn. The Democratic nominee concluded his stay by witnessing the Notre Dame-Michigan State football game.

Adlai E. Stevenson and Father Hesburgh at the Michigan State game.

General Alfred M. Gruenther received the 1956 Notre Dame Laetare Medal in a November ceremony at the University Drill Hall. The General resigned from his post as supreme allied commander in Europe only a week before the presentation, and has been appointed president of the American Red Cross by President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Gruenther is the fourth military figure to receive the Laetare Medal which has been presented annually since 1883 to an outstanding American Catholic layman.

Dr. Michael Pap, Istvan Lazlo.

Istvan Lazlo, one of the student leaders in the Hungarian revolt, spoke at Notre Dame on November 18.

The young student, speaking through interpreters in the University Drill Hall, gave the background of Hungary's struggle, and answered questions asked by a panel of Notre Dame and St. Mary's students.

Lazlo, the first Hungarian refugee from the recent conflict to arrive in this country, visited the University as one of the stopping points in speaking engagements all over the country.

Miss America

Although a few Notre Dame men might remember Monday, January 14, as a typical, cold, snowy day in South Bend, the majority would most likely prefer to remember what emerged out of that snow storm into the warmth of a room at the Morris Inn. On that day, our campus was visited by Miss Marion McKnight of Manning, South Carolina. For the few unusual people not acquainted with such matters, Miss McKnight is the lovely Miss America of 1957, and was on tour of the United States at the time. In order to give the disheartened Notre Dame student some encouragement, a few of the facts from Miss McKnight's interview are recorded here. As far as can be established, this is the only campus which the 19 year old beauty has visited. In reply to some very personal questions, she stated that she does not wear a ring, does not have a boy friend, and would not rule out the possibility of acquiring either of these two items. The moral of this story: for the Notre Dame man with what it takes, the field is wide open.

Middle: No, I like indoor games better.

Scholastic

Adding its own touch of variation and revision the 1956-57 edition of the Scholastic gave the student body a comprehensive coverage in news and sports, depth in feature articles, eye-opening editorials, and humor in the covers.

Relying upon their own ideas and helped by the 90 years of tradition behind the magazine the editorial staff of 19 combined these two advantages to produce an interesting and well coordinated magazine.

Within the magazine "Entree" was replaced by "Escape" giving a humorous treatment of various topics. The "Back Page" once again returned to air prose creative writing on varied subjects. The extended feature section emphasized campus institutions, departments, buildings, and people as well as pictorial coverage of social and current events. Careful layout produced a clean, open appearance and a compartmentalized but well structured magazine.

One of the few college weekly newsmagazines, the 1956-57 Scholastic left its own imprint in its own varied and successful history.

University Theatre

The University Theatre, under the direction of Father Arthur Harvey, C.S.C., and Mr. Fred Syburg, has existed at Notre Dame since 1954. Its fundamental purpose is twofold. In its first role, it presents an outlet for people interested in drama for the sake of drama, or for just an extra-curricular activity. It also offers first class productions to the student body. In its second role, the University Theatre provides, in the academic field, both a Workshop and a major sequence in drama. The Workshop, open primarily to freshmen and sophomores, is a non-credit course consisting of classroom instruction and stage experience. The major sequence, available for the first time this year, consists of a concentration in drama courses in the Department of Speech.

The final performance in Washington Hall is actually the termination of seven weeks of rehearsals. These rehearsals are of four main types for any production. First come the pre-lims or readings of the play from start to finish. This helps to develop the theme and plot, the characters and their relationships to each other, and aids in remembering lines. Next are the blocking rehearsals. Each movement of the characters is plotted out, including where to walk or stand, and who moves at what time. The third type, rehearsal for detail, emphasizes characterization, gesture, line reading and action. The fourth and final rehearsals comprise complete run-throughs of the play, with background, music, lighting and the entire cast performing. The preparation ends with dress rehearsals.

This year's University Theatre productions included "Death of a Salesman," "Macbeth" and a musical comedy.

Juggler

The Notre Dame Juggler is intended to provide an outlet for the creative and critical writings of undergraduates at the University. At the same time it represents an attempt on the part of Notre Dame students to contribute toward the revival of Christian culture and Christian art.

The Juggler editor this year was Harry Heyl, who with his capable staff, both Editorial and Business, turned out magazines better in quality and larger in circulation.

Its essays, reviews, short stories and sketches, its sonnets and satires and sober analyses made the Juggler interesting and stimulating throughout. It is written so that it can be understood by its readers and still be pleasing and intellectually refreshing to them.

Putting out a fine literary magazine this year's editor, Harry Heyl, was skillfully aided by an outstanding staff. In the opinion of many the 1956 Juggler was the best ever.

Tech Review

T. Schriber (Associate Editor), B. Reeve (Editor), B. Sinko.

The Notre Dame Technical Review is a quarterly publication designed specifically for engineering and architectural students. The magazine has the double merit of presenting worthwhile technical information to over 2000 students, while at the same time furnishing valuable experience in technical writing to its 35 student staff members. In 1956-57, its eighth year of publication, the magazine featured an increase in size, averaging over 80 pages in each issue.

The Tech Review, regarded as one of the leading student technical magazines in the country, added another award to its list last fall. The Engineering College Magazine Association Press Conference announced that the Review had won first place for the best single issue in its field for the year 1955-56.

The Festival of the Arts is an annual program sponsored by the College of Arts and Letters under the direction of Rev. Charles E. Sheedy, C.S.C., Dean of the college. During the 1956 Festival the Notre Dame campus was host to three of the most prominent figures in the world of art: Alexander Tcherepnin, composer, pianist, and lecturer; Cleanth Brooks, literary critic, author, teacher, and lecturer; and Joseph R. Shapiro, art collector and lecturer. These men have brought a fund of important ideas and insights into literature and fine art.

The Festival also exhibited many of Ivan Mestrovic's works, presented the Pulitzer Prize winning play, Death of a Salesman, and showed five notable documentary films on modern art.

Moot Court

The Notre Dame Moot Court was instigated in 1950 for the benefit of allowing law students to gain court experience by arguing appellate cases in surroundings and circumstances as real as possible.

Teams of two compete against each other in a series of preliminary tests until the process of elimination leaves only four members for the final argument held in the fall semester. The two contestants winning the final argument represent the Notre Dame Law School in the National Moot Competition held in Chicago and also receive the Clarence E. Manion award and cash prizes of $100 awarded by the Notre Dame Law Association.

In the past, Justices of the United States Supreme Court, the United States Court of Appeals, the United States District Court, the State Supreme Court and many leading members of the bar have presided over the final arguments.

Foundation Week

Foundation Week was again successful this year, with over 99 percent of the students contributing to the Notre Dame Foundation. The object of this program is not financial gain, but to gain student support of the Foundation, and to familiarize them with the work of the organization.

For their token donation this year, each student was given a small container of dirt from beneath the Main Building to signify his participation in the program.

The Notre Dame Foundation handles all gifts to the University. It was originated in 1947 by Reverend John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., who was president of the University at the time, and who now heads the Foundation.

Commerce

Top hat, white gloves, and cane provided the theme for "After Hours," the Commerce Ball, on October 5. 350 Commerce men and their dates attended the dance, the first big social affair of the fall semester. A doorman welcomed the couples as they came into the LaFortune Student Center, providing an added touch to the country club setting, and the dance-goers spent a wonderful night dancing to the music of Fred Dale and his orchestra. The evening was highlighted by the coronation of Emmy Bishop, date of dance chairman Jack Murray, as queen of the ball.

Wunderbar!!! This was the unanimous opinion of the 275 couples who attended the 1956 Science Ball. The science men and their dates spent the evening of October 12 "Singen Und Tanzen." Ageing barrels of ale and sparkling steins lent an atmosphere of old Bavaria to the LaFortune Student Center. Jimmy Richards and his orchestra provided the music, while a charming Fraulein, Judith Howlett, the date of dance chairman Bill Bauer, reigned as queen of the dance. At the close of the night tired but delighted couples exited through the doors of the Rathskeller, amid whispers of auf Wiedersehen.

Sophomore

Queen Susan Tripp

This year's annual homecoming weekend was an especially memorable occasion for the 490 sophomores and their dates, who boarded the "Showboat" for a trip down the Mississippi. Before the dance the couples attended a Friday evening bonfire pep-rally, and upon entering the LaFortune Student Center, they found each room decorated with silhouettes representing various aspects of an old river town. Music for this year's Cotillion was provided by Charlie Spivak and his orchestra. Reigning as queen of the weekend was Miss Susan Tripp of Allegan, Mich., the date of general chairman, John Boyce. After touring the campus to take in the hall decorations, the couples attended the Oklahoma-Notre Dame football game on Saturday afternoon, and the Victory Dance held that evening in the Navy Drill Hall. Sunday morning there was the traditional Communion Breakfast in the dining hall, following the 8 o'clock Mass in Sacred Heart Church.

The senior trip committee: Joe Reich, Mark Maley (general chairman), Bob St. Clair, Tom Sheehan.

On Friday afternoon, November 2, thirty-five seniors, wearing the traditional green derbies, departed from La Paz, Indiana, for the Navy game in Baltimore. These members of the class of '57 comprised the official senior trip, and were returning to a locale most of them had visited back in their sophomore year for the same Notre Dame-Navy contest. At Memorial Stadium in Baltimore, they were joined by a multitude of their fellow classmates, who had made their own trip to Maryland by bus, car and plane. Despite the tragic outcome of the game and the dreary, east coast weather, the seniors next journeyed to Washington, D. C., and began to exploit the resources of the nation's capital. Various social activities were arranged with several girls' colleges in the area, and those not wanting to attend these planned functions, found adequate excitement for a Saturday night. Most of Sunday was spent touring the numerous historical sites of Washington, and after boarding the B. & O. R. R. that evening, a very weary group of seniors returned to the campus early Monday morning.

Trip

The first part of the long journey back east by bus and train.

On Friday afternoon, November 9, the buses departed from the Circle carrying their occupants to the Pennsylvania Railroad Station. The occasion—the Notre Dame Student Trip to Pittsburgh. Five hundred eighty enthusiastic ND men made the trip and although they were disappointed with the result of the Saturday afternoon encounter, the weekend itself was quite a success. The group arrived in Pittsburgh just prior to the game, and were housed that night in the Penn-Sheraton Hotel. There was a post-game dance, blind dates having been arranged with the girls from Mt. Mercy College. Those wishing to find their own excitement had ample opportunity to contrast the night life of the city with that of South Bend. Sunday morning, a 12:00 Mass was scheduled at Mt. Mercy College with a brunch-mixer following, for the benefit of those who had not yet become acquainted with the local ladies. The rest of the day was spent sightseeing or just plain relaxing. After boarding the trains at 10 p.m., a thoroughly satisfied group of students returned to the campus at 5 a.m. Monday morning.

Queen Patricia Branley

On Friday evening, November 16, 310 A B men and their dates danced "In Modern" to the music of Al Galante and his orchestra. Atmosphere for this year's dance, held in conjunction with the annual Festival of the Arts, was created by a setting of famous modern paintings which adorned the La Fortune Student Center. A contest was held to identify one of the paintings exhibited, and a prize awarded for the closest answer. During intermissions, a quartet from the Notre Dame Glee Club entertained the dancegoers. Miniature ND beer mugs were given to the couples as favors. The evening was climaxed by the coronation of the dance queen, Miss Patricia Branley, date of general chairman, Chuck O'Neill. Other weekend activities for the Liberal Arts men and their dates included the North Carolina game on Saturday afternoon, the "Varsity Drag" that evening, and a Mass followed by a Communion Breakfast on Sunday morning.

Christmas

Good old Saint Nick came to the campus a bit early this year in order to stop at the LaFortune Student Center, and visit the annual Christmas Party. The "couples only" affair was held on Saturday night, December 15, from 8:30 till 11:30. Santa arrived mid-way in the evening, and after a few cheery hellos, retired to the throne room in the north lounge. In typical department store fashion, the girls lined up to talk with him. After sitting on his lap, and giving him very clear instructions for Christmas Eve, they were rewarded by the jovial gentleman with candy canes and party hats. Of course, it just could be that he enjoyed these interviews even more than the young ladies did. When the session was over, Santa came out on the dance floor, and gave away boxes of candy to a few lucky couples. He then led the dancegoers in the singing of Christmas Carols. Before leaving Notre Dame on official business, Saint Nick promised that he and his helpers would return again next year.

The Sheik of Araby brings part of his harem to the Friday Night pep rally.

Every fall a strange atmosphere envelops the University of Notre Dame. Five weekends of this beautiful season take on a carnival tinge and a pitch of excitement permeates the air. The campus starts to hum with movement on Friday night. The Fieldhouse bustles with the noise and tradition known here at Notre Dame as the pep rally. From the moment the team enters the thronging building until long after the playing of the Notre Dame victory march, countless students and visitors cheer and yell till their lungs become weak. The following morning the air is still electric, even though the University is at work in class. At one o'clock Saturday afternoon the people file to the giant birdsnest on the southeast section of the campus to witness the modern equivalent of the old Roman gladiator games. At this spectacle there are many personalities. Among them are the most important characters in the show—the coaches and their players. The team managers, referees, and the hundreds of photographers, newspaper reporters, and radio and television broadcasters who will relate the story throughout the country are other important members of the cast of our Notre Dame spectacular.

For two and a half hours the stadium is filled with excitement. All eyes are glued to the twenty-two men battling on the turf. The spectacular half-time shows performed by the University band continues to hold the interest of the crowd. Then the game resumes and cheering and yelling again echoes through the stadium. Finally the battle ends and the thousands of people pour from the stadium. They talk of the game's hero, that exciting last-minute pass play, and the team which will play next week when the thrills and excitement of a Notre Dame football weekend again take place.

The arrival of the team brings the cheering throng in the Fieldhouse to its peak of excitement.

Thousands of fans stream from all over the campus towards the high point of the weekend—the football game.

A crucial point in the game is watched by the tense faces on the bench.

All-American Paul Hornung, winner of the Heisman trophy and other outstanding honors, provided most of the Saturday afternoon gridiron thrills.

Athletic Department

Ed "Moose" Krause, Notre Dame's Director of Athletics, enrolled at Notre Dame in 1930 and during the following four years was named to All-American teams in both football and basketball, one of the few men to ever have achieved this honor. In his senior year, the student body voted "Moose" a trophy as the outstanding Notre Dame man, a meaningful honor among his many awards, as such recognition has never been given any other Notre Dame athlete.

Upon graduation in 1934, he was named Athletic Director and coach of all sports at St. Mary's college in Winona, Minn., and five years later moved to Holy Cross as line coach. In 1942, "Moose" returned to Notre Dame as line coach under Frank Leahy and in that same year succeeded George Keogan as basketball coach.

After devoting 14 months to the war, "Moose" returned to Notre Dame to assist Leahy as line coach of the 1946 and 1947 National Champions and he also resumed his duties as head basketball coach. On Feb. 7, 1948, "Moose" was appointed assistant athletic director and on March 22, 1949, was elevated to athletic director by the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., then University president. In 1950, "Moose" resigned as basketball coach to devote full time to his duties as director of athletics.

Herbert E. Jones
Business Manager of Athletics

There are few men in athletic circles who have devoted as much of their lives to their alma mater as Herb Jones, the business manager of athletics. After his graduation in 1927, Herb joined the athletic staff as an assistant business manager and since 1940 he has held his present position of supervising the activities of the ticket manager, publicity director, stadium and fieldhouse personnel, and student managers. Many other matters concerning arrangements on varsity trips, medical expenses, and other details are subject to his approval. His office is also responsible for the comfort and satisfaction of visiting schools while they are at Notre Dame. It is very obvious that Herb Jones is the real man behind the scenes in Notre Dame athletics.

A football stadium seating more than 100,000 fans would solve most of the problems of Robert Cahill, Notre Dame's ticket manager. But with stadium capacity set at 58,000, his job is far from easy. Almost a half million ticket applications are mailed yearly, and Cahill has the difficult task of pleasing as many parents, alumni, and friends of the University as possible. Thus Cahill must not only be an expert on mathematics and postal regulations but also a diplomat and a strong-willed person not fearful of losing friends.

Cahill's job does not end with the football season. He must take care of reservations for Irish basketball games as well as make preparations for the following season. Requests for tickets for the 1957 Army game were in his files long before the '56 season began. Notre Dame's box office boss truly has an endless task.

Robert Cahill
Ticket Manager

With the end of the football season, it marked the eleventh season for Charlie Callahan as director of Sports Publicity at the University and the return to somewhat regular working hours. Callahan started in 1946 after being discharged from the Air Force where he took care of public relations and wrote a sports column for the base paper. His job as director of Sports Publicity for all the athletic teams of the University is one that requires the year 'round operation of his office.

Charlie has the job of supplying the press box with statistics, lineups, and other information during and after all Irish home contests. When, too, one of the main projects of his department is the writing of sports releases that are sent out every Tuesday to 1100 of the most important radio stations and newspapers in the country. Every spring and fall, the 1500 ND monogram winners receive the Monogram News, an informal news sheet concerning athletics at the University and put out by Callahan's department. Also, Charlie is in charge of the football programs which are sold at each home game.

Besides his publicity work for Notre Dame, from which he graduated in 1938, Callahan writes a weekly sports column for the Sunday Visitor, a widely-read Catholic newspaper that circulates throughout the country.

When a player thinks about ankle wraps, tapes and troublesome charleyhorses, thoughts turn to Notre Dame's genial trainer, Gene Paszkiet, who is in his fifth year as trainer of Fighting Irish teams. Injured athletes are assured not only of an expert trainer's skill but also of treatment with the most modern and up-to-date equipment. Diathermy machines, whirlpool baths, infra-red and ultra-violet lamps complement Gene's supply of tape and liniment available to make injured players physically sound and ready for action.

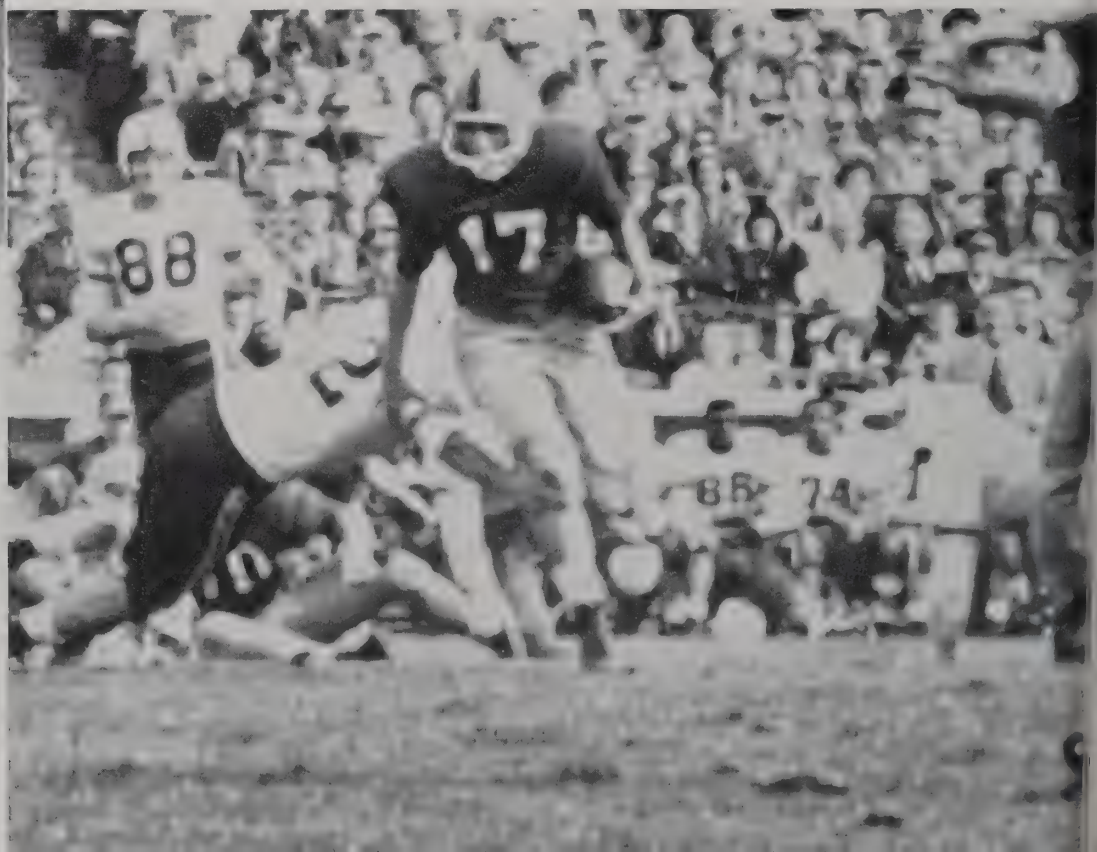

During his undergraduate years at Notre Dame, Gene became a student assistant to Irish trainer Hughie Burns and upon graduation in 1950 signed as head trainer at New York University. He returned to Notre Dame in 1952 to succeed Burns.

James Morse, the first back to hold the captaincy of the team in more than a decade, will be sorely missed by the 1957 team. Jimmy was Paul Hornung's favorite pass receiver and accounted for 442 yards by his aerial catches. His showing during the season merited him berths on two post-season all-star teams.

Richard Ciesielski, 19 year old sophomore guard from South Bend, is 5-11 and weighs 210. Dick, a monogram winner, is in the College of Commerce.

The Fighting Irish opened their 1956 season against Southern Methodist at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, Texas, where a capacity crowd saw Notre Dame suffer its first defeat in an opening game since 1934. Although the Irish won the toss and elected to receive, their initial drive bogged down and Hornung was forced to punt. Led by their outstanding junior quarterback, Charlie Arnold, the Mustangs took over and were first to break into the scoring column. In the second period SMU capitalized on a Notre Dame fumble at midfield to score once again. This time the conversion was good and the score at half time was 13-0.

SMU began the second half by driving downfield to the 7 before the Irish defense tightened and Notre Dame was able to take over on downs. A 38 yard run by Aubrey Lewis and a Hornung to Morse pass climaxed the first Irish touchdown. The Mustangs came right back and drove to the 3 yard line before being halted by a stubborn Notre Dame team, when an attempted field goal was blocked by Dick Prendergast. In a series of line plays, Notre Dame advanced to their own 43. Then Hornung made a spectacular 57 yard run to tie the score at 13-13. There was only 1:58 left to play when the Mustangs stunned the Irish with their third touchdown. But refusing to be outfought, Notre Dame recovered an SMU fumble on the 50. With seconds remaining Hornung completed a desperation pass to Morse, who was unable to elude the lone Mustang defender, and was tackled on the 7 just as the clock ran out. The final score: Southern Methodist 19—Notre Dame 13.

Both SMU and Notre Dame unveiled young and inexperienced teams in this opening contest of the 1956 season. Although the Irish never led in the scoring, the game was not a "sure thing" at any time. The game's dramatic ending was typical of the suspense and tension which characterized sixty minutes of outstanding football.

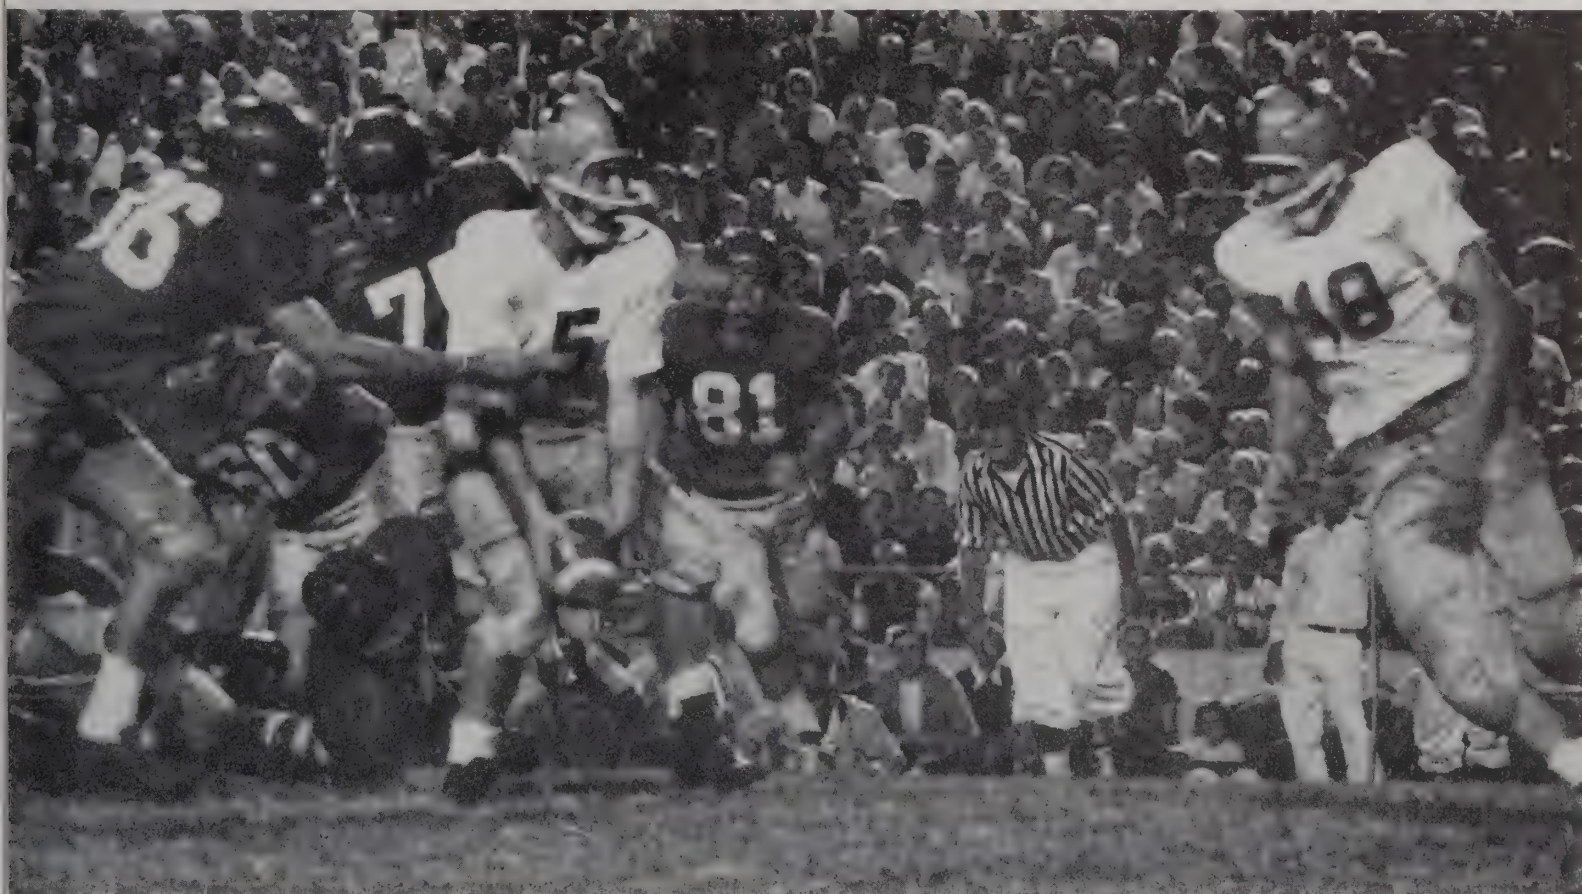

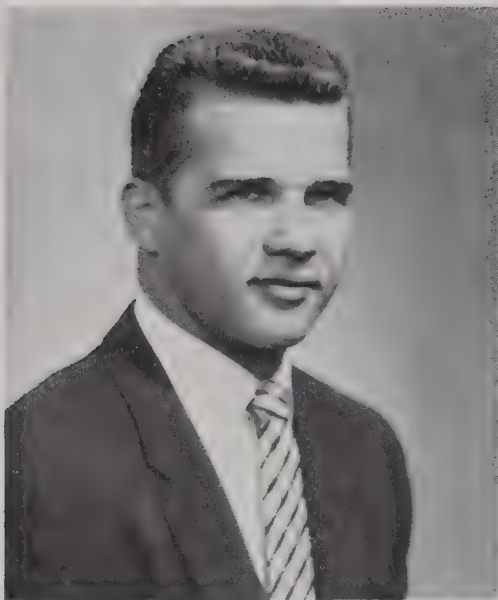

Lawrence Cooke is a senior quarterback from Ennis, Texas. He is 21, 6-0 and 190 pounds. Larry, a pre-med student, won monograms both in '55 and '56 playing as relief for Paul Hornung.

Hornung pitches out to Chuck Lima on the end around play against Methodist's Mustangs.

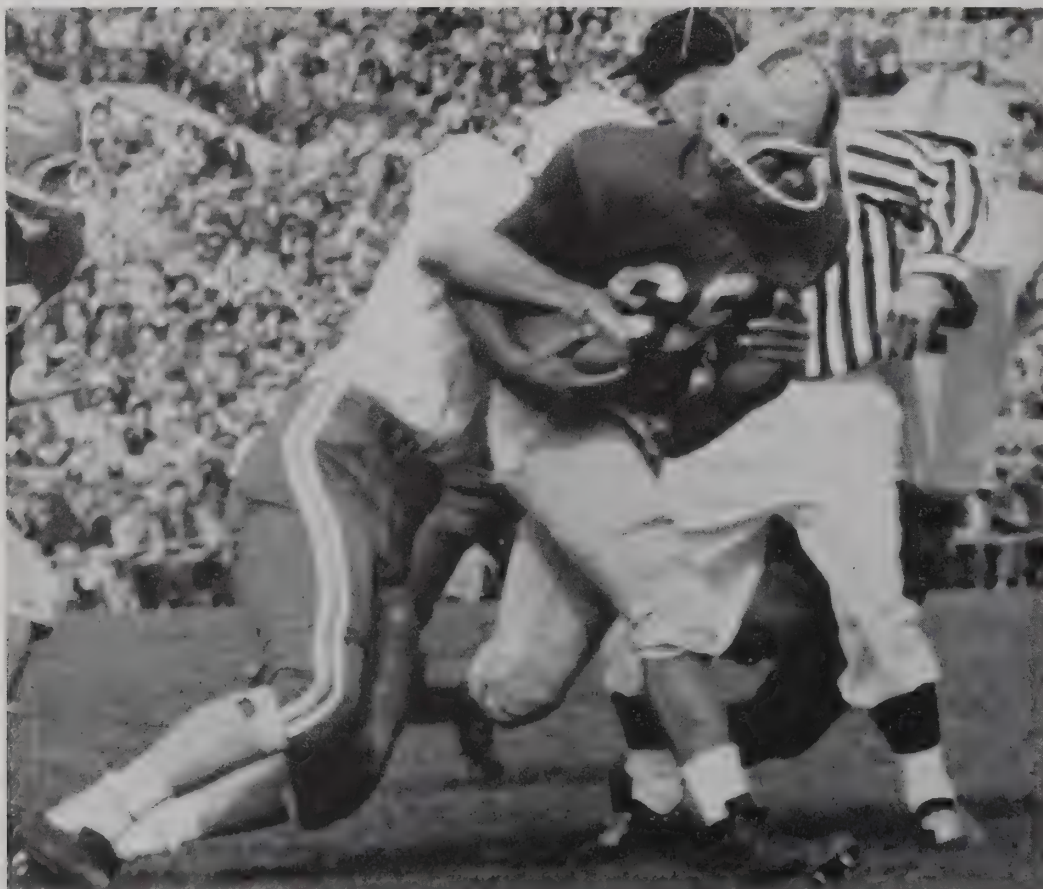

Robert Gaydos is a junior letter winner from Donora, Pa. Bob, enrolled in the Commerce school, won his monogram while playing at the guard position.

Frank Geremia Jr. is a sophomore letterman enrolled in the College of Commerce. Frank, from Sacramento, Calif., is a 19 yr. old, 6-3, 215 pound tackle.

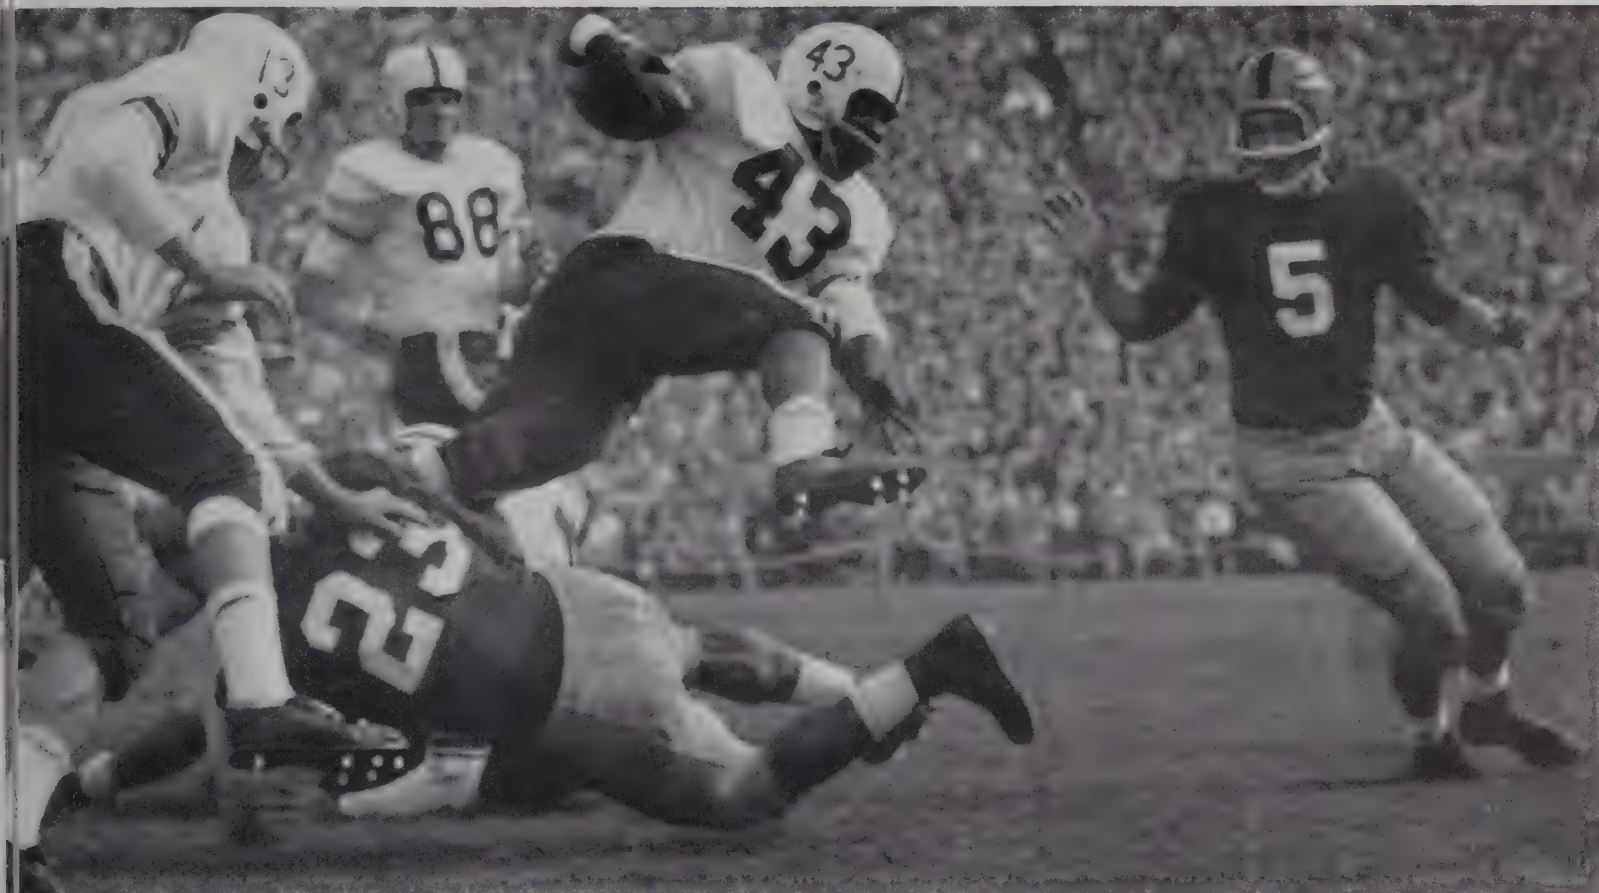

George Groble is a senior monogram winner enrolled in the Commerce school's Program for Administrators. Injured early in the season, George saw only limited service.

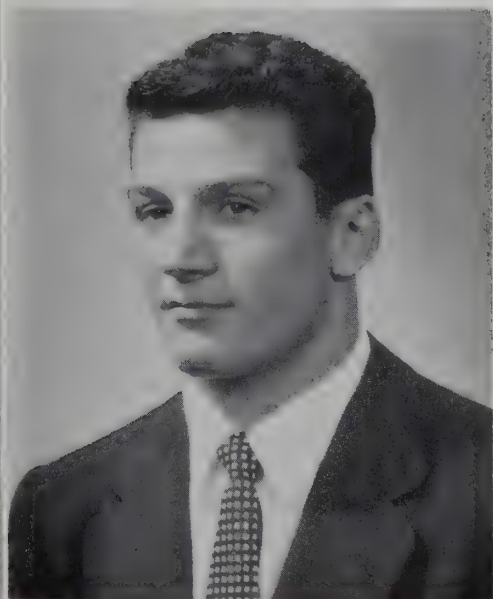

Aubrey Lewis is pulled down from behind, despite the official's fine block on Indiana's John Gentile.

Irish—20 Hoosiers—6

Willie Jones flies through the air towards Paul Hornung's anxious arms.

Gene Hedrick, a junior monogram winner, is a 20 year old, 6-0, 190 pound guard from Canton, Ohio. Gene also won a letter in his sophomore year.

Before a sellout crowd of 58,372 Notre Dame won its first victory of the current season by beating a surprisingly strong Indiana team, 20-6. The Notre Dame attack, which gained more than 400 yards on the ground and in the air, was led by Paul Hornung and Aubrey Lewis. With the game less than six minutes old, the Irish were the first to break into the scoring column. On the initial play from scrimmage Hornung pitched out to Morse who threw to Ron Toth for 19 yards. Jim Just circled left end for a 19 yard gain, and Hornung picked up 27 more, slicing off tackle. After two short plunges by Morse, Hornung slipped through the middle of the Hoosier line to score. The point after was good and the Irish had a seven point lead. The game became stale-mated until Notre Dame began its next touchdown march in the middle of the second quarter. Hornung connected with Toth on a 21 yard pass to the Indiana 32. On three successive running plays Just, Morse and Hornung carried to the 9. After a temporary penalty setback Hornung threw to Lewis for the second Irish touchdown. The lone Indiana score came in the closing minutes of the same quarter. The 63 yard drive was highlighted by a 30 yard completion from quarterback Tom Kendrick to halfback Bernie Grunza. Fullback Tom Yore and Kendrick then moved the ball to the Notre Dame 1, where Kendrick plunged over on a quarterback sneak.

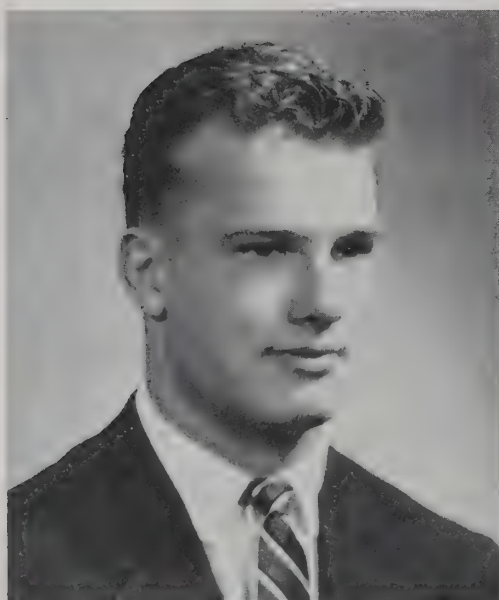

Only a determined goal line stand stopped a Hoosier scoring threat early in the second half. Sparked by fullback Bob Fee and quarterback Gene Cichowski Indiana marched from their own 33 to the Irish one foot line. On the next play the Indiana line was off side and the penalty set them back 5 yards. For four succeeding plays Indiana fought vainly to get the ball over the goal line, but when Fee was stopped by guard Gene Hendrick, the Irish took over. At this point Notre Dame displayed the power which enabled them to humble a highly spirited Indiana squad. In their longest sustained drive of the game the Irish went from their own 1 yard line to score the final touchdown of the afternoon. Lewis moved the ball out of danger to the 35, keeping to the ground; the Irish then moved to the Indiana 27. On a pitchout from Hornung, Lewis then scampered around left end and across the goal line.

Hopes of victory fade as Boilermakers bring ball carrier, pigskin, and turf closer together.

James Just is a sophomore letter winner from Milwaukee, Wis. Jim, a 6-1, 188 pound fullback, is enrolled in the College of Arts and Letters.

Paul Hornung, Heisman award winner, is a 6-2, 205 pound senior from Louisville, Ky. Paul was selected on many All-American teams both in '55 and '56. A commerce school major, he hopes for a business career after a fling at pro ball.

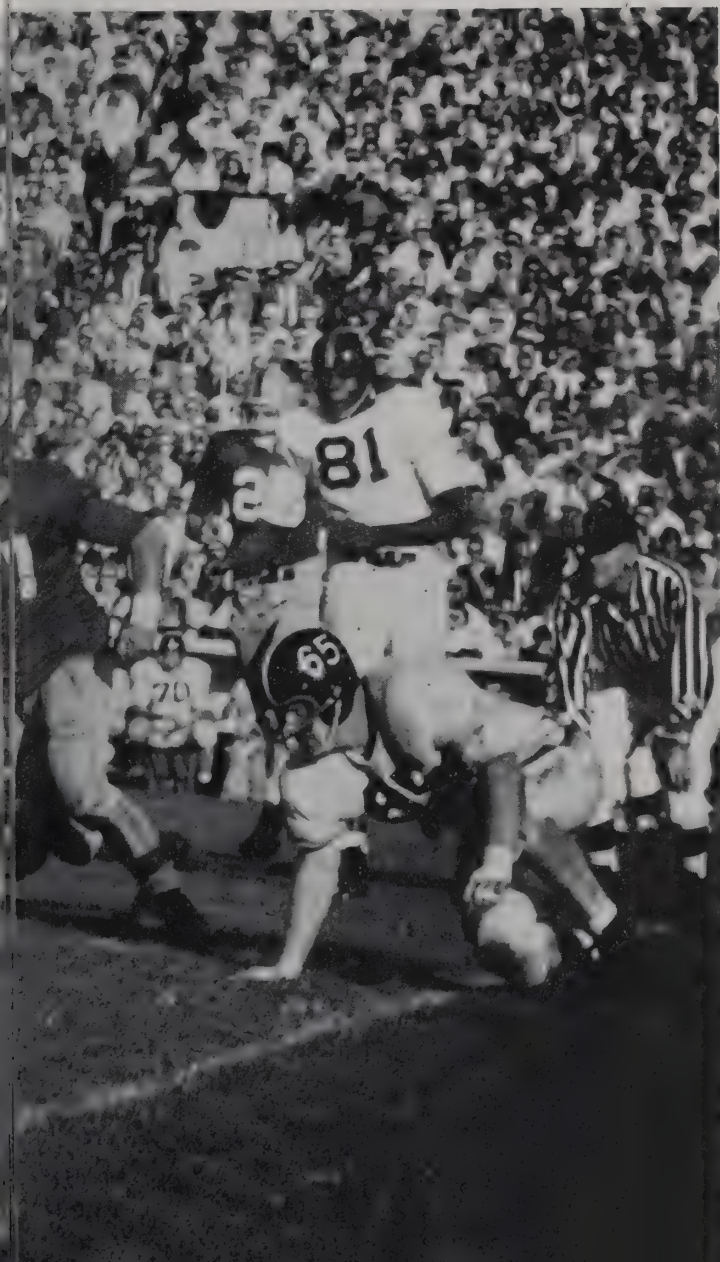

Irish—14

Boilermakers—28

Aubrey Lewis, head down and legs churning, plunges through Purdue line for first down yardage.

Gaydos, Morse, and Reynolds move in towards Purdue's unfortunate halfback Tom Fletcher.

Led by fullback Mel Dillard who piled up 142 yards on the ground, more than the entire Notre Dame offense, the Purdue Boilermakers spilled the Fighting Irish 28-14 for their second defeat in three games. If any one element can be given credit for this victory, it was the Purdue line which outmanned and outweighed ND's, and allowed the Purdue backs to gain 370 yards rushing and 27 first downs.

Returning the opening kickoff 80 yards in 11 plays, Purdue was first to break into the scoring column. Len Dawson's passes and Dillard's smashes through the line brought the ball to the Irish two. Dillard's plunge and Dawson's conversion made it 7-0. When Hornung's fourth down-one attempt failed, Purdue took over on the ND 49. Eight plays later Dillard crossed the goal line for the second TD. On the following kickoff, the Irish moved 70 yards in eight plays for their first score. Hornung ran for 16 yards, and completed four passes for 50 more, the final one to Dick Royer in the end zone. Half time score, 14-7.

With a little more than two minutes gone in the second half, ND tied the Boilermakers at 14-14. Hornung returned the kick from his own end zone to the Purdue 41. Jim Morse and Frank Reynolds skirted the Purdue ends on several plays with Reynolds going over for the TD. Hornung's PAT was good. But the Boilermakers refused to be outfought. Quarterback Len Dawson stayed on the ground this time and taking advantage of an aggressive line and some hard-charging backs, led his team 75 yards to the Irish one. Bill Jennings plunged over for the third Purdue score. ND stopped the next Boilermaker drive on the 18 yard line and started back down field. But a Hornung to Sipes pass was intercepted by Dillard who sprinted to the Irish 17. Despite a 15 yard penalty, Dawson again proved himself a capable field general, and directed Purdue to its final TD. A last-ditch effort by ND was stopped by another interception on the three, and the game ended with the Boilermakers on top 28-14.

Spartans—47

Larry Cooke eagerly awaits the arrival of State's quarterback Pat Wilson.

Aubrey Lewis, a junior speedster from Montclair, N. J., is a 6-0, 185 pound halfback. Aubrey, an education major, led the team in pass interceptions this past season.

The Fighting Irish came into the game with Michigan State a definite underdog in their home stadium, but for the entire first half they demonstrated an ability which surprised even their most loyal fan. Initially, Notre Dame outfought and outplayed this powerful Michigan State eleven, but it was only a question of time before they succumbed to the superior physical strength of the Spartans.

It was in the opening quarter that the Irish reached their peak for the afternoon. On the last play of this period they began the drive which culminated in the game's first score. As was the case most of the game, quarterback Paul Hornung was the nucleus of the Notre Dame attack. Running around right end on the "keep it" play, he gained 45 yards to the Michigan State 4. His fourth down pass to captain Jim Morse kept up the momentum and the ball was placed down on the 17 yard line. After another pass to Gary Myer and a series of line plays, it was third down, goal to go on the 5. Hornung then tossed to Frank Reynolds for the touchdown, and with his conversion the Irish led, 7-0. From this point, Notre Dame began fighting a losing battle. The Spartans took only thirteen plays to score the tying touchdown, and as the half ended they had the ball on the 2 yard line.

The lone Notre Dame touchdown of the second half was scored by Sherr Sipes in the final quarter. Two Hornung passes, one to Reynolds for 52 yards and a second to Sipes for 18, brought the ball deep into Spartan territory, where Sipes plunged over from the 3. With the exception of this brief moment, the second half was completely dominated by the powerful Michigan State offense and their equally effective defense. Taking full advantage of their two star halfbacks, Dennis Mendyk and Clarence Peaks, the Spartans worked the multiple offense to perfection, amassing a total of 40 points. The Irish defeat can best be explained by the strength and depth of the Michigan State reserve. Fighting harder than seemed possible, Notre Dame could only postpone the result which became obvious soon after second half began. And as trite as saying may seem, the final score of 47-14 does not tell the real story of the Notre Dame team which went down to defeat this Saturday afternoon.

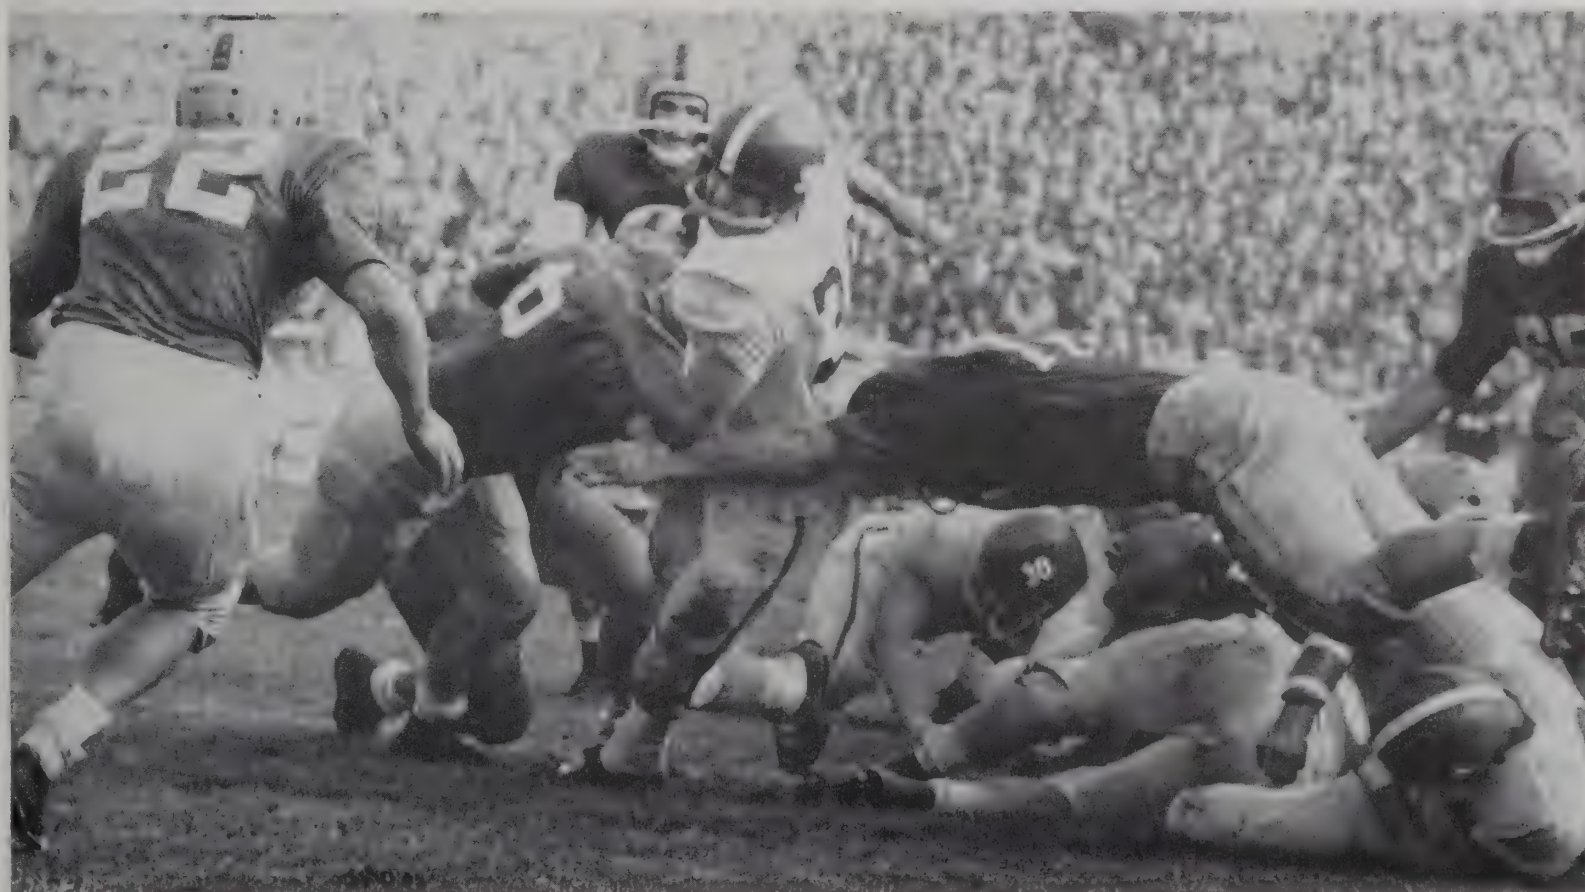

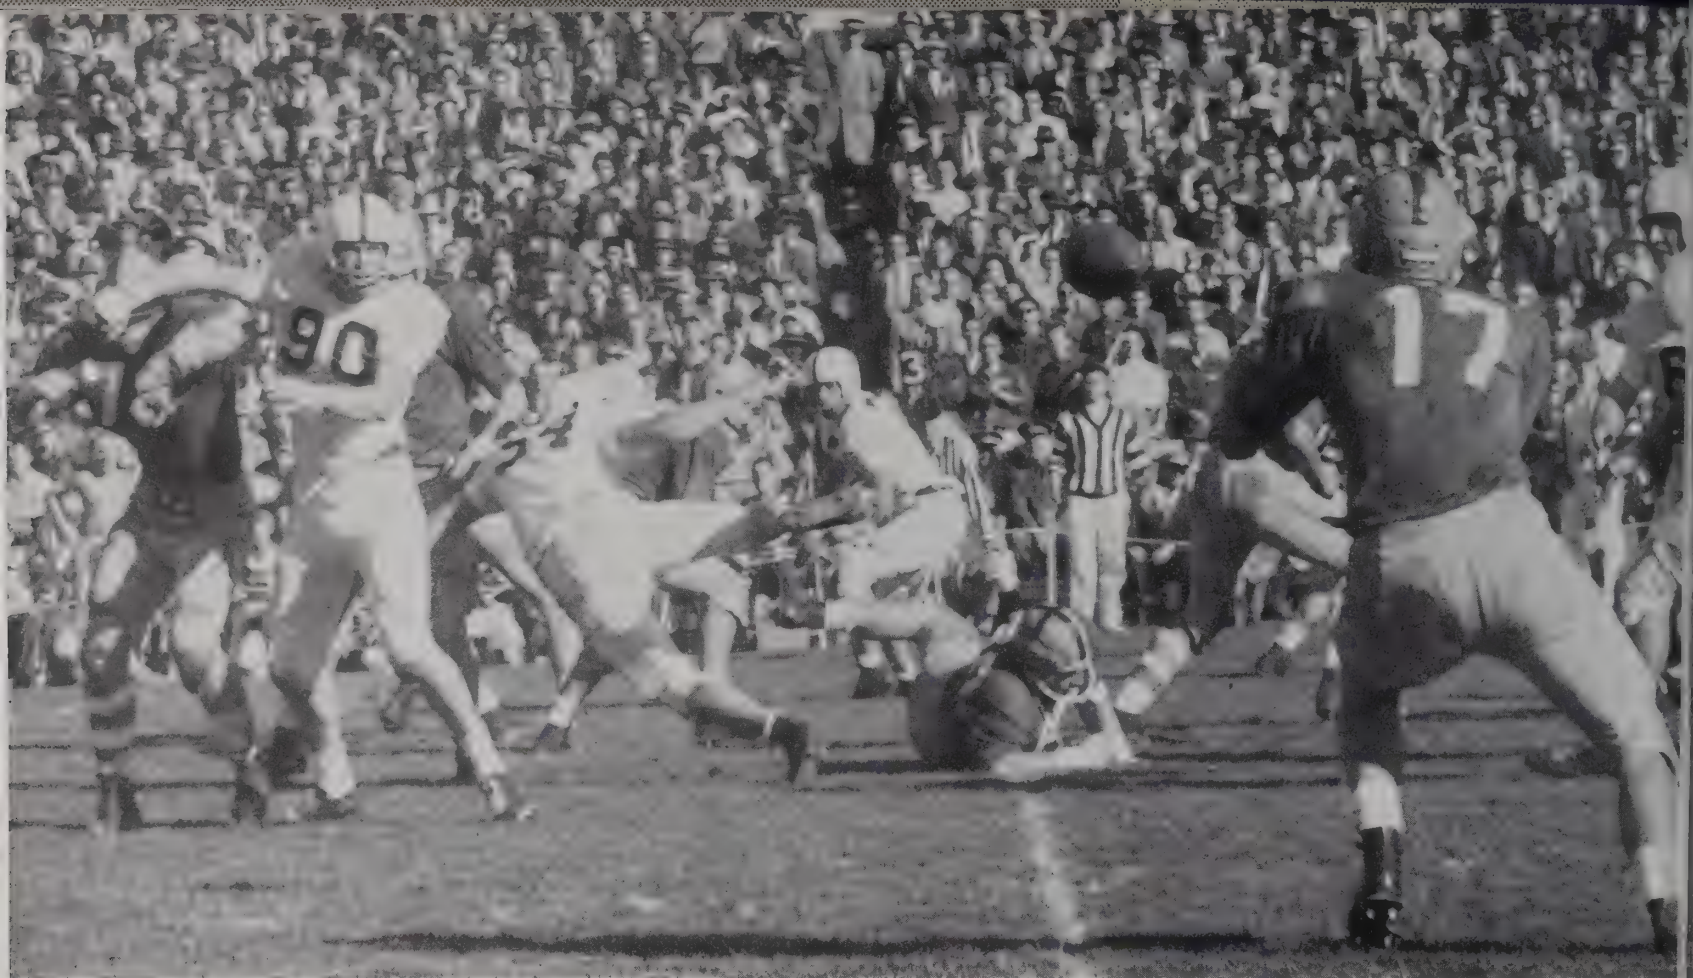

Charles Lima is a monogram winner from Cincinnati, Ohio. Last year as a sophomore, injuries limited Chuck's playing time, but this year he earned a starting position.

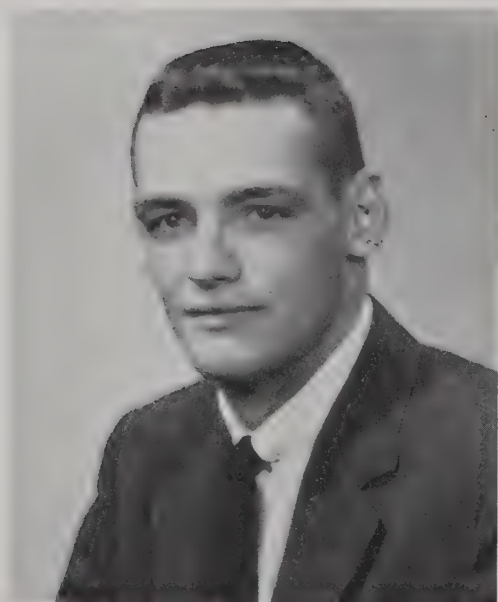

Louis Loncaric, senior, 6-3, 190 pounds, is from Battle Creek, Michigan. Lou won monograms all three years while playing at center.

Dennis Mendyk was the Spartan's individual hero against the Irish, but here he is smothered by a host of Irish tacklers.

Jimmy Morse gets set for a Hornung special as three Sooners attempt to stare him to the ground.

Richard Lynch, junior from Clinton, N. J., was one of the few lettermen returning to the '56 varsity. Dick is enrolled in the College of Commerce.

The white-shirted Oklahoma Sooners descended on Notre Dame this October afternoon and revenged their two previous losses to the Fighting Irish by routing them 40-0. Scoring at least once in every period, the men from Norman never lost their precision for a minute as they easily defeated Notre Dame, and surged to their 35th consecutive victory, a new collegiate record. This was also the 111th consecutive game in which they had scored and the first time Notre Dame had been held scoreless in 47 games.

From the opening kickoff, it was clear that the ND rooting section would have little to cheer about. In nine plays the Sooners had moved 55 yards to the Irish 13. Jim Harris then rolled out to his right and faking an end run, threw a TD pass to John Bell. Harris missed the PAT. Led by Hornung, Lewis and Morse, Notre Dame seemed to be coming back strong but could not penetrate a strong Sooner defense and the attack stalled on the 18. From this point Oklahoma treated the national television audience to a display of the offensive football which made them the number one team in the country. With only minutes remaining in the first period, a Notre Dame punt was blocked as Jay O'Neal cracked over guard on the next play for the score. Returning the Hornung punt and carrying the ball almost exclusively on the next series of plays, Tommy McDonald drove to the Irish 11. Thomas then scored the third Oklahoma TD. At the close of the first half, McDonald intercepted a ND pass and raced 55 yards for the score, making it 26-0.

Once again in the second half it seemed as though ND was going to catch fire but they were stopped on the Sooner 35 when McDonald intercepted another pass. Oklahoma then marched to their fifth TD, utilizing the Harris-McDonald combination. The final tally came early in the fourth quarter. The time Thomas grabbed a Hornung pass and galloped 36 yards for the sixth TD, and the game ended 40-0.

Dean Studer played both fullback and halfback during his three years on the Irish varsity. Though slowed by injuries in various parts of the 1956 season, Dean compiled a respectable 3.5 yard rushing average.

James Milota is one of the few Notre Dame men to win a monogram without experience in high school football. Jim starred in the final games of the season and ended the year with a 4 yard rushing average.

Middie halfback reaches the end of the line in Baltimore's muddy Municipal Stadium.

Before 60,000 drenched spectators in Baltimore Stadium, the Fighting Irish tumbled to their fourth straight defeat at the hands of a determined and aggressive Navy team. The Midshipmen were truly inspired as they gained their first victory over a Notre Dame team in eleven years of this inter-sectional rivalry. Showing no signs of mercy, they piled up five touchdowns to the lone Irish score, and gained a total of 353 yards on the ground and in the air.

The start of the game gave the impression that a tight defensive battle was underway, as both teams went scoreless in the opening quarter. Late in the second period, however, Navy recovered an Irish fumble on the ND 18 yard line and it took but five plays to score the opening touchdown. Harry Hurst plunged over from the two and Chett Burchett converted to make it 7-0. Capitalizing on another Irish fumble on the 44, the Middies scored in four plays with Ned Oldham getting the TD and point after.

Showing its only offensive spark of the afternoon, Notre Dame advanced to the Navy 27 after a 38 yard Hornung to Lewis aerial. Then little Bobby Ward brought the crowd to its feet by scampering off left guard 27 yards for the touchdown. With Hornung's conversion the Irish trailed 14-7. Then the Middies opened the flood gates to drown any Notre Dame hopes. After receiving the kickoff, they drove 65 yards in 11 plays to score. As ND attempted to come back, a Hornung pass was intercepted by Paul Gober who returned it to the 46. Led by quarterback Forrestal, on the ground and in the air, the Midshipmen added another tally, making it 27-7. Late in the fourth period, Navy again took advantage of an ND fumble and took over on their own 38. Aided by a 15 yard penalty and quarterbacked by former Notre Dame freshman Pat Flood, Navy got its final TD and the game ended with the Irish on the short end of a 33-7 score.

In their second invasion of the east coast in as many weeks, Notre Dame again found a very unhospitable host in the Panthers of Pittsburgh. Before a crowd of 61,000 they were handed their fifth straight loss in a closely fought contest.

The first period saw the Fighting Irish contain a strong Panther offense, rated one of the best in the east. Pitt was equally as stubborn in holding the Irish scoreless. Pitt wasted no time as the second quarter opened. They churned out 72 yards in 10 plays for the touchdown, in a drive climaxed by Corny Salvaterra's eleven yard sprint around right end. After an exchange of punts, the Panthers struck again. The key play came as Salvaterra fired an end zone pass to Joe Walton whose diving catch made it 12-0. Lewis' conversion was good. With the ball on the mid-field stripe as the result of two out of bounds kicks, Hornung drifted out for a pass, but finding no one open, kept it himself and raced 50 yards for the TD. The first half ended with the score 13-7.

Like the first period, the third became a defensive battle. Notre Dame threatened once, marching to the Pitt 9, but the Panthers defenders held. In the final quarter Pitt drove to the Irish four yard line and Jim Theodore bolted over for the score. Bagamery made the PAT. With only 3:22 remaining in the game, Bagamery grabbed a pass, picked up a screen of blockers, and went 44 yards for the fourth Pitt touchdown. The point after was wide. Taking the following kickoff on his own 16, diminutive Bobby Ward, a 5-10, 160 pound senior, streaked down the left side line for 84 yards and a touchdown. It was the first time such a feat had been accomplished by a Notre Dame player since Johnny Lattner went the distance against Penn in '53. The game ended at 26-13 with the Panthers threatening once again on the Irish 15 yard line.

Richard Prendergast is a junior monogram winner enrolled in the Arts and Letters college. Dick saw only limited action this season because of an injury.

Richard Royer is a sophomore monogram winner from Cincinnati. Dick's claim to fame is his recovery of a fumble in mid-air in the Southern California game and his 38 yard sprint which set up the first N.D. touchdown.

Robert Scannell is a senior physical education major from South Bend, Indiana. Bob won monograms all three years while playing at end.

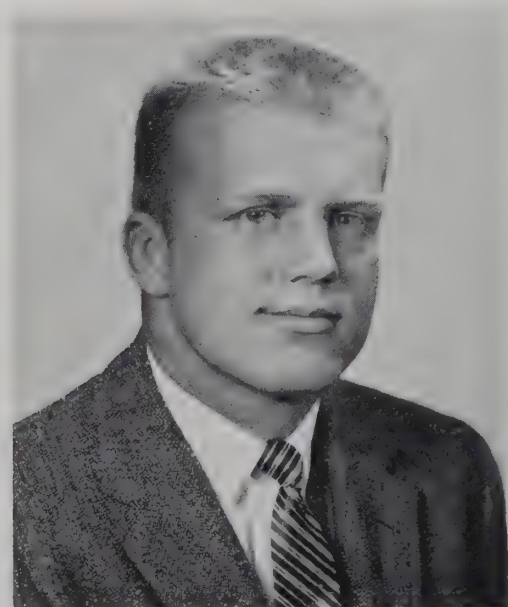

Calm and collected is All-American Paul Hornung as he surveys the situation in the Tarheel defense.

Playing their last home game of the '56 season before 56,793 fans in the Notre Dame stadium, the Fighting Irish squeezed out their second win of the year against a stubborn Tarheel eleven. Notre Dame's All-American quarterback, Paul Hornung, delighted the home-town crowd with his afternoon performance. He scored all three touchdowns, kicked three extra points, piled up 91 yards rushing and completed four passes for 103 yards in the air. Senior halfback Jim Milota and junior halfback Aubrey Lewis also stood out for the victorious Irish.

The first period was strictly a defensive battle with both teams exchanging punts twice. It was also characterized by a Lewis interception and a 31 yard run by Hornung from a punt formation. The first play of the second quarter was a long pass to Morse who was finally downed on the North Carolina 7. Hornung then carried the ball to the first of his three TD's. Notre Dame's kickoff was fumbled by Ed Sutton on the 34, but the Irish failed to capitalize on Jim Just's recovery. The Tarheels came back down field to the ND 20 where Ed Sullivan picked off a DeCantis pass, and stopped them abruptly. On a first down handoff Lewis streaked 78 yards before being shoved out of bounds on the NC 15. Hornung then dove over for the score, making it 14-0 with his conversion. Before the half ended, the Tarheels moved 63 yards in six plays in a drive climaxed by a scoring pass from Sutton to McMullen.

Recovering an Irish fumble on the 37 early in the second half, the Tarheels fought back to a 14-14 tie. Sparked by the quarterbacking of Curtis Hathaway and the running of halfbacks DeCantis and Sutton, North Carolina kept the ball on the ground all the way for their second TD. Once more the game turned into a defensive struggle as both teams fought to prevent each other from scoring. With 5:54 showing on the score board clock, Notre Dame began their final drive from their own 37. After drives by Lewis, Hornung and Milota, Hornung bolted over from the one foot line to wrap up the game for the Irish 21-14.

The Irish learn beforehand why Iowa's Hawkeyes became Rose Bowl champions.

John McDonnell is a senior monogram winner from Sterling, Ill. John, who hopes for a law career after graduation, won his award while playing at halfback.

John McGinley is a junior monogram winner from Indianapolis, Ind. John, a physical education major, won his award while playing at guard.

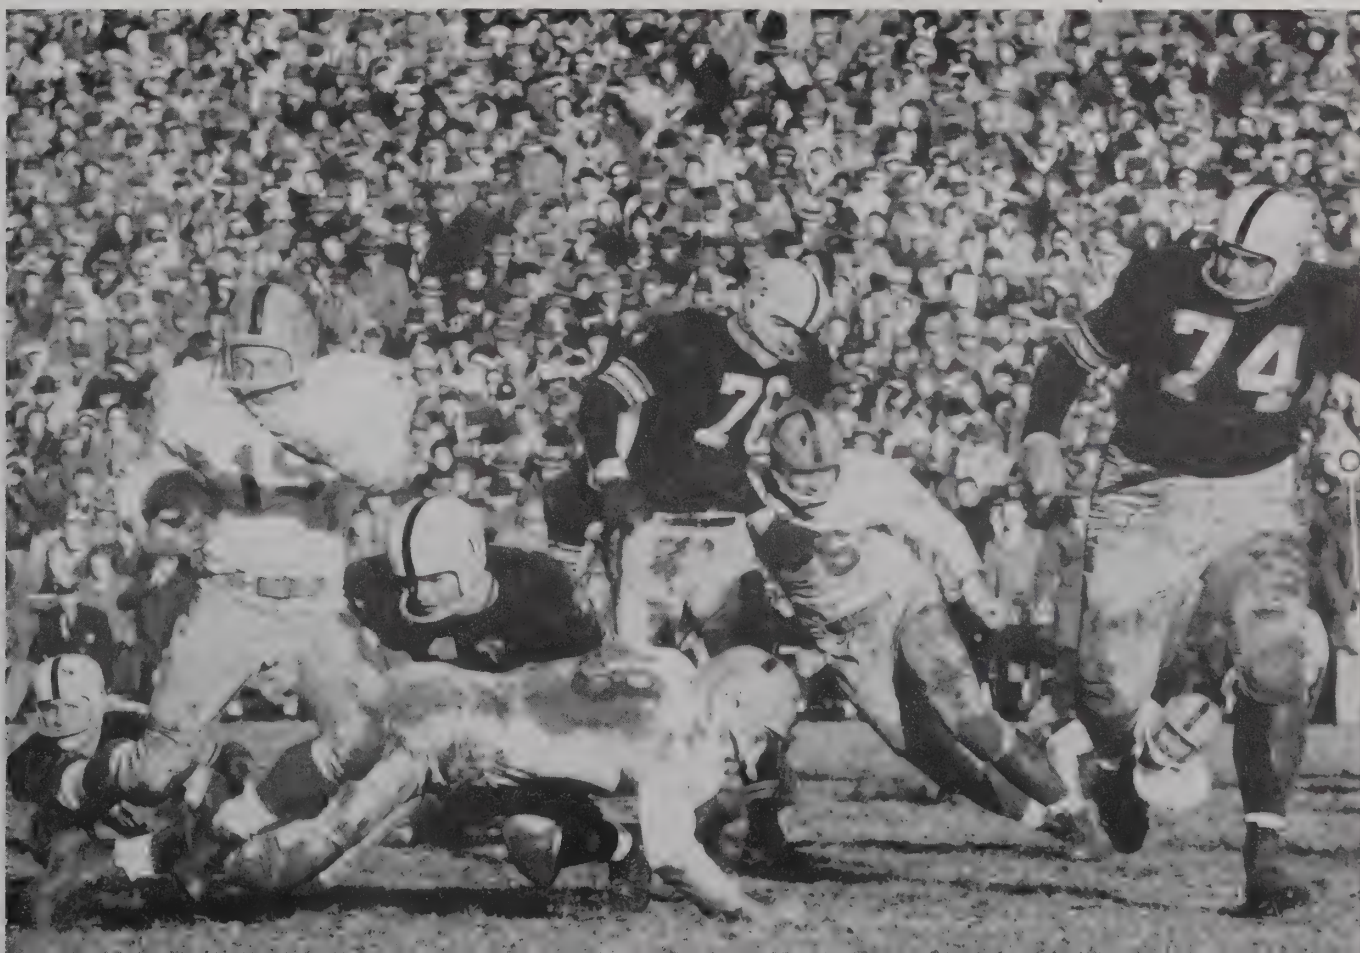

Ronald Toth, a 6-1, 205 pound sophomore from Cleveland, switched from fullback to end during spring practice. Hampered by an ankle injury against Indiana, Ron was forced out for the remainder of the season.

Closing their most successful season in 35 years, the Iowa Hawkeyes piled up the highest number of points scored against Notre Dame this season. It was the first Iowa victory over a Fighting Irish team since 1940 and 56,632 fans, sitting in below freezing weather, saw the Hawkeyes prove their Rose Bowl caliber to the tune of a 48-8 win.

Iowa wasted no time demonstrating its offensive-defensive superiority. Taking the opening kickoff, they marched 75 yards in 11 plays to score. The drive was sparked by the ball handling of quarterback Ken Ploen and the running ability of backs Don Dobrino and Bill Happel. With six minutes still remaining in the first period, the Hawkeyes made it 14-0. Notre Dame was forced to punt from the end zone and taking over on the 29, Iowa scored on a long run by Ploen and a line plunge by Dobrino. Early in the second quarter Iowa returned another ND punt 63 yards in 11 plays, with a Ploen to Harris aerial notching the tally. When Dick Klein grabbed an Irish fumble in mid-air, the Hawks were off again. The key play in this drive was a 41 yard sprint by Ploen for the fourth TD. The half ended with Iowa leading 28-0.

When Notre Dame's kickoff drive stalled deep in Iowa territory, it was the signal for another offensive display by the Hawkeyes. After a series of line plays, Fred Harris broke loose and rambled to the fifth score, with 11:25 still left in the third period. Then came ND's most sustained drive of the afternoon in which they moved from their own three to Iowa's 5 yard line, before they ran out of steam. The Hawks took over on downs but an offside penalty put them on the one. On the next play Frank Geremia caught Harris in the end zone for a safety, the only one of the season for the Irish. After the Iowa punt, Larry Cooke kept up his team's momentum by leading them to their lone TD. Having completed one key pass to Dick Prendergast, Cooke threw to Bobby Ward up the middle, and Ward banged over from the three. In the last period Happel intercepted a Cooke aerial and after a 53 yard run by Collins Hagler, Iowa scored their sixth and final TD, for a 48-8 victory.

Jimmy Milota moves for short yardage with aid of Chuck Lima's key block.

Trojans—28

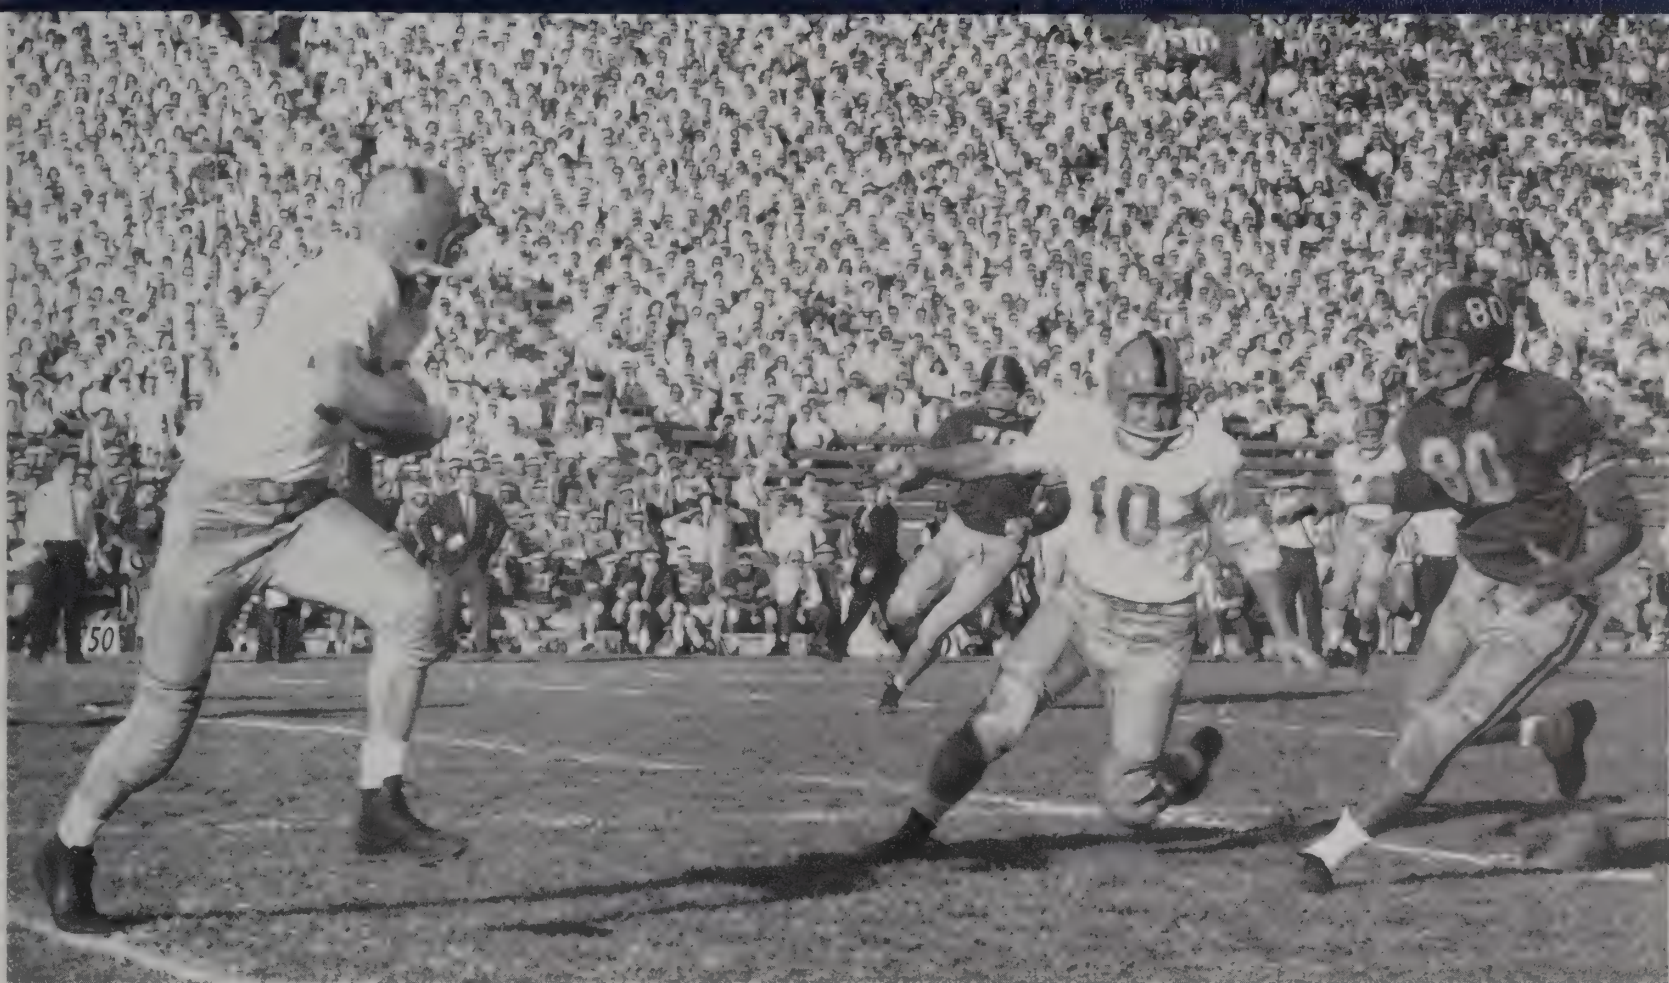

Robert Wetoska is a sophomore from Minneapolis, Minn., who won a monogram while playing at end. Bob is in the College of Arts and Letters.

Robert Ward will be best remembered for his 84 yard kickoff return in the Pittsburgh game. Bob is a monogram winner in the General Program for Liberal Education.

60,000 shirt-sleeved fans watch Dick Selcer move in to stop Southern Cal tackler from performing his duty against Irish ball carrier.

Closing out their most disastrous season in history, the Fighting Irish bowed to Southern California by the score of 28-20. Although this was their eighth loss as against only two wins, Notre Dame played its finest game of the year in the unfamiliar role of underdog to a powerful Trojan eleven.

Sparked by halfbacks Tony Ortega and Ernie Zampese, Southern Cal piled up 314 yards on the ground compared to ND's 112. Their first TD came early in the opening quarter as Don Hickman, C. R. Roberts and Jim Conroy combined to drive from their own 34 in five plays. Dispelling any fears that another rout was underway, the Irish came right back with a touchdown of their own and the score stood at 7-6. The game then began to look like a strictly offensive battle as Zampese and Ortega moved the ball to the ND 15. Roberts hit Hillard Hill in the end zone and now led 14-6. Refusing to abandon their fighting spirit, the Irish rebounded once more. Bob Williams, playing his first full game at quarterback, led his team down field to the Trojan 12. A pin-point pass to Bob Wetoska was good for six and Hornung's PAT made the score 14-13 as the half ended.

Late in the third quarter the SC offense almost stalled on the ND 16 but Don Voyne, standing all alone in the end zone, caught a Conroy aerial and with Kissinger's point after, the Trojans increased their lead six more points. If credit is to be given to any individual star of this game, it must go to Paul Hornung. Operating from the left halfback position, despite two injured thumbs, Hornung played one of the most outstanding games of his brilliant college career. One demonstration of his talent came in the third period as he raced 95 yards along the sideline, through would-be tacklers, to put ND back in contention once again. But Trojan offensive power and depth proved too much for the Irish spirit, and a 38 yard run by Zampese in the final quarter ended the afternoon's scoring. As the clock ran out Notre Dame trailed Southern California 28-20.

Robert Williams came into his own toward the end of the season. In the S.C. Game, Bob passed for one touchdown and scored another. Bob is in the combined Arts and Letters-Pre-Med course.

Senior Football Managers Don Timm and Joe Guerman discussing the procedure for the next away football trip.

While the different Notre Dame athletic teams are hard at work in their various fields of endeavor, there is another team of workers who do an equally important job to assure Notre Dame's success in the collegiate sports field. This organization is the athletic managers, an industrious group of students who perform the behind-the-scenes work which is so necessary for any athletic group.

The occupations of the athletic managers are many and varied. The freshman, sophomore, and junior members of the group are assigned to various sports during the year, including the major sports like football and basketball as well as the many minor sports in which Notre Dame participates. During the football season most of their time is spent on Cartier field or in the stadium locker room, where they must provide any and every service needed by the players, coaches, and trainer. Throughout the rest of the year, their base of operations is the Fieldhouse where they offer their services to the basketball, track, fencing, and baseball teams.

After three years of working with the various Notre Dame teams, seniors are appointed to individual sports as head managers. In these capacities they work in conjunction with Mr. Herb Jones, Notre Dame's Business Manager of Athletics. Together they make plans for the travels of their athletic team as well as arrange all the details involved in an athletic meet here at Notre Dame.

Coach Brennan

No single factor can explain the complete reversal of form of a college football team in one year. Yet in 1955 the Fighting Irish compiled an 8-2 record, while the 1956 team won only two of their ten games. Many so-called "experts" have made Notre Dame's youthful coach, Terry Brennan, the target of their criticisms. These outspoken coaches and sportswriters have emphasized his youth in their statements and declare that Brennan's lack of experience in the coaching profession has caused this blight on the all-time Notre Dame football record. Yet Terry Brennan has proven many times that he has that world-famed Notre Dame spirit and will to win, the two characteristics which have made Notre Dame a power of the past and which will continue this tradition in the future.

Terrence Patrick Brennan has always been associated with winning football teams. While playing at Notre Dame, Terry was a star halfback on three undefeated teams and two national champion elevens. He led the '46 and '47 squads in scoring and pass receiving. While studying law at De Paul University night school, Terry coached Mount Carmel High School to three consecutive high school championships in 1950, 1951, and 1952, an unprecedented accomplishment in Chicago high school football.

Terry joined the Notre Dame coaching staff in 1953 as freshman coach, and assumed his present position upon the resignation of Frank Leahy in January, 1954. His freshman year of coaching was highly successful, for the Irish lost only to Purdue while compiling a 9-1 record. Brennan's 1955 squad was riddled by graduation losses but Terry proved his capabilities by leading the squad to eight victories against the top teams in the nation. His achievements with the '55 squad merited him the Washington Touchdown Club's "Coach of the Year" honors and also the privilege of coaching the East team in the 1956 East-West Shrine game.

Terry's third season as head coach was far from a happy one. The Irish faced the best in the nation, including National Champion Oklahoma, Rose Bowl winner Iowa, Big Ten power Michigan State, and Pittsburgh and Navy, two of the best in the East. Brennan lost six regulars from the '55 squad plus a host of reserves who had bolstered the Irish during Terry's sophomore year. Every returning letterman was slowed by injuries during the season so that inexperienced sophomores had to place most of the work on the shoulders of inexperienced sophomores. Though his squad won only against Indiana and North Carolina, their spirit and fight was outstanding in the Michigan State and Pittsburgh games and the never-say-die battle against Southern Cal's Trojans. With the experience of the past season under their belts, Terry Brennan's gridders should surprise many fans in the 1957 football season.

Coach Brennan watches one of the seasons many problems develop, considers it, and then takes action to remedy it.

And His Assistants

Though the head coach of a college football team receives most of the glory and suffers most of the miseries which result from the work of his squad, the unsung figures on the practice field, the assistant coaches, lend their experience and knowledge to the development of every football squad. They are responsible for the teaching of every phase of the game to every ballplayer on the squad. Under their guidance, good high school players become great collegiate heroes. Their varied activities range from studying movies of future opponents in action to diagramming defensive patterns.

Five former Notre Dame athletes were members of Terry Brennan's staff during the 1956 season. Line coaches Bill Fischer and Bill Walsh were teammates with Brennan on the 1945-48 Notre Dame teams. Fischer, an unanimous All-American choice in his junior and senior years with the Irish, tutors the Irish guards and tackles. Walsh, in his second year on the staff, devotes most of his work to the center position and has developed such stars as Jim Mense, Ed Sullivan, and Lou Loncaric. End coach of the '56 Irish was Jack Zilly, who returned to his alma mater to succeed John Druze, Marquette University's new head coach.

Bernie Witucki and Jim Finks were the Irish backfield coaches in 1956. Witucki, who has devoted his entire life to the coaching profession, spent most of his time working with the halfbacks and fullbacks. Finks starred with the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League for six years before joining Brennan's staff as quarterback coach. Jack Landry completed Brennan's coaching staff. His duties were confined to the freshmen, whom he tutored in all the fundamentals of Notre Dame football.

Cheerleaders

Cheerleaders Hugh McGuire, Pete Roberson and Doug Gonzales practice up on the Irish spell-it-out.

Every football and basketball team is built on the individual player's skills, the spirit and work of the team as a whole, and the support given them by their followers. This third point, the fan's encouragement, is often the most important. Many times during the season our Notre Dame teams have had their backs against the wall, only to come alive with new determination and fight when they hear the student's voices cheering them on from the stands. Often the voices come alive spontaneously; other times the team's supporters have little hope left and the stands remain quiet. Here is the spot where the Notre Dame cheerleaders most perform their most difficult task: to lead a quiet cheering section into mass hysteria. Their hard though unrewarded work has been of great importance in aiding Irish athletic teams to achieve their amazing success down through the years.

The cheerleaders' work on a football weekend begin early Friday evening at the pep rallies. They lead the student body in various cheers, all designed to instill a spirit of fight in the football squad who face battle the following day. Saturday afternoon they continue their work in the confines of the Notre Dame Stadium. Here they lead some 6000 Notre Dame and St. Mary's voices in cheers which echo throughout the vast amphitheatre. All their assorted cheers, ranging from the simple "Go Irish" to the infamous "Echo Yell," have one purpose: to help lead the team to victory.

In addition to their work at the five home games during the 1956 season, the cheerleaders travelled to the Navy and Pittsburgh games where they led student cheers. They also performed at all the Irish home basketball games.

Cross Country

Despite the losses of Bill Squires and Jim Daley by graduation and Dick DiCammillo by ineligibility, Notre Dame's cross-country team enjoyed another successful year. Before the season's opening, prospects were far from bright, for Squires had been one of Notre Dame's all-time great distance men, while DiCammillo had been counted on to offset the graduation losses. But hard work paid off for the Irish harriers as the sophomore and junior squad members gave Coach Wilson the balance needed to win four duel meets and place high in a number of national collegiate meets.

Highlight of the season was the harrier's second straight victory in the Central Collegiate Conference meet. They triumphed over Marquette, Loyola, Bowling Green, and Central Michigan in duel outings while losing only to Indiana University's state champions and Michigan State's N.C.A.A. victors. A fourth place finish in the IC4A meet in New York plus sixth place against the best teams in the nation in the National Collegiate Athletic Association meet climaxed the cross-country season.

Captain John Michno and Sophomore Mike Haverty were the stellar performers for the Irish throughout the season. Michno, a senior from Chicago, took first place in a number of meets and gave a credible performance in the N.C.A.A. championship. Haverty, a star on last year's freshman team, worked hard throughout the season and gave Michno many a battle for individual honors. Juniors Ed Monnelly, Dale Vandenberg, John Burns, Bill Newell, Stan Wegrzynowicz and Neil Wallace also played important roles in the victory parade and will provide a nucleus for Coach Wilson's team next fall.

Kampus Keglers

This, the second year of the operation of bowling alleys on the Notre Dame Campus, proved to be a very successful year. The average night at the bowling alleys, located in the basement of the Romy Hammes' Shopping Center, saw the ten alleys filled until closing time, this being especially true on league nights. With the coming of spring, the alleys underwent a major change, and this being the replacing of the pinboys by purely automatic pinsetters.

This year the Kampus Keglers, a handicap league organized in affiliation with the American Bowling Congress, grew to a new high of five teams, while another new league was formed this year, and that being the Notre Dame Classic League, a non-handicap league.

Once again the alleys were under the capable management of J. (Speed) Sheehan who helped the alleys keep their title as one of the most recreational spots on campus.

The year came to a close with the annual Bowling banquet for all who participated, and topped off a very successful year for all.

Sailing Team

In the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association, which is composed of 23 member schools, the Notre Dame sailing team compiled the best average for the 1956 fall season. In the team's five regatta slate, they qualified for the all important Timme Angsten Regatta, the winner of which is considered to be the midwest sailing champion, by beating out a strong Purdue team, and then finished fourth in the finals against some of the best competition in the country. In the team's other three regattas, they finished a strong second in the Notre Dame Quadrangular, won by the University of Michigan, and second in the Hoofer Invitational and Wayne Invitational respectively. All together, the team had a total of 68 races.

Individually, the club placed three on the list of ten best skippers in the midwest, computed on a won and lost basis, D'Almedia being fourth, Morgan sixth, and Meissner tenth.

During the winter months, the club sponsored a series of sailing seminars, and with the coming of spring, once again they were slated for competition against some of the best teams in the country, and were in a very favorable position to reach the finals of the Nationals held at the Naval Academy, where they finished fifth last year.

Some of the intricacies of working with the craft were shown at a Sailing Club Seminar.

The University of Notre Dame is a firm believer of the old adage, "a strong mind in a strong body." Not only does she provide the educational facilities for building the intellect but she has also made the development of the physical stature of her students an integral part of the education of every Notre Dame man.

Throughout the scholastic year football, baseball, basketball, tennis, swimming, and other teams represent Notre Dame in intercollegiate athletics. These athletic teams compose a small part of the student body. But many other students take part in these and other sports through the intramural athletic program.

While the varsity football coaches are laboring with their charges on the Cartier field turf during the autumn season, some four hundred other students are working just as hard as the varsity teams on the intramural fields. Every afternoon the hall teams practice fundamental blocking and tackling, run through defensive patterns, and iron out their offensive strategy. Each team plays a round robin schedule within its division. At the end of the season, the winning team of each division battles for the campus championship.

Underdog Zahm hall of the Eastern division held Dillon's West division champs to a scoreless tie in the 1956 championship game. The final decision was awarded to Dillon, for they had gained more first downs and had driven deeper into Zahm's territory on the muddy, snow-covered field.

Marriage Institute Committee: Tom O'Brien, Tom Shehan, Tom Kristopeit, and Chairman, Tony Yurchak.

Over 900 seniors attended the 1957 Marriage Institute, an annual series of lectures designed to give the coming graduate an insight into the responsibilities of married life.

This year's Institute consisted of six lectures that gave a comprehensive background into the spiritual, psychological, and physiological aspects of courtship and marriage.

The speakers included Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, C.S.C., Mr. and Mrs. David Matthews, Rev. Arthur Meloche, Dr. Louis Leone, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stubbe, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Dowd.

A question and answer period followed each lecture, and the seniors were given the opportunity to buy books on courtship and marriage.

The Marriage Institute is arranged by the Senior Class in conjunction with the Religion Department. The student committee consisted of Tony Yurchak, chairman, Tom O'Brien, Tom Kristopeit, and Tom Shehan. Rev. Louis Putz acted as advisor.

This Concert and Lecture Series attraction had the remarkable accomplishment in their ability to play both classical and modern musical modes. These men have not only established their popularity, but their musical importance as interpreters of the finest two-piano literature.

Jose Greco

Mr. Greco and his fine dancers are recognized as the foremost living exponents of the Spanish dance forms. Greco and his troupe have toured Europe, and starred in a motion picture filmed in 1948, "Manolete." Now, firmly established in America, Jose Greco has been accorded a tumult of welcome such as to make ballet and theatrical history.

Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts was chosen Patriot of the Year by the Senior Class of 1957. Presentation of the plaque and scroll, emblematic of the award, was made by Senior Class President George W. Strake, Jr., at the 108th Annual Washington Day Exercises held in the Drill Hall.

Senator Kennedy was elected to the House of Representatives in 1946 and served in that capacity until 1952 when he was elected to the Senate, from Massachusetts, by the largest plurality in the history of that state.

On January 29, 1950, Senator Kennedy received the Honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Notre Dame. He holds twelve such degrees from universities and colleges throughout the country, and in 1956 he was recipient of the Cardinal Gibbons Award for the outstanding Catholic of the year.

The Patriotism Award is given annually by the Senior Class to the outstanding patriot who exemplifies the American ideals of justice, of personal integrity, and of service to country.

Chairman of the exercises was John T. Cusack and the Committee was composed of James W. O'Neill, Frank K. Reilly, and Thomas J. Judge.

Junior Parent-Son Weekend

Each year the Junior Class is honored with the distinction of having their parents visit the University, meet the administration and faculty, and witness the process by which a Notre Dame man is educated.

This year the parents of more than 400 juniors attended this special weekend. On Saturday the parents were afforded the opportunity to attend class with their sons or follow a guided tour of the campus. Saturday evening a parents-son banquet was held in the dining hall and had as its main speaker the President of the University.

Other activities for the weekend included an open house at the Student Center at which time the parents were able to meet the administration. Sunday morning found parents and sons gathered in Sacred Heart Church for holy mass and communion. This, in turn, brought to a close a weekend in which many parents were given a fuller understanding of the everyday life at the University.

Louis Armstrong

Through the efforts of this year's Social Commission, Notre Dame was fortunate enough to have Louis Armstrong and his All-Stars on campus for one tremendous night of entertainment during the early part of Spring. A packed Fieldhouse laughed and listened for almost three hours while Louis and his All-Stars, Trummy Young on trombone, Billy Kyle on piano, Edmond Hall on clarinet, Dale Jones on bass, and Barrett Deems on drums, plus Velma Middleton, sang, played and had fun themselves.

Miss Sweden

Miss Ingrid Goude, Sweden's entry in the 1956 Miss Universe contest, appeared at Notre Dame during the first weekend in March. Miss Goude stopped at the University on a publicity tour for Universal-International pictures. Although she has only been in the United States for six months prior to her visit to the campus, Miss Sweden already had a part in one Hollywood film.

The 19 year old blonde beauty was interviewed over WNDU-TV, WSND, and WSBT.

The Ball . . .

The 1957 Mardi Gras opened with the Mardi Gras Ball, "Vive La Danse," in the LaFortune Student Center. Bobby Christian and his 15-piece orchestra provided music for the dance. Some 650 couples attended the Ball, largest dance ever held in the Student Center. This record was made possible by the opening of the new section of the Center which has an increased dance floor capacity for 150 couples.

Miss Jerry Hall, from Rosary College, the date of Dance Chairman Don Renier, will reign as queen of the Ball. Also to be crowned during the dance is Miss Sue Hacker of St. Mary's College, date of Emmett Malloy, general chairman of the Mardi Gras, who will reign as queen of the weekend. The queen of the carnival, Miss Rhoda Comer from Aurora, Ill., will be crowned at the opening of the Carnival on Saturday night. The three queens will arrive at the Student Center in the chauffeured white 1957 Cadillac to be awarded Tuesday night at the carnival.

Street Scene in New Orleans, the theme of this year's Mardi Gras Carnival, proved to be a most novel idea. Workers in the booths were attired in Gay 90's dress in order to simulate a street in Old New Orleans during the original Mardi Gras.

The new feature of this year's carnival was the introduction of a student government booth where the students could throw "oatmeal pies" at their favorite legislators. Joe Reich was chairman and did a bang up job in producing the best carnival ever.

Military

Queens Miss Ann Gates Rodabaugh, Miss Patricia Glynn, and Miss Mary Needler.

The 1957 edition of the Military Ball was presented on February 5, 1957. On this night three queens—one for the Army, one for the Navy, and one for the Air Force—were crowned by the respective commanding officers in a flag bedecked Student Center with red, white, and blue flower pieces decorating the tables.

Ann Gates Rodabaugh, the date of Bob Duffy, general chairman of the dance, ruled the Land; Mary Needler, date of Don Mechenberg, reigned over the Sea; and Patricia Glynn, escorted by Brian McMahon, the Air.

Three hundred uniformed ROTC men danced with their dates to the music of Don Glasser and his Orchestra while Miss Lois Costello vocalized.

Although the dance was relatively small, all agreed that it was one of the most successful dances that the Military has ever held.

The 1957 Knights of Columbus Ball was held at the South Bend Councils Hall. Chairman Dan Bergen and his committee did a splendid job of putting on the best dance in a long time. With the hall decorated in a Valentine mood, the couples danced amid a shower of arrows, and it was impossible to see who had fallen prey to cupid's shafts.

Queen Miss Helen Thomas, date of chairman Bergen, reigned as Knight for a nite. The end came quickly, and soon the noisy and crowded dance floor was again quiet.

Winter Carnival

On the weekends of the ninth and sixteenth of February, a chosen five hundred Notre Dame men trudged through the melting snow drifts to the west for the annual St. Mary's Winter Carnival. A variety show, "The FONI Girls" was held in the ROCK in the basement of St. Angela's Hall. The sun was bright as the couples strayed across the campus lawns. New Englanders (three of them) dodged snowballs while their classmates from the warmer climates dazzled their dates with a show of female gymnastics. Plaid slacks, ice skates, ear-muffs and multi-colored scarfs symbolized the general informality of the afternoon. A box supper complete with hamburgers (guaranteed not to be from the dining hall) and hot coffee refreshed the couples, preparing them for an evening of dancing. Ed Pistey and his Lettermen with Bob Burnes and the Irish Jazz Quartet appeared in succession for the two weekends. Four fast jitterbugs left only enough energy to sing the Victory March. Then the girls and their dates took one last look for that lost glove and then said goodbye, quietly but not quickly. Outside only a few patches of snow was left and the ice in St. Mary's Pond was beginning to melt.

Ya big bully!

Wrap it up . . . I'll take three of 'em.

Come on little Joe.

Look ma, no hands.

Well, I have an opening in 6 weeks . . .

Coach Jordan

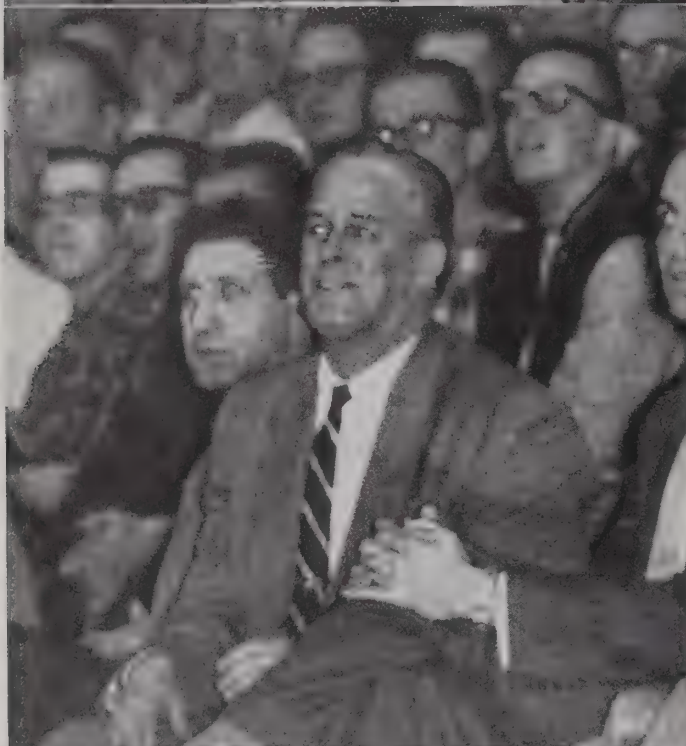

When the Irish basketball squad lost their fifteenth and final game to Bradley in March, 1956, rumors that Coach Johnny Jordan would leave his alma mater were numerous. The Irish had suffered their worst season in history and prospects for the 1956-57 season were far from cheery. All-time leading scorer Lloyd Aubrey was graduating as well as Captain John Fannon and guard Bill Weiman. The outlook was still gloomy when the Irish entered 1957 with only a mediocre 5-5 record. Again the rumors began to spread. Then suddenly Coach Jordan's hoopster began to click. A new offensive pattern was used with lanky Tom Hawkins and Captain John Smyth operating in a double pivot and little Gene Duffy setting up plays from his guard position. Jordan's five rolled over team after team in February and early March. The squad which had been a pushover a few months earlier seemed unbeatable. Finally the bubble burst in the NCAA playoffs at Lexington, Kentucky, where another Cinderella team, Michigan State, upset the Irish by two points. Despite the playoff loss, this whirlwind finish by the Irish proved to Johnny Jordan's antagonists that he is one of the ablest collegiate basketball coaches in the country.

John J. Jordan had been a triple monogram winner in basketball when he graduated from Notre Dame in 1935. Johnny decided to remain in the basketball world after his graduation so he accepted the position of head coach at Chicago's Mount Carmel High, the school where his fellow-coach Terry Brennan first displayed his own coaching prowess. Jordan's Mount Carmel squads gained three titles in Chicago's Catholic League as well as City Champion honors in 1943 and 1946. He moved to the North side of Chicago in 1950 and led Loyola University to a winning season. Finally, after 16 years, Johnny Jordan returned to the Notre Dame campus to assume head coaching chores at his alma mater.

His first season at the helm of the Notre Dame basketballers was very successful as the Irish were victors in 16 of their 26 games. His next two teams surpassed his first as the Irish won a total of 41 games of the 49 played during this two-year period. Both the 52-53 and 53-54 squads reached the NCAA quarterfinal rounds before their championship dreams were shattered. His excellent work with the 53-54 squad gained Johnny a college basketball coach's highest honor, the "Coach of the Year" award. The next two years were only mediocre for Jordan-coached teams but Johnny proved his reputation as a top-flight coach with this year's team.

Coach Jordan was greatly aided this year with the addition of Jim Gibbons as assistant coach. Jim, also a former coach at Mount Carmel, assumed the duties of freshman coach and head scout during the 1956-1957 campaign.

Coach Jordan watches the game, reacts to a play and then discusses the action with Assistant Jim Gibbons.

Basketball — 1957

Shaking off a slow start, the Irish cagers of Coach Johnny Jordan rebounded and moulded themselves into a highly polished squad winding up the 1956-57 season with a respectable record of 20 victories and eight defeats. Winning 15 of their last 18 games, the Irish jelled into a championship caliber outfit motivated by an intense team spirit, hustle, and determination to win.

Shuffling his starting five throughout the first ten games, Coach Jordan's experimentation paid off in rich dividends, as the combination of John Smyth, Tom Hawkins, Bob Devine, John McCarthy, and Bob Duffy provided Notre Dame basketball fans with all the slick ball handling and shooting that they could ask for. An equally important factor in the Irish success was the strong bench strength provided by Joe Morelli, Tom Sullivan, Jack Bedan, and Ed Gleason who were always ready to add a capable hand when necessary.

The double pivot offense devised by Coach Jordan was made to order for the close in sharp-shooting abilities of Hawkins and Smyth in addition to springing McCarthy and Devine loose for their favorite jump shots. In Duffy, Coach Jordan had the spark plug and pass master to set the Irish offense in motion.

This year's squad rewrote the record book on three occasions. In 28 games the team scored 2,364 points breaking the old mark of 1,896 points tallied by the 1953-54 squad. Nine times the Irish scored more than 90 points, and twice they equalled the previous one game high of 99 points. Tom Hawkins, sensational sophomore forward, was responsible for the second mark; his season's total of 576, a 20.6 average, broke the former total of 539 established last year by Lloyd Aubrey. The third record broken was in attendance, as 188,920 fans watched the Irish.

Captain John Smyth, senior center, was second to Hawkins in scoring with 534 points, a 19 point average, which makes him the third highest one year scorer in Notre Dame history. Smyth's field goal percentage of .449 led the team. In addition, his three year point total of 1,236 has been topped only by Jack Stephens (1,251 in 1952-55). John McCarthy, junior forward, was the third high scorer with 431 points besides leading the team in free throw percentage with .771. Bob Devine, junior guard, came fourth in scoring with 356 points. Hawkins and Smyth monopolized the rebounds with 484 and 423 respectively.

The man most responsible for the fine showing of this year's squad was Coach Jordan, ably assisted by Jim Gibbons, who in his sixth year at Notre Dame ran his record to 100 victories against 51 defeats. For the third time in the last five seasons he has had the honor of seeing his club selected to play in the NCAA tournament. The 1956-57 squad lived up to the past standards shown by Notre Dame teams in tournament games by coming in second in the Christmas Holiday Festival Tourney in New York and winning two out of three in the NCAA tournament.

Coach Jordan can look with anticipation to next year as the prospects appear very promising. Of the starting five only John Smyth will graduate. With a full year's experience of playing together, the quartet of Hawkins, McCarthy, Devine, and Duffy plus some promising candidate for center paint a bright future.

The Season

Irish forward Tom Hawkins leaves no doubt as to the reality of that basket.

Irish Captain John Smyth bats the ball up and away from a DePaul player while Tom Hawkins crowds in to help. John McCarthy waits for a possible pass in the backcourt.

Bengal Bouts

The 1957 Bengal Mission Bouts, a tradition in its twenty-sixth year, was a series of hotly contested clean boxing.

Seldom have the ancient rafters of the Irish fieldhouse rang to the cheers of the fight crowd and long time Bengal Bout observers could not recall when the audience had given a standing ovation to fighters before a decision was announced.

Carmen Basilio, the world's welterweight champion, received the Bengal Award, for the man in boxing who has contributed the most to the youth of America by example and competitive spirit in 1956.

This year's bouts saw the dethroning of 1956 champs by a group of relatively inexperienced boxers fighting for their first time in competition. Three newcomers in the ring, but veterans on the gridiron, took the heavier weight classes.

Pat Healy, a freshman halfback, won the heavyweight crown over a varsity guard and Bengal Bout veteran, Dick Shulsen. Dick Prendergast, a junior varsity end, won the decision over Chuck Conner, an ex-heavyweight champion to take the special heavyweight class.

Dick Lynch, a classy southpaw halfback won over Pete Nozesky, a two time Bengal champion.

Dick Murphy was the only defending champ to regain his title. He beat Frank Nacozy in the 167 lb. contest. Bill Brelsford, a sophomore, won easily over Jerry Waters, a junior, to gain the trophy in the 160 lb. class.

The 155 lb. contest between Hugh Ball and William Moore was termed by Basilio as "the greatest of a great bunch of fights." Moore won the decision in a real slug-fest.

Other winners were John Finn, 147 lb. class; Edward Ricciuti, 142 lb. class; Ross Franco, 137 lb. class; and Dennis Landry, 127 lb. class.

Edward Ricciuti became the first recipient of the Larry Ash trophy, an award presented by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ash of Colorado Springs, Colo., in memory of their son Larry, a former boxer in the bouts, who was killed in a plane crash in 1955. The huge trophy presented to the best fighter of the bouts will stand in the Student Center.

Bob Mondron won the Sportsmanship trophy and Don Lawrence accepted the Father Ryan trophy, "for the most improved fighter."

A well deserved award was that presented to Dominic Napolitano, the director of intramural boxing at Notre Dame and the mainspring behind the Bengal Bout for 24 years. The special plaque presented by Colonel Milton Towner was for "distinguished service to the Air Force," in a series of boxing clinics he conducted in Germany last summer.

The proceeds from the Bengal Mission Bouts, as the name implies, are given to the missions in Bengal, India. The bouts were sponsored by the Notre Dame Knights of Columbus. Terry Conway, a senior, was chairman.

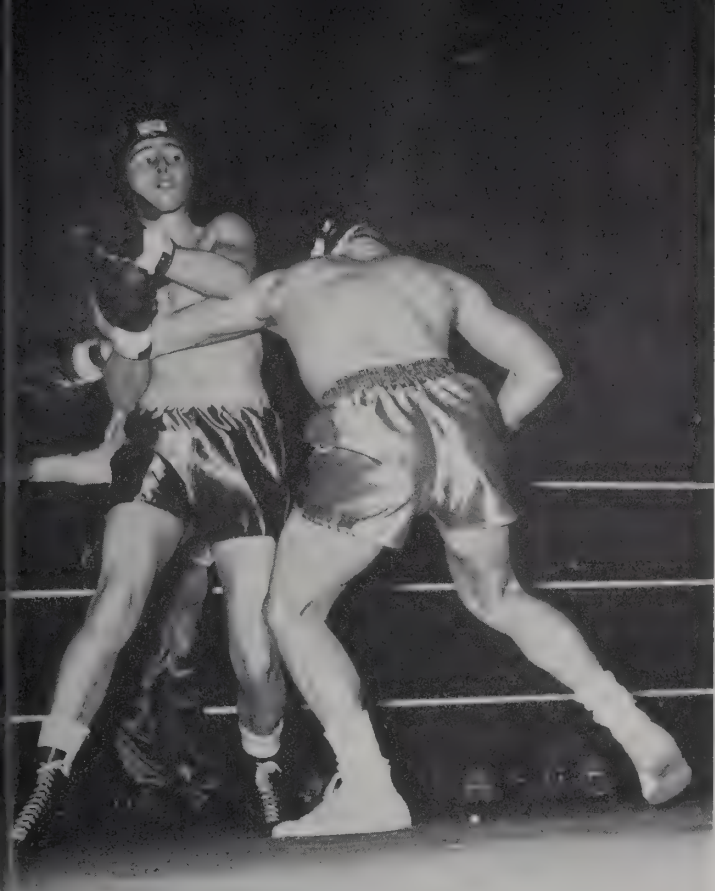

South Bend Mayor Voorde presents to Ed Ricciuti the small award symbolic of the Outstanding Fighter Award.

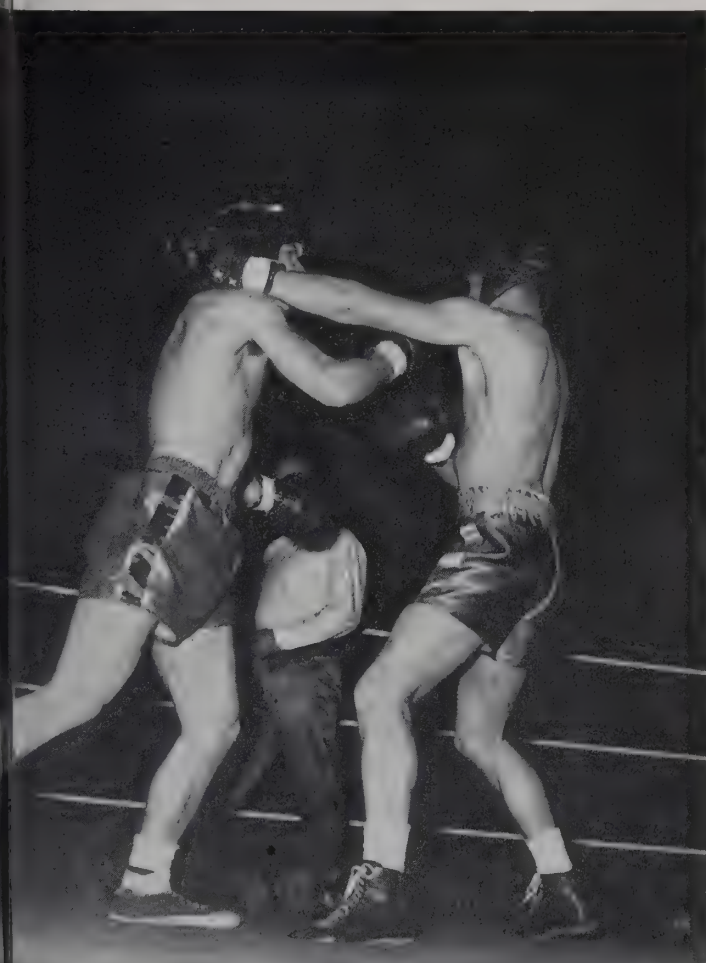

Bengal Promoter Terry Conway presents the Bouts' Man of the Year award to welterweight champion Carmen Basilio.

Col. Towner of the Notre Dame AFROTC presents an award to Mr. Napolitano for outstanding service to the Air Force.

The 1957 Notre Dame Fencing team, with Coach Walter Langford.

Fencing

Two Irish swordsmen practice to maintain the team's reputation as the most winning Notre Dame squad.

One of the least known athletic teams at Notre Dame has compiled the best overall record among the Irish teams of recent years. In 1955 they lost but three of their fifteen matches; in 1956 their season record showed fifteen wins against two losses; their 1957 record was marred only by a single loss to the University of Wisconsin. This outstanding record was achieved by Professor Walter Langford's fencing team.

The outlook at the beginning of Coach Langford's tenth season at the helm of the fencers was far from bright. Top men in all three fencing divisions, foil, epee, and sabre, had graduated. Only five lettermen were returning to form the nucleus of the team. But despite this lack of experienced material, hard work by the sophomore and junior fencers, together with the experience of the older members of the squad, merited their outstanding record and a very respectable finish in the N.C.A.A. championships.

The outstanding fencer for the Irish in 1957 was co-captain Denis Hemmerle. He won more than forty matches in the epee class and became the winningest fencer in Notre Dame history. Hemmerle also placed second in the N.C.A.A. individual championship. Other outstanding members of the team which brought Coach Langford's ten year record to 102 victories against only 25 defeats were Terry Laughlin and John Kearns in the epee, Joe Klein, Dick Fagon, and Art Price in the sabre division, and Pierre duVair, Joe Blazina, and Charles Duggan in the foil class.

The Gymnastics squad brother team, Bill and Jim Brunot perform on the parallel bars.

One of the oldest sports which takes its place on the Notre Dame athletic scene is gymnastics, which dates back to the ancient Greeks and Romans. The goal of the participants in this sport is quite basic: the development of the body. The sport requires the utmost of co-ordination and balance as well as daring and strength. Though not the most popular sport at Notre Dame, gymnastics is undoubtedly one of the most challenging.

The Notre Dame Gymnastics Club represents the Irish in inter-collegiate meets. The Club, which is operated largely at the expense of the individual members, was plagued by coaching troubles this year. Mr. John Fizer, an instructor in Modern Languages, coached the gymnasts in his spare time but he was not able to instruct the team as much as would be needed to mold a truly representative group. Thus the team was forced to cancel a number of meets. In the one intercollegiate meet in which they participated, the team dropped a decision to the University of Chicago, 60-36. Though the circumstances did limit their chances for competition, the members of the club nevertheless practiced their routine in the seven gymnastic events: Trampoline, Free Exercise, Side Horse, Hi-Bar, Parallel Bars, Flying Rings, and Tumbling. With a promising group of underclassmen in this year's group, the club may be able to get sufficient coaching next year to take a more active part in inter-collegiate gymnastics.

Irish matman Pivonka about to gain two points for a reversal.

With only three lettermen returning from last year's team, the Notre Dame wrestling squad managed to win only three matches on their ten match schedule. Though their record is not very impressive, Coach Tom Fallon's squad was competing in only their second official season as a varsity sport. Many of the younger members of the team showed great promise on occasions and should form a strong squad next season.

Leader of the 1957 squad was Captain Terry Crowley, a senior who competed in the 147 pound class. Terry lost only two of his ten matches and also gained the final round of the Wheaton tournament which was composed of wrestlers from eleven midwestern colleges. Two sophomores, Paul O'Connor and Jim Rankin, who wrestled in the 167 and 137 weight classes respectively, also were outstanding in the season's ten meets. The two other returning lettermen, 177 pound Jack Armstrong and Bob Pivonka, who grapples in the 137 pound slot, also performed well during the season. A number of Notre Dame's gridders, including Al Ecuyer, Bronko Nagurski, Dick Ciesielski, and Dick Loncar, battered Irish opponents in the heavier weight classes.

The high point of the season came in the match against the University of Chicago team, as the Irish grapplers shut out the Chicagoans by an overwhelming 34-0 score, as five of the eight Irish wrestlers pinned their opponents. The other victories of the season came at the expense of the Chicago Branch of the University of Illinois and in a tough match against the Findlay, Ohio, squad.

There is a seemingly small but very significant difference between the Notre Dame swimmers and most of the other minor sports at Notre Dame. The difference is that the official title of the finmen is the "Notre Dame Swimming Club" while most of the other minor sports are organized on a team basis. Thus the honor of meriting a Notre Dame Monogram is still out of the reach of the members of this group. Since the club finished their second official season with a respectable record of seven victories in twelve meets and a tie for second in the Midwest Invitational Meet, it is quite possible that official varsity status will be gained by the swimmers in the near future.

The swimmers paid little heed to Coach Gil Burdick's statement that the Notre Dame schedule was one of the toughest among Indiana schools, for they registered victories over Chicago, Ball State, Western Michigan and an upset over a tough Ohio University team. Their strong second place finish in the Midwest Invitational Meet was three places better than the 1956 team had scored in the ten school meet, which is regarded as one of the toughest in the midwest.

The "club" status of the team had its advantages this year as four freshmen became eligible for the intercollegiate competition. The outstanding swimmer among this quartet was freestyler Tom Kennedy, who scored well throughout the dual meet season and placed first in the fifty yard freestyle event in the Midwest meet. The other three freshman swimmers, Butterfly specialists Tom Moran and Dick Dunn and diver Paul Chestnut, will be counted on heavily in their next three years at Notre Dame.

A number of stars from last year's team provided the balance which enable the swimming club to attain their fine record this season. Club president Ed Healy swam in the breast stroke event and shared the diving duties with Chestnut. Other outstanding swimmers were Paul Kerwin, Dick Nagle, Captain Mike Connelly and Tom Londrigan in the free style events and Jim Garrity, Dick Katis, and George May, who competed in the breast stroke and butterfly events.

Interhall Tournies

Though the varsity teams draw most of the attention of the ordinary Notre Dame fan, a great deal of fight and determination, sometimes more than is seen on the varsity athletic fields, takes place in the interhall athletic system. Many of the athletes that participate in interhall sports were top-flight stars in high school sports so that the interhall meets and games show a high degree of athletic proficiency. The incentive of gaining honor for his own individual hall adds to the athlete's desire for success. These two ingredients, high quality teams and a will to win, have made the Notre Dame interhall athletic program a great success.

Though football has become the most important element of interhall athletics, many other sports are included in the program. Every hall is represented by at least one team in the basketball leagues. The Bengal Bouts, which are fought on an individual as well as a hall basis, drew more than 10,000 fans this year. Other sports which take place in interhall athletics are softball, swimming, and track. This varied schedule gives every student a chance to represent his hall in his own favorite sport.

The President's Cup, which was recently inaugurated to stimulate interest in interhall sports and to unify hall endeavors by presenting a goal which can be reached only by a common effort, has provided a further impetus for success in all sports fields. A point system is used to determine the yearly winner of this trophy. Points are given to the halls placing highest in the final standings of each sport. The hall with the highest number of points at the end of the school year has its name engraved on the trophy. Thus a complete, well-supported hall athletic program is needed to achieve the honor of winning this trophy.

Action like this makes the Interhall basketball games almost as enjoyable to watch as those of the varsity.

Imagineering

"Imagineering" was the theme of the 1957 Engineering Open House which included departmental displays, the auto show, an air show, a professional engineering demonstration of "Fire Magic," and the traditional chariot race.

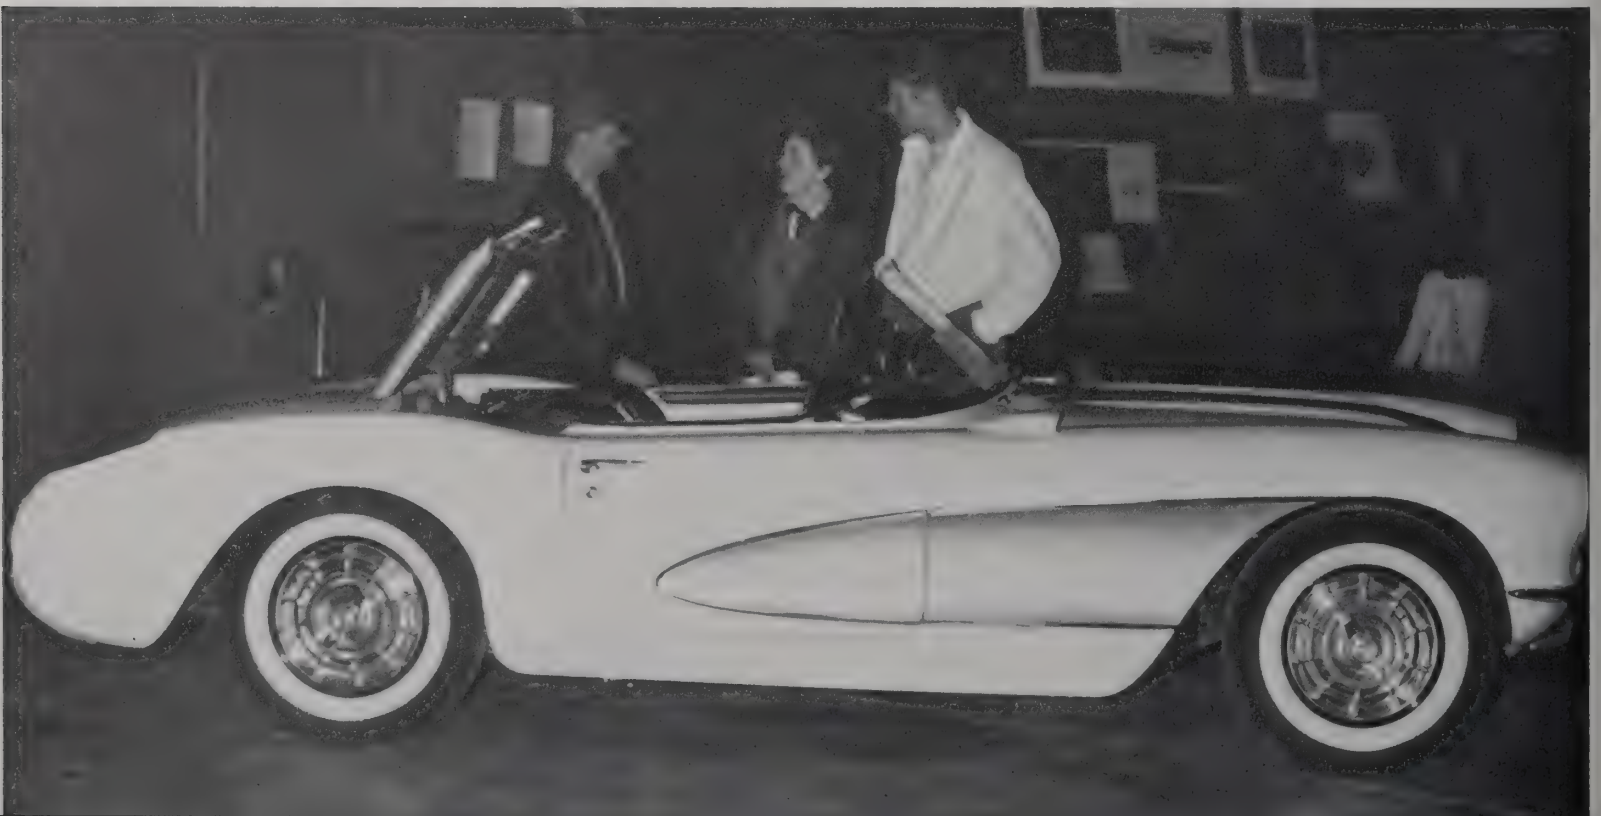

The Civil Engineers again won the outstanding departmental display, and also the outstanding individual display. Justin Grady and Bob Fabbro presented a highway construction model to take top honors. Other interesting displays included a model of the Vanguard Earth Satellite, an analog computer, a lie detector, plastics, an X-ray diffractometer, and an ash tray manufacturing process.

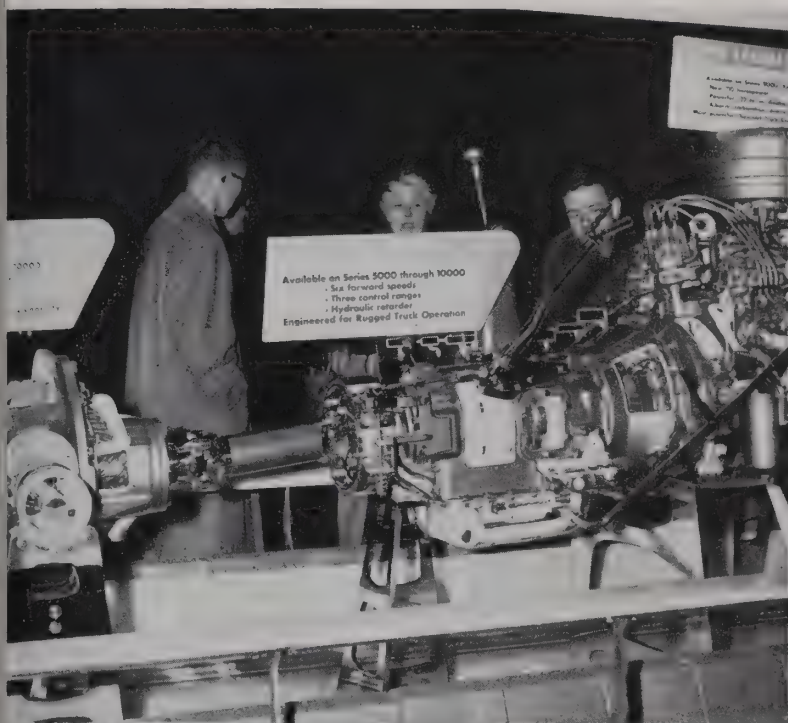

The auto show was presented in conjunction with the student displays and included the "Golden Rocket," Ford's "Mystere," Buick's "Wildcat III" and several other experimental "Detroit Dream Cars" along with a very complete line of foreign and domestic sports cars. Several static displays were also included in the auto show.

The Chariot race, won by the Architects, was held during the halftime of the Old Timers Game. The Mechanical Engineers were judged by Fr. Broestl to have the finest chariot.

Concert Band

The University of Notre Dame Concert Band is organized immediately after the football season when the Marching Band has ended. It is chosen by Mr. O'Brien, the Director, by means of auditions. The fifty-five members of the Band rehearse three times a week for four months in preparation for the Spring Concert Tour. During this time Mr. O'Brien chooses a program designed to appeal to every type of audience.

The tour is planned by Mr. O'Brien and the officers. The purpose of this twelve day tour is twofold: spreading the name of Notre Dame throughout the country, and entertaining a large group of people with good enjoyable band music. How well the Concert Band has served can be seen in the record of the past ten years, in which the Band has played in Canada and in every state East of the Rockies.

This year the Band, continuing that great tradition, played in sixteen cities in eight states of the Southeast. With a short break in the practice season, the Band first journeyed, with the Marching Band, to take part in the festivities of the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Bay City, Mich. There the Concert Band put on a concert and repeated the performance the next day at Flint.

With these two concerts for experience, the Band left the campus on Holy Saturday morning, playing an afternoon concert with Mount Mercy Glee Club in Pittsburgh on Easter Sunday.

Then followed twelve days and 4,000 miles of concerts in the southern part of the country, ending with the home concert in the Drill Hall back at Notre Dame.

Mr. Daniel H. Pedtke, Director

Glee Club

The Glee Club, under the command direction of Daniel H. Pedtke, found themselves constantly on the go to fill a long line of engagements throughout the year. But, with the fine cooperation and hard work of the Club's 85 members, each performance met with great success.

The Glee Club appeared in auditoriums, halls and theatres throughout the greater part of the midwest. The Club also performed in joint concerts with several girls colleges. In November they were Guest Entertainers at the annual Cardinal Stritch Charity Banquet given at Chicago's Conrad Hilton Hotel.

The crowning achievement of the Glee Club this year was met in their 5,000 mile Easter Tour of the western states. The most extensive and most elaborate undertaking in Notre Dame Glee Club history took them to Denver, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Hollywood, San Diego, Phoenix, Gallup, Amarillo, Tulsa, and St. Louis. The Tour also included many engagements such as a performance with singing stars Ann Blyth and Erin O'Brien in the Los Angeles Philharmonic Hall, a guest appearance on the nationally televised Bob Crosby Show, and a matinee concert at the Loma Portal Naval Training Center in San Diego.

On tour as well as on other trips throughout the year, the Glee Club forms a group of octets and quartets to sing at various banquets, dances, hospitals, pep rallies, and at many campus affairs.

Nero, and the reason Rome burned.

On a cold, bleak winter's night, space men, cowboys, and cave men were seen in the vicinity of the Erskine Country Club. The local citizenry, however, gave no call to arms; they had experienced this weird phenomena before. It was the Architects' annual Beaux Arts Ball. Inside the country club such celebrities as Napoleon, Cyrano, Deborah Kerr, and Yul Brynner could be seen waltzing and mamboing to the strains of maestra Ed Pistey. Later, when all had assembled for the Grand March, it looked like a scene from a Sunday night color TV spectacular. The judges had a hard but enjoyable task of selecting the most outstanding costumes. The unanimous decision was that the Architects and their dates had outdone themselves.

Queen Miss Ann Hurley

On May 17 Freshman couples danced in the shadows of a gigantic tea house, to the music of Jimmy McShane and his Chicagoland band. The LaFortune Student Center was decorated in a Japanese design which followed the theme of Tea House of the August Moon. The queen of this formal affair, Ann Hurley, a freshman at St. Mary's College from River Forest, Illinois, was crowned and reigned from her throne in the proverbial tea-house. The dance committee plan a complete weekend for the Frosh couples. On Saturday night they danced to the music of Ed Pistey at a barn dance on the Notre Dame farm. Sunday morning the traditional communion breakfast was held in the east dining hall. Father Theodore Hesburgh was the guest speaker at the breakfast. The Freshman Frolic weekend was the first major social activity of the class of 60 and from all indications it was a fine success.

The 1957 Junior Prom, presented by the class of '58, also was held too late to be in the 1957 DOME. The committee was chosen and proceeded to formulate plans for the best prom ever held. Their theme, Compositions In Spring, was timed exactly as the beginning of spring came with the dance. The weekend events that were planned in advance (including the reggie parties) promised to be most enjoyable.

The class of '58 hope to put an end to the jinx that it rains every prom weekend. With decoration chairman Jerry Shank and his architects working to the limit, the Student Center will be assured of a 'new look' for the dance.

The 1956-57 Social Commission had a two-fold purpose: to further develop the existing social structure, while introducing new and varied projects which would be of interest to both the "stag" line and to the "daters."

Therefore, in addition to the traditional Victory Dances and mixers, there were parties such as the "Roaring Twenties," Halloween Costume Ball, Christmas Charity Parties, "Cabaret," "Be My Valentine," "Let George Do It," and the "Continental." Furthermore, large-screen telecasts brought away football games to the Navy Drill Hall.

The Commission also played host to St. Mary of the Woods, inaugurated pre-concert coffees, Rathskellar Supper Clubs, and big-name concerts during Lent. Both Louie Armstrong and the Crewcuts were very successful.

Guess Who?

Coach Wilson

One of the most respected names in collegiate coaching circles is that of Alex Wilson, Notre Dame's veteran track coach. Wilson's entire life has been devoted to track. While running under the banner of Notre Dame, he was undefeated in the quarter and half mile events. He is still considered the greatest middle-distance runner in Notre Dame's history.

Though he competed for his native Canada in the 1928 Olympics, his greatest individual year in active competition was 1932. That memorable year saw Alex Wilson set a national indoor record of :49.3 in the 440, as well as the A.A.U. 600 yard championship and the 600 yard title in the Milrose Games in New York. Later in the year Wilson again competed in the Olympics, where he won individual medals in two races, finishing second in the 800 meter run and third in the 400 meter race.

Soon after the close of the 1932 Olympics, Wilson accepted the position of head track coach at Loyola University in Chicago. He coached at Loyola until 1950 when he returned to guide the trackmen at his alma mater. Since his return to Notre Dame, Coach Wilson has had extraordinary success. With veterans like Aubrey Lewis, Jack Cote, Bill Keegan, Joe Foreman, and Dale Vandenburg returning to the 1957 team, Wilson's success as one of the country's top track coaches was again showed by the many victories compiled by the Irish cindermen.

Coach Wilson starts the runners in a team try-out, clocks the finish and then explains how they should have paced the run.

Coach Alex Wilson and the 1957 Notre Dame Indoor and Outdoor Track Squad.

Track - 1957

Coach Alex Wilson again came up with a fine, well-balanced track team this year in his seventh season as Irish coach.

Paced by co-captains Bill Keegan and Mike Kauffman, the thin-clads ran in seven dual meets, as well as in a number of relays and special events.

The regular season of dual meets saw the Irish meeting Purdue, Marquette and Indiana indoors, and Pittsburgh, Missouri, Michigan State and Army outdoors. This year was the first time Notre Dame has ever run against Army, and the series will be continued at West Point next year.

Balance was the key to the Irish track successes this year. Though the team had few record-setters, they were outstanding enough in nearly all the events to present a first place threat in each of them.

The mile relay team, with Keegan, Joe Foreman, Aubrey Lewis, Dale Vandenberg, and Barclay Ewart as an alternate, performed exceptionally well, their best indoor time being 3:19.3.

The team was the best collegiate mile relay team in the Midwest, and second only to Villanova in the country. They ran in relay meets at Cleveland, Michigan State, Chicago, Hamilton, Ontario, Austin, Texas, Ohio State, Drake, and the Milwaukee Journal Games, as well as in the regular dual meets, the indoor and outdoor Central Collegiates, and the Indiana state meet.

On the indoor scene, the 60 yard dash saw Lewis, Frank Hall, and Don Haney setting the pace. Lewis also ran in the 60 yard low hurdles along with Booker Rice and Steve Dornbach. Rice, Dornbach, and Ron Parker were the mainstays of the 60 yard high hurdles.

Keegan and Foreman were the 1-2 punch of the 440 yard dash men, though Al Porter, ordinarily a half-miler, sometimes competed in the event. All three of them were clocked at under 50 seconds indoors, and Foreman, who ran for the Canadian Olympic team at Melbourne last summer, had the best indoor time of 49.4.

In the half-mile, Vandenberg, Porter, Marty Clynes and Mike O'Connor made up the field, while in the mile, Dick DiCamillo, Ed Monnelly, and Bill Newell ran for the Irish. Both Vandenberg and DiCamillo came close to setting new field house records in their events during the indoor season.

The two mile featured Mike Haverly, Neil Wallace, Bob Huetz, and Stan Wegrzynowicz.

In the field events, Jack Cote was Coach Wilson's "Jack-of-all-trades," competing in the broad jump, pole vault, and high jump. Cote's best indoor performance was a broad jump of 23'11" at Indiana.

Other pole-vaulters included Jim Redmond and John Stevenson; broad jumpers were Lou Pilliod and Don Faley; and Mike Kearns was the other Irish high jumper.

Co-captain Kauffman threw both the shot and the discus, while George Chappell and Hal Blakesley also competed in these events—Chappell in the shot and Blakesley in the discus. Lewis, Mike Morando and Sean Cassidy were the javelin throwers for the Irish.

Coach Wilson has bright hopes for next year, with many returning lettermen and several outstanding freshman prospects coming up. Ron Gregory, a miler; Andy Crawford, a half-miler; and Jerry Wilkes, a shot putter, are all expected to give a big boost to next year's squad as sophomores.

Coach Kline

Clarence J. (Jake) Kline is as much a part of the Notre Dame baseball scene as the Cartier Field diamond itself. This past season was his 24th at the helm of the Irish nine. His teams have been very successful in the years since he took over the position from the late George F. Keogan. His first 23 seasons brought the Irish 253 victories, 183 losses, and 3 ties. Two of his teams, including last year's squad, reached the N.C.A.A. playoffs. His 1956 N.C.A.A. team also produced Notre Dame's first baseball All-American, Elmer Kohorst.

Coach Kline was a triple-monogram winner when he played for the Irish in 1915, 1916, and 1917. He hit well over .300 each season while playing at third base. Jake's greatest thrill as a collegiate player came as a junior in a 14-6 victory over the University of Michigan. In this game he smashed three home runs and barely missed a fourth by inches.

After graduation, Jake turned down a big league offer in order that he might serve in the United States Infantry during World War I. He played on and managed minor league clubs in Minnesota, California and Utah after his discharge from the service. In 1931 Kline returned to Notre Dame to coach the freshman baseball team and he assumed his present position three years later.

Whether at the games or at practice Coach Jake Kline watches and urges his charges to do greater things.

Giavvantano, J. Carideo, E. Duffy, P. Sopko.

Baseball—1957

The prospects for coach Jake Kline and his Irish "nine" appeared promising as Notre Dame looked with eagerness towards its 1957 schedule of 21 games.

Kline, beginning his 24th season as head baseball coach, listed pitching as holding the major key to this year's success. Returning monogram winners, seniors Tom Bujnowski, Paul Besser, John Hammett and juniors Charlie Symeon and Henry Bretting form the nucleus of Kline's 16-man staff of candidates. Bujnowski was the workhorse of the 1956 staff when he toiled 78 innings, winning five games and losing three. Symeon hurled 52 innings last season and compiled a three and three record. Bretting worked in 12 innings and won two and lost one. Besser and Hammett saw limited action in relief roles. Juniors Ron Jebavy and Ron Smessaert and sophomore hopefuls Jack Connors, Ken Cavanaugh, Dick Donovan, John Porgorzelski, John Casagrade, Dick Amaral, Joe Hogan, Tom Marquez, and Frank Kennedy round out the staff.

In catcher Elmer Kohorst, Kline has one of the finest players in Notre Dame history. Last year Kohorst led the Irish in hitting with a mark of .329, and was also the leader in total hits, home runs, and runs batted in with 21. For his offensive and defensive ability Kohorst was named on the college All-American baseball team of 1956, the first time a Notre Dame player has been honored with that award. Sophomore

John Merlock is the number two receiver behind co-captain Kohorst.

Kline can look to his infield with confidence with returning regulars co-captain Jim Cusack at first base, Ed Hurley at second, and Jim Carideo at shortstop. Cusack's batting averages of .342 and .316 in the last two years speak for themselves in evaluating his offensive power. Hurley and Carideo have given the Irish a slick, smooth working double play combination for the past two seasons. Hurley is hoping to improve on his past averages of .243 and .249. Carideo hit .257 and .283 the past two years. Seniors Steve Johnson and Roger Allan, and junior Jim Morris are battling it out for control of third base. All are capable fielders but are untried at the plate.

With the loss of last year's captain, Dan Nespo, and the shift of Jim Cusack to first base, Coach Kline faces the problem of forming an outfield combination around left fielder Bob Senecal who hit a weak .200 last season. Sophomore Gene Duffy appears to have sewed up the center field spot with his speed and defensive prowess. Bud Ahern, Bill Reisert, Paul Sopko, and Bob Giarrantano are fighting it out for the right field position.

Coach Kline, assisted by Jim Gibbons, a pitcher-outfielder on the Irish baseball teams from 1950-53, hope to lead the team into the NCAA tournament in June.

The Season

Jim Cusack, a returning letterman and a senior, was firmly stationed at first base for the 1957 season.

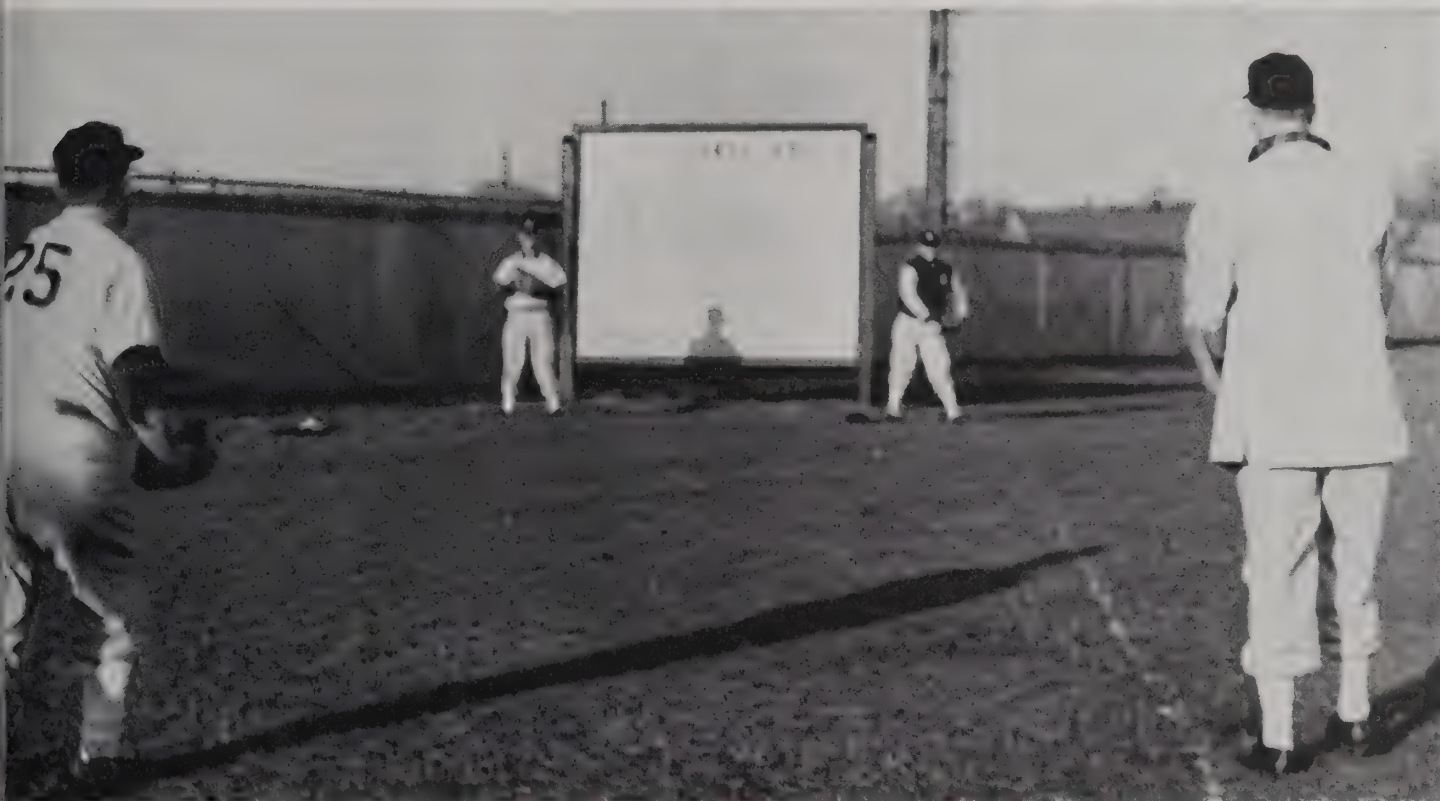

Batting practice is one of the most important phases of the preparation for the twenty-one game schedule.

"Hustle, move out there." Coach Jake Kline is yelling it up for the Irish baseballers.

Returning lettermen Bob Senecal and Jim Cusack show how they look to the opposing moundman.

Warm-up is essential to all players especially the pitchers.

Coach Kline supervises infield practice on Cartier Field.

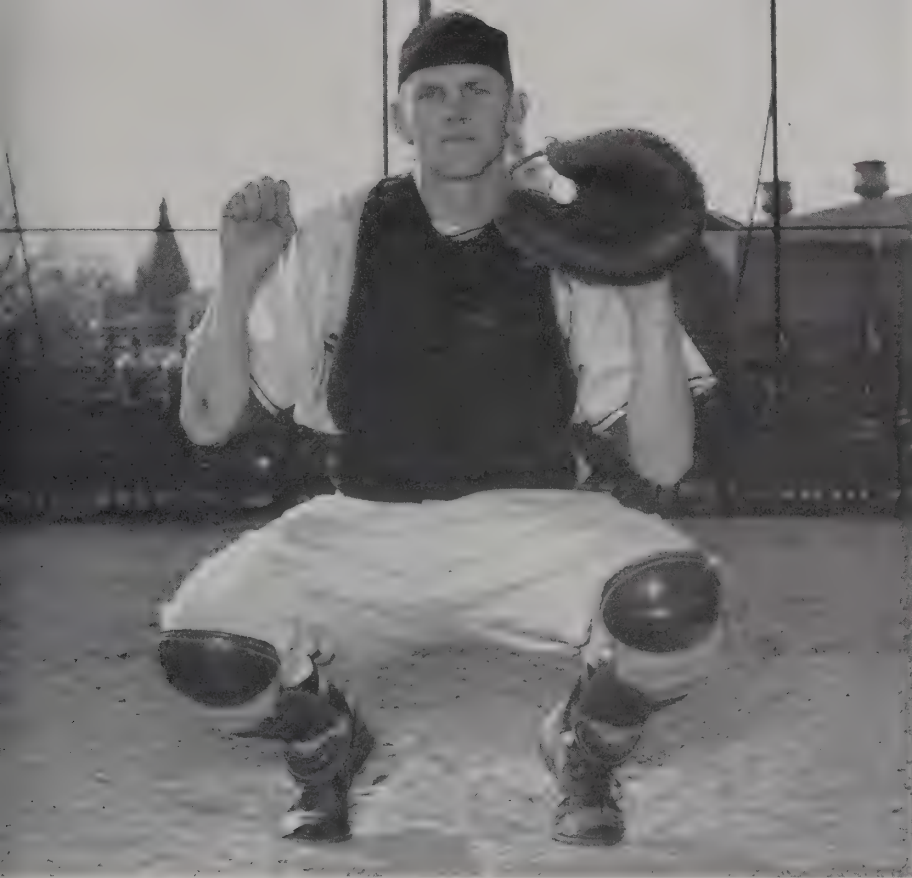

Jim Carideo, shortstop, and Ed Hurley, second base, as seniors played their third year as the Irish "short to second" combination.

Tom Bujnowski, a strong-armed righthander, was again the Irish workhorse on the mound.

The pitcher, catcher and the batter are all working together to provide the spectator with an interesting afternoon of the "American pastime."

Co-Captain Elmer Kohorst, a senior, won first-team All-American honors in 1956 and promises not only to be the iron man behind the plate but also to be a handy man with the bat.

Tennis Team

With one of the most balanced teams in recent years, Coach Thomas Fallon, in his first year as Notre Dame mentor succeeding Charles Sampson, had high hopes that the 1957 edition of the Irish tennis squad would be better than last year's which recorded seven wins, eight defeats and one tie. Unmarked by graduation, the Irish netmen had five returning monogram winners plus five promising sophomores from last year's freshman team to build upon.

Heading the list of promising performers was the 1956 captain, Harry Smith, a senior and two sophomore netmen, Maxwell Brown, Eastern Collegiate Freshman Champion, and Ronald Schoenberg who placed in the National Boys' Singles Tournament. Jim Rich, 1957 captain, Dean Richards and Tom Guilfoile, all seniors, and Chuck Vanoncini, a junior, filled out the group of returning lettermen. Three other sophomores, Hector Cabello, Sergio Garza, and Charles Stephens battled with junior Tony Gonzalez for the remaining team positions.

Coach Fallon and the team did not have to worry concerning the competition they had to face. Among the teams they had to face were five Big Ten rivals, three schools from the tennis minded South and Kalamazoo, a perennial collegiate tennis power.

Golf Team

This year marked the twenty-eighth season of intercollegiate golf at the University of Notre Dame, and the twenty-fourth year for Father Holderith, C.S.C., the oldest coach from point of length of service, here at the University. This year's team could benefit greatly from the five returning monogram juniors, all of whom gained valuable experience in helping last year's team compile a fine 9-4 record and sixth place finish in the NCAA tourney, only six points behind the champions and qualified four men for match play.

Joe Grace, Charles Thurn, (co-captains), Lloyd Syron, and Thomas Garside will more than likely hold down the top four positions in that order this season. The schedule, a grueling fifteen meet pace, includes Purdue University, last year's NCAA runner-up. The competition for the year will end at the NCAA tournament at Broadmoor Country Club in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Father Hesburgh speaks to the Freshmen during their first retreat as students of the University of Notre Dame.

The President

June graduation will see the fifth class to leave the University since the appointment of The Reverend Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., as its President. This year marks the greatest academic and physical expansion in the school's history.

Father Hesburgh, a native of Syracuse, New York, obtained his Bachelor of Philosophy degree from the Gregorian University in Rome in 1939, and was ordained in the Congregation of the Holy Cross in 1943. Two years later he received his Doctorate of Sacred Theology from the Catholic University in Washington. Before his appointment to the presidency he served in the Religion Department and in the Administration.

Besides his duties as President of the University, he has found time to write three books and many pamphlets. He is now serving on the National Science Board, and served last fall as the representative of His Holiness Pope Pius XII to the United Nations.

In his effort to raise the academic standing of the University he has instituted many new programs. Among them are the new Arts and Letters College Program which has been in effect for three years and the Distinguished Professor's Program by which he plans to bring the scholastic notables of the world to the campus.

Reverend Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C.
President of the University of Notre Dame

Vice-Presidents

Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, C.S.C., Executive Vice President and Chairman of the Faculty Board in Control of Athletics, is in charge of the Administrative branch of the University. His primary responsibility is to coordinate the work of the different administrative officers of the University.

Rev. Philip S. Moore, C.S.C., is in charge of Academic Affairs at the University. It is his responsibility to see that the primary function of Notre Dame—education of the Christian Gentleman—is carried out in the best way.

Rev. Jerome J. Wilson, C.S.C., Vice President in charge of Business Affairs, is the man who takes care of the financial and business transactions that constantly come up in a multi-million dollar institution. He must also see that the necessary finances are available for any necessity on campus.

Rev. James E. Norton, C.S.C., Vice President in charge of Student Affairs, is the all-important bridge between the students and the Administration. He sees that all student affairs are carried out in an orderly manner and are in the best interest of the student.

As is the case in any large corporation, the University is confronted several times daily with a multitude of problems ranging from maintenance of the physical plant to the dissemination of information concerning its activities to the various news outlets.

Under the vice-presidents are a number of men who make possible Notre Dame's success as a University. They assist the higher administration officers in their work and development of the school.

The University can be compared in size to a moderately large business, and many of these men are connected with the business affairs of the school. Others are concerned with the maintenance of the buildings and grounds of the University, which are spread over 1700 acres. The academic field is the interest of others, who assure Notre Dame's students the best education that the University can give.

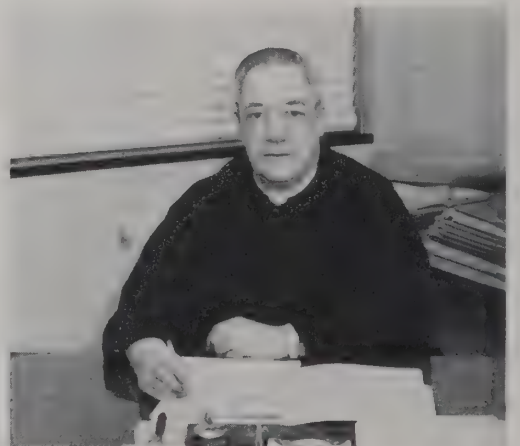

While it is a multi-million dollar business with its cares about financial statements and public relations, Notre Dame is primarily concerned with the education of the individual student.

Arts & Letters

Rev. Charles E. Sheedy, C.S.C.

The Dean

The recent advancement of Notre Dame in the field of education has been keynoted by the expansion and revision accomplished in its College of Arts and Letters. The new program of liberal education, now in its third year, has come to influence the future of the entire University.

The purpose of this liberal education is practical, for liberal education aims at the perfecting of the individual human intelligence. It is a constant practice, developing and sensitizing the intellect until it is capable of proper judgment of all that comes before it. This education deals with the mind alone: it is concerned with the individual student's alert and thorough understanding of the world in which he lives and of himself as part of that world. In addition to these values, it provides the natural and human understanding which is, particularly in our society, basic and essential to any subsequent specialized, technical or vocational studies.

Thus the College of Arts and Letters here at Notre Dame has taken its rightful place at the head of the other colleges of the University.

Assistant Dean Devere T. Plunkett

Assistant Dean

Devere T. Plunkett graduated from Notre Dame in 1930, received his A.M. in 1936, and has since been teaching history students at the university. Mr. Plunkett was appointed Assistant Dean in the College of Arts and Letters four years ago, but he continues to leave his office on the main floor of O'Shaughnessy Hall daily, to serve as an Associate Professor of History.

Commerce

Dean James W. Culliton

The Dean

Following the lead of the College of Arts and Letters, the College of Commerce has undertaken a program in the past few years which has as its purpose to educate the Christian mind in the true sense of the word. This objective is to tie in with a process which will produce an educated man who is at the same time versed in the ways of the changing American business world.

One of the few unchanging characteristics of American business is the certainty of change. One aspect of change is growth. And the College of Commerce has grown: from an enrollment of six students in a business course first offered in 1913, to more than 300 when the separate College of Commerce was established in 1920, to more than 1,400 today.

Along with this growth in numbers has come the realization that certain adjustments are necessary in the field of education, and the College of Commerce is today striving to make such adjustments so that a student emerging from this college will have a sound foundation in the Christian ideals of business and a wide "cultural" background, to enable him to be both an exemplary Catholic and a businessman of high intellectual and professional competence.

College of Engineering

The Dean

Karl E. Schoenherr, Dean.

The College of Engineering which was established here at Notre Dame in 1897 has proven itself worthy in the true sense of the word in the task of producing high grade engineers over the years. In the past few years, in following with the general pattern for the entire university, it has been recognized that a genuine liberal program of education is needed for the College of Engineering, as well as the other colleges of the university. To accomplish this, a study has been made, and in the next few years a revised truly liberal curriculum will be realized.

At the present time the College of Engineering is recognized as one of the outstanding engineering colleges in the country. It consists of seven departments including Metallurgy and Architecture.

Modern Chemistry and Physics laboratories, a machine shop, an electronics lab and a supersonic wind tunnel plus a variety of courses are available to the engineering student and covers all phases of the engineering field.

Thus Notre Dame engineers will not only be well versed in scientific knowledge, but will also be truly aware of their proper role in life.

The Engineering Advisory Council: B. Lynch, J. Rossi, J. Burlage, T. Schriber, J. Kirchner, J. Feller, T. Dieter, T. Fogarty, D. Immomen, T. Martin, R. Johnson, D. McCrory, J. McLaughlin, R. Norris, J. Scriba, and P. Boyd.

Assistant Dean

Assistant Dean of Engineering, Raymond J. Schubmehl, joined the Notre Dame faculty in 1921. His entire career has been spent under the Dome, teaching Engineering students. He has held his present position as Assistant Dean for over ten years. Between the turmoil of pre-registration and the endless hours of consultation sessions, Mr. Schubmehl instructs students in Engineering Problems and Engineering Mechanics.

Science

Dean Lawrence H. Baldinger

Dean College of Science

Prior to 1865 the various science courses had been taught as a part of the program in Arts and Letters. In that year the College of Science was founded, and from then until the present it has shown a steady and progressive growth. Gradually, more and more courses have been added to the curriculum in order to keep stride with new scientific discoveries and the trend toward specialization.

Along with this separation however, has come the realization that specialization in itself is not now, and never will be adequate if the goal of Notre Dame, the education of Christian leaders, is to be accomplished. Thus it is the hope of this university that the separation, while beneficial in many ways, has not been at the expense of comprehensive liberal education. To insure this the students in the College of Science are required to take several courses still on the Arts and Letters roster.

For it is realized that to exert a worthwhile influence on his fellow men, a scientist should not only be technically capable, but also literate, self-confident, personable, and virtuous.

Law

Mr. Joseph O'Meara, Dean.

The Dean

As is the case with any great field of learning, there are differences of approach and outlook among legal scholars that must necessarily be reflected in their teaching. At Notre Dame, the approach is to look at law always in the light of its goal, which is justice, and to look at justice through the eyes of an informed Catholic Christianity.

Our legal system is not a relic but a heritage; in it are embodied not so much the ordinances of the past as the hopes and aspirations of living men. It is for each succeeding generation to set its mark on it, to modify yesterday's solution by today's experience, yesterday's aspirations by today's insight.

The formal deposit of our law is to be found in a bewildering mass of judicial decisions from courts all over the world, together with an ever increasing number of highly detailed statutes which, for all their proliferation, attempt no more than to cover specific minor fragments of the whole. To avoid being lost in this wealth of material, it is always necessary to remember that each statute or decision represents someone's attempt to achieve justice within the framework of our system, in accordance with his own conscience and in the context of a particular situation. His attempt, for good or ill, remains with us, but so does his goal. In the law's never ending process of making justice live and work, what is good is gradually added to, what is bad or impractical is gradually discarded. Thus our legal system develops through a continual dialogue between what is and what ought to be. Notre Dame, therefore, insists that the student be taught to approach legal problems not only on the basis of a careful application of statute and precedent, but also on the basis of an equally careful application of the insights provided by other disciplines, especially the social sciences and, above all, moral philosophy.

Assistant Dean

Mr. John J. Broderick Jr., Assistant Dean of the College of Law, came to Notre Dame from New York City in 1947. He completed his undergraduate work at Washington and Lee, and received his L.L.B. at St. John's Law School, in Brooklyn. As a member of the Bar Association, Mr. Broderick practiced law in New York, until 1942. Presently, nine hours of the Assistant Dean's week are spent instructing students of Labor Law, and Evidence.

Traditionally the governmental, service, and social organization of the law student body is the Student Law Association.

Through periodic town meetings, but primarily through its Executive Board, composed of the four officers and three class representatives, the Association carries on its myriad functions. This interim board convenes weekly to make policy and receive progress reports from special committees.

Liaison between the student body and the administration is one of the chief duties of the Association. Old stand-bys on the social calendar are the law balls each semester, the Law Honor Banquet in the spring, and smokers. Tennis, golf, handball, and basketball tourneys are sponsored yearly. SLA men work with the administration on such matters as class scheduling and placement. As a member of the American Law Student Association, SLA often places several of its members on national committees in that organization.

Mock court room experience is provided for the student.

Graduate School

Although the Graduate School is the least known of the major divisions of the University, it is rapidly growing in importance. The four divisions of the graduate school are Arts and Letters, Social Science, Science, and Engineering. A doctor's degree is offered in fourteen departments, and a master's in twenty-six. This, in turn, has strengthened the undergraduate colleges, since the staff, the libraries, and the laboratory facilities necessary for graduate work have their influence, direct and indirect, upon the undergraduate. Most of the graduate students during the regular academic year are preparing for careers as college or university teachers or as research scientists in industrial or government laboratories. Few people know that during the past few years twice as many Ph.D.'s were awarded in chemistry as B.S. degrees in the same field.

The summer session is largely a Graduate School operation. In the summer of 1956, there were nearly 1200 students enrolled in the Graduate School, while slightly more than 500 students were enrolled in the undergraduate school. Almost 800 Sisters from all parts of the country attended the Graduate School Summer School Session, gaining further knowledge to pass on to their students. Thus the Graduate School serves its present students well, and exerts a wide influence on prospective Notre Dame students.

Rev. A. L. Gabriel, O. Praem, director of the Mediaeval Institute at the University, receives the French award of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor from Jean Strauss, French consul general in Chicago. Father Hesburgh, C.S.C., looks on at the presentation which was made in recognition of Father Gabriel's work in the interest of French-Hungarian and French-American friendship.

The Medieval Institute offers special training on a graduate level to students interested in the life, thought, and culture of the Middle Ages. The Institute is especially dedicated to a study of education in medieval times, and is the only institution in the United States which conducts systematic research on this subject.

To further develop its research and study, the Medieval Institute has its own library containing many rare books, manuscripts, original engravings, photostats, reproductions of miniatures, and periodicals, as well as a fine microfilm collection of manuscripts.

Reverend Asrik L. Gabriel, O. Praem, is Director of the Institute, and Reverend Joseph N. Garvin, C.S.C., is Assistant Director. The idea of setting up such a department of studies was first conceived by Reverend Philip S. Moore, C.S.C., in 1933; Reverend J. Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C., former president of the University, established the Institute in 1946. A Masters and Doctorate in Medieval Studies has been offered since 1952.

The Institute publishes two periodicals regularly, the most well-known one being Texts and Studies in the History of Medieval Education. Several lectures are also sponsored annually by the Institute.

Army

R. O. T. C.

Colonel Edwin W. Grenelle, USA

In 1858 a company known as the Notre Dame Continental Cadets represented the University in the Civil War. The number of men in this organization has never been determined, but both its existence and its contribution to the war effort are matters of record.

In 1910 President Taft's Secretary of War sent a retired Army Officer, Captain Stogsdall, and his assistant to Notre Dame to supervise its program of military training. Thus, when the United States entered World War I, a large percentage of the student body was already prepared to serve its country. For a short time in 1918 a unit of the Students' Army Training Corps was established under Captain William Murray, USA, but was disbanded with the cessation of hostilities. A total of 2,200 Notre Dame men served in World War I, and forty-six of these were killed in action.

The present Army organization at Notre Dame dates back to 1951, when an ROTC Engineer Unit was established here. Whereas many schools offer ROTC graduates a commission in only one particular branch of the Army, Notre Dame ROTC men have the privilege of applying for any branch, from Infantry to Medical Corps.

Navy

R. O. T. C.

The United States Navy has had a training unit at Notre Dame since 1941. From its original status as an NROTC Unit, it was organized as a Midshipmen's School under the wartime V-12 Program in 1943. In 1947 Notre Dame was again granted an NROTC Unit, one of the nation's fifty-two colleges and universities maintaining such a program, designed to supplement the Naval Academy as a source of career officers.

Unlike the Army and Air Force programs, the NROTC provides for two types of students. The first of these are known as Regulars, and are selected on a strictly competitive basis from the country as a whole. These men have their tuition and books paid for by the government, and receive an additional stipend of $600 annually. During their four years in college they hold the rank of midshipman, and are required to undergo three, six week periods of summer training. The second type are known as Contracts, and are selected by the Professor of Naval Science from those students already admitted to the University. These men receive no financial benefits, and attend only one session of summer training.

The NROTC Unit at Notre Dame is one of the largest in the country in terms of enrollment. Students prepare for commissioning by taking such courses as naval gunnery, engineering, and navigation, supplemented by courses in naval orientation, leadership, and military justice.

Air Force R.O.T.C.

The United States Air Force is an essential component of the military team which guards not only the security of our own country, but that of the whole world as well. In order to shoulder the burdens of this important position, the Air Force is equipped with the best aircraft and machinery that technology can develop. However, no equipment can be of any value without the qualified personnel to run it. Providing such physically and intellectually capable personnel is the job of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps.

Since the Air Force has only recently begun its own military academy, it must rely on the AFROTC for eighty per cent of its commissioned officers, and the Notre Dame unit provides a considerable share of them. Since its inception here in 1947, the AFROTC has commissioned some four hundred and twenty-nine 2nd Lieutenants. These men undergo four years of training in leadership and other more technical subjects to equip them for the duties and responsibilities they will assume upon graduation. Others revert to reserve status, but continue to contribute to their country's strength in their individual fields of endeavor.

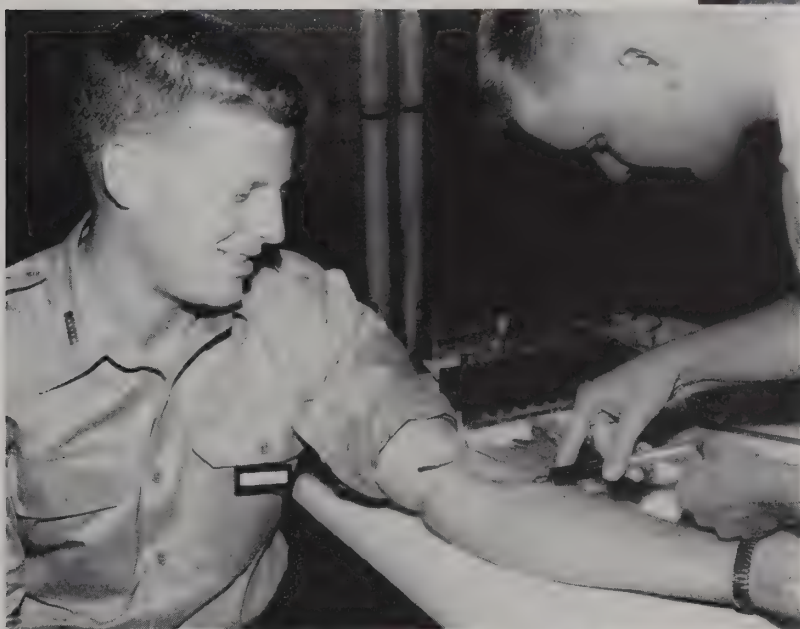

J. Sullivan, J. Ghurst, E. Brisch, R. O'Neil, D. Smith, G. Bentivenga, A. Reichert, R. Miller, T. Jacobs, T. Byone, B. Lyons, T. Brennan, F. Hennessey, J. Thomas, J. Fluhr.

The usual Notre Dame odds: four to one.

S. Sipes receives instruction on a familiar subject: a helmet.

T. McNeal undergoes the complete physical.

B. Lyons, D. Noon, J. Kiwus, N. Lizzio, R. Miller, T. Mariani, J. Redmond, wait in line for some of that famous Air Force chow.

1957 DOME AWARDS

Traditionally the highest student award at the University, each year the DOME presents two to four awards to the outstanding students in the graduating class.

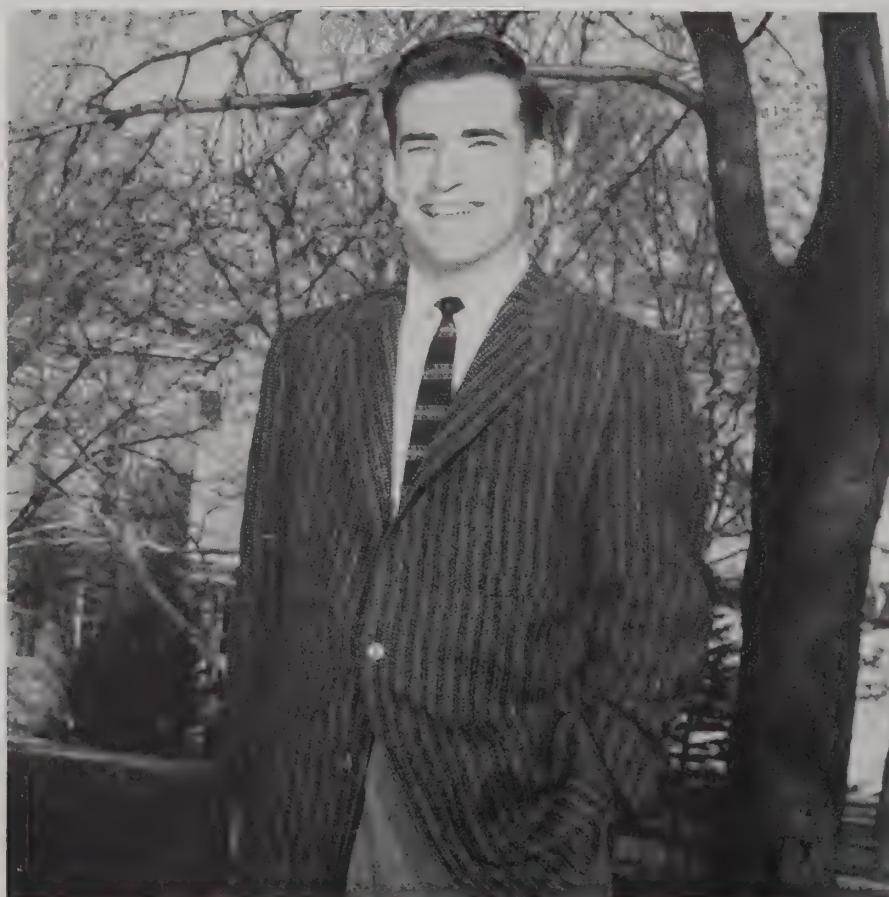

The DOME Award is given not only for extra-curricular activities or for scholastic excellence, but on a basis of character and ability as well. The spiritual, academic, and extra-curricular activities of a number of students are reviewed and the awards are made to those who most nearly measure up to the ideal of the true Christian gentleman and Notre Dame man.

The final selections are made by an all-Junior board, representing the most prominent campus organizations, with the editor of the DOME presiding as non-voting chairman.

The men pictured on these two pages are to be congratulated for attaining the highest honor which one student can give to another at this University. A debt of gratitude is owed to them by both present and future students of the University for their contributions to the Notre Dame way of life. Lastly, it must be realized that the accounts given here of their qualifications for these awards can only approximate their true worth to the school of Our Lady.

To these men go the warmest congratulations of the editors of the 1957 DOME.

Bob Kiley

Bob Kiley, a member of the Program for Administrators in the College of Commerce is from Minneapolis, Minnesota. As Commerce Senator, Bob represented his college in the Student Senate, and was elected one of four Outstanding Senators of 1956-57. Bob was elected this fall to "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges." He served as Ohio-Indiana Regional President of N.S.A., and as a member of the National Executive Committee of this organization. He was also a member of the Commerce Activities Council, and acted as a Y.C.S. group leader. Bob is a magna cum laude graduate, and plans to attend Stanford Law School.

Paul Krapp, a summa cum laude graduate in chemistry, was president of the Y.C.S., a member of the Blue Circle Honor Society, and parliamentarian of the Student Senate. Paul was Chairman of the American Chemical Society Chapter of Notre Dame, and Chairman of the Notre Dame delegation to the N.S.A. summer congress in Chicago. While attending the University on a chemistry scholarship, Paul amassed a 95.1 average, ranking him first in the graduating class from the College of Science. Paul's outstanding work and numerous activities earned for him a place in "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges, 1957," and the American Institute of Chemists Medal.

After graduation, Paul will attend the University of Wisconsin on a National Science Foundation Predoctoral Fellowship.

Paul Krapp

Pat Logan, a general science major from Dayton, Ohio, was Student Body President. Having won a N.R.O.T.C. regular scholarship at the outset of his college career, Pat went on to become a member of the Blue Circle Honor Society, social commissioner of the Student Senate, and Chairman of the Ohio-Indiana Region of the N.S.A. In addition to being awarded membership in "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges, 1957," Pat received honorable mention for the "Outstanding Catholic Youth of the Year Award," the Chicago Tribune gold medal for the outstanding naval midshipman in his sophomore year, and the Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell Award.

Pat, who graduated with magna cum laude honors, will enter the Navy for three years after which he plans to attend medical school.

Pat Logan

Who's Who

"Who's Who" is a national Intercollegiate Honor Society established to honor those men who best represent their university in terms of scholarship, extra-curricula activity, and qualities of leadership. At the start of each school year, deans, department heads, and the presidents of leading campus organizations choose an outstanding Junior representative to work on a selection committee. Nominations are then open to the student body, and a landslide of names and activities then descends upon the committee, each member of which votes on every person submitted. Those with the highest totals are sent to the National Judging Board which reviews the qualifications and makes the final selections. The remaining students are then notified of their final acceptance and at a dinner given in the spring, receive the plaques commemorating their enrollment in the national society.

St. Thomas More Awards

Each year three to five seniors are honored by YCS in being selected to receive the Saint Thomas More Award. The award is appropriately named after Saint Thomas More because of all laymen he more fittingly represents the ideal Christian Humanism. A graduate from the University, he exemplified lay leadership in being a successful lawyer, representative of the people, statesman, a man of letters, and a martyr to Christian principle.

A committee of six juniors, belonging to the different apostolic organizations of the campus, nominates the candidates for this award. From these candidates, four were chosen by a Selection Board of faculty moderators, for their contribution to the spiritual and intellectual life of the campus, their achievement in the student apostolate, their unselfish leadership.

YCS

Officers: Fr. Putz, Moderator; P. Krapp, Pres.; T. Kristopeit, College Vice-Pres.; T. Fogarty, College Vice-Pres.; F. Feigl, College Vice-Pres.; J. Hayward, Secretary; R. Babcock, College Vice-Pres.

The Young Christian Students is a specialized Catholic Action movement composed of students who, from a deep conviction of their obligation as members of a lay apostolate, consider student life and student problems to better serve and further develop the student community. YCS operates through small group action. All student life—academic, social, and spiritual—is area for the apostolate.

This year a total of 15 groups were located in each of the freshman and sophomore halls and undergraduate colleges. They engaged in such activities as the new Student Tutoring Service, closed student retreats on campus, Leo XIII Lecture Series, freshman hall activities prior to elections, and the St. Thomas More Awards.

Members: standing: J. Merz, T. Fogarty, J. Kennedy, P. Krapp, V. Carroll, M. Halloran, J. Ferrone, E. Wehing, J. Foley, R. Wessel, J. Ford. seated: J. Krauss, Fr. Putz, K. Chambers, J. Hayward, F. Feigl, R. Babcock, T. Kristopeit, B. Kiley.

Student Senate

The Student Senate, which legislates for all Student Government, set 1956-57 as its year of maturity after three years of development. The Senate regulates and initiates student functions with authority delegated from the University and represents the students to the Administration.

In the fall the Senate collected a $2 activity fee as part of a record $34,000 budget it controlled, and completed the summer storage service. In December it successfully represented student opinion in the change of pre-registration procedure. By February it had completed policies to regulate dances and student organizations and revised its constitution.

During the Christmas Season the senate installed music in the Dining Hall, completed plans for academic honor societies in 1957, and arranged special rates for students in South Bend.

The Senate is composed of representatives of all halls, classes, colleges, and other organizations such as the Military Council, Y.C.S., Blue Circle, and campus clubs.

Officers: H. Wasoff—Treasurer, P. Logan—President, J. Brady—Secretary, J. Murphy—Vice-President.

Senators: First row: J. Ryan, B. Graham, M. Kelly, J. Slade, P. Salsich. Second row: R. Pleus, J. Scriba, V. Campbell, R. Meyer, J. Livingston. Third row: B. Pellegrino, R. Schwenker, A. Mooney, V. Clesi, E. Kopp. Fourth row: J. Cusack, G. Strake, B. Babbitt, D. Huarte, P. Krapp. Fifth row: R. Kiley, D. Bergen, J. Rose, P. Kavanah, E. Keenan. Sixth row: J. Byrne, B. Cooper, T. Cahill, F. Cahill, R. Donovan.

The Senate Commissioners

Tom Hilligan, Student Organization Commissioner, confers with Bud Friedheim, Physical Facilities Commissioner.

Jim Russell, Public Relations Commissioner, and Tony Yurchak, Inter-Campus Commissioner.

Student Government has three major components here at Notre Dame: Executive, Legislative, and Judicial. The Executive arm is made up of the Student Government Officers and the Commissioners, which together are called the executive cabinet. The commissions, as implied by their being located within the executive branch, are the working arm of our government. They are directly concerned with almost all phases of student activity. At the present there are eight commissions: Academic, Inter-Campus, Judicial, Physical Facilities, Public Relations, Social, Spiritual, and Student Organizations.

The Commissions function both in the capacity of carrying out senate activities and of originating, investigating, and carrying out other activities and problems that arise within their respective fields.

The commissioners, while not being senators, do attend senate meetings in order to give reports on their respective and progress on projects they might be undertaking.

Gep Durenberger, Social Commissioner; Tom Kretopeit, Spiritual Commissioner and Jack Crutcher, Academic Commissioner.

Blue Circle

Officers: T. Shehan, Vice Chairman, G. Kopp, Chairman,
A. Johnson, Secretary and Treasurer.

For many years the Blue Circle Honor Society has served the members of the student body, the student government, and the administration of the University of Notre Dame. The Circle functions in an advisory capacity to the student government. As an organizing and administrative body, the Blue Circle has a number of traditional fields of responsibility including the handling of the Freshman Orientation Program, Pep Rallies, and Campus Elections. The Circle also serves as the official welcoming body of the University, provides a committee to promote and publicize the Concert and Lecture Series, and ushers for the University Theatre. Numerous other jobs keep the members of the Circle busy throughout the entire year.

Membership is limited to forty-five men—by keeping the number small and always seeking to select men with high qualities of leadership and initiative, the Blue Circle Honor Society has compiled an outstanding reputation for efficiency and success in all of its endeavors.

Members: First Row: N. Lamping, F. Kennedy, G. Van Kula, M. Halpin, W. Huurman, G. Gorman, B. McCullough, and J. Crutcher.

Second Row: C. Torruella, P. Underkofler, T. Schriber, H. Wasoff, J. Meyer, J. Short, W. Kilborne, and E. Joseph.

Third Row: J. Hirshfeld, V. Clesi, G. Devers, J. Reardon, J. Riley, and B. Malloy.

Fourth Row: T. Yurchak, P. Logan, J. Slater, W. Smith, D. Ferrone, and R. Bennett.

Fifth Row: G. Cooper, D. Bergen, J. Murphy, J. Moynahan, L. Wentz, P. Krapp, T. Crowley, and R. Ninneman.

Absent: J. Doyle.

Hall Presidents

Jerry Murphy—Chairman

The Hall President's Council, composed of the fifteen hall presidents and four commissioners selected from the previous year's council, is an official organ of student government at Notre Dame. The chairman of this body is the Vice-President of the Student Senate. Its purpose is twofold. In its capacity as a service organization, the council carries out projects inaugurated by the Student Senate. Some of this year's council activities included: assisting the Mardi Gras Committee with the raffle; administering the President's Cup, awarded in interhall athletics; promoting student body spirit for the very successful football rallies; and fostering the annual Lenten devotions.

Upper right: Senior Hall Presidents: J. Smith, B. Gerardo, R. DeSutter, J. Geisler, G. Hussey.

Middle right: Junior Hall Presidents: T. Maloney, D. Link, B. Pivonka, B. Hayes.

Lower right: Sophomore Hall Presidents: G. Webster, J. Just, M. Halpin, J. Harrison, D. Drennan.

Below: Freshman Hall Presidents: M. Schaefer, T. Dudley, T. Lamont, D. Shaul.

John Reardon, (Court Judge), Conrad Conway (Chief Justice), Bob Byrne (Court Judge).

Student Court

A revised constitution defining the duties of the judges and clerk, granting them additional powers, and establishing a set system of rules and procedure highlighted this year's Student Activities Court.

Basically the functions of the court are four-fold: interpret the Student Senate Constitution, its separate revisions, the constitutionality of Senate legislation, and judging all student and campus club cases.

The Court consists of a chief justice, four judges, a court clerk, and a judicial commissioner who acts as a liason between the Student Senate and the Court.

Cases coming before the Court are handled through regular court procedure using attorneys, counselors, subpoenas, summons, briefs, and written majority and minority opinions. Any student in good standing with the University may participate in the action by acting as an attorney or counsel.

Student Court: D. Summers (Court Clerk), B. Byrne (Court Judge), C. Conway (Chief Justice), R. Fransen (Judicial Commissioner), J. Reardon (Court Judge)

Senior Class Officers

The unity of this year's Senior Class was evident in their full field of activities which began with the Senior Trip to Baltimore for the Navy game last fall. Under Chairman Mark Maley, close to 300 seniors took this trip.

Washington Day Exercises was the next major activity of the class at which the Patriot Award was given to Senator John Kennedy.

The Senior Retreat was held during the last week in March and was conducted by Fr. Raphael C. McCarthy, S.J., of Denver. The Retreat Chairman was Mark Maley.

The Senior Banquet, sponsored by the Alumni Association, was held during the first week in April.

During the second and third weeks of May the Senior Ball, under Chairmen Bill Maddux and Tom O'Bryan, and the Senior Picnic, under Chairman Tom Haley, were held.

A handball tournament and a 16 team Basketball Tourney were sponsored during the year also.

The Religious Committee, headed by Chairmen Dave Valaik and Joe Sullivan took care of Spiritual Bouquets for deceased parents and continued the First Saturday Devotions.

This year's class also innovated a Movie Committee to take movies of all the major Senior Class functions. Ed Fechtol was Chairman of this committee.

Junior Class Officers

From the word "go" the men of "58" were busy with their many social, religious, and athletic programs. Perhaps the most striking innovation was the class rosary initiated at the outset of the year to ask our Blessed Mother for guidance in the forthcoming year.

An informal picnic with the "Belles" of St. Mary's opened the class social calendar. To break away from the routine Victory Dances, a Barn Dance was held. The social activities terminated with the class dancing to Jimmy Dorsey at the Junior Prom.

Highlighting the Junior activities was the Junior Parents-Son Weekend. On this occasion the Junior parents were invited to visit the university and to witness the process by which a Notre Dame man is educated.

For the class athletics a Junior Class Sports Tournament was organized consisting of handball, swimming, tennis and golf.

The year's activities were concluded with a Mother's Day Mass, thanking the Blessed Virgin Mary and their mothers for making the year a success.

Junior Class Officers: John Sullivan (Secretary), Paul Underkoffler (Vice-President), Bernie Pellegrino (President), and Jerry Burke (Treasurer).

The activities of this years Sophomore Class began during the second week of the school year with the annual Sophomore Mission under the direction of the Sophomore Religious Moderator, Fr. Wilfred Menard, C.S.C. Religious activities continued through the year with a retreat during the first week in December at the Our Lady of Fatima Retreat House, and with a continuation of the May Devotions held each year at the Grotto of Our Lady.

The Sophomore Class was active throughout the year in the sports, social, and academic veins as well. A basketball tournament was held which saw two or more teams from every hall competing, and in the early Spring a Bridge Tournament was staged which was very successful. A handball tourney was also held which drew an unexpectedly large number of entrants from among the class.

The active Councils of the various halls sponsored a number of parties and mixers during the year as well as looking after the needs of the hall members and the councils in collaboration are hoping to bring about a class party during the late Spring.

An extremely successful and very complete "Choose Your Major" program was held during March. Talks were given by several professors connected with the various departments in each college through which the Sophs were aided in their choice of majors.

Class Officers: Frank Cahill (Vice President), John Leahy (Treasurer), Pete Salsich (President), Dave Sheehan (Secretary).

Freshman Council

The Freshman Council of the class of 1960 started with a bang this year with a class that copped two of the first three places in the Homecoming decorations. After this it was a steady uphill climb to great success. The Council gave the freshmen a month of round-robin mixers which were counted among the best on campus. Then during the Mardi Gras they took the highest percentages on campus and helped push the Mardi Gras over its goal. The Freshman Frolic was a great success with one of the best participations in Freshman Class history. During Lent a religious schedule was set up in the halls which showed that the Freshman Council was not neglecting the spiritual side of Notre Dame's life. In the Spring the freshman halls had lawn parties with St. Mary's Academy. Throughout the year the Freshman Council led the class to be one of the finest in the history of Notre Dame.

The Freshman Council: standing: Mike Schaefer, Tom Lamont, Dennis Shaul, Jim Rose. Seated: Bruce Babbitt, Ted Dudley, Dave Huarte, Jim Byrne.

Student Loan Administrator—Pat Conway

Student Insurance Representation—Tom Shehan

Pat Conway, an appointee of the Student Senate, administers the John A. Morrissey Memorial Fund. This fund, made possible by a generous donation to the University, provides the student with easily accessible money for any emergency while at the same time teaching him the value of a good credit rating. Interest-free loans up to $50.00 are available upon request for a period of thirty days.

The management of the LaFortune Student Center is under the direction of Bob Dunseath and his two assistants, Bob Duffy and Dave McMahon. These men, appointed by the Student Senate, are responsible for the proper functioning of the Center throughout the day. They supervise the physical maintenance of the building, handle its activities, and most important, arrange for the use of the Center by the various campus organizations.

Tom Shehan, an appointee of the Student Senate, is in charge of the Student Insurance Program for the 1956-57 school year. As campus representative of the Continental Casualty Company, he handles the publicity and public relations, and accepts applications for policies, which give the Notre Dame student low-rate sickness and accident coverage on a purely voluntary basis.

Student Center Managers: Assistant Mgr., Bob Duffy; Manager, Bob Dunseath; Assistant Mgr., Dave McMahon.

Members: Top row: C. Johnson, T. Banchoff, J. Hirshfeld, B. Fagan, M. Phenner, E. Kearse, T. Clusserath.

Bottom row: B. Barrett, S. Kusper, J. McMahon, F. Crumley, J. Rogers, B. Nohr, J. Sullivan.

Absent: J. Brady.

Debate

From coast to coast, the Notre Dame Debate Team has argued the national topic, RESOLVED: THAT THE UNITED STATES SHOULD DISCONTINUE DIRECT ECONOMIC AID TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

In the South the team took first and second in extemporaneous speaking at New Orleans, and twice traveled to the Carolinas, winning a trophy at Wake Forest. In the East the debators placed at the University of Pittsburgh, and later debated in Washington, D. C.

Butler University and Navy Pier in Chicago added two more first place trophies. In the Midwest, Notre Dame debated at Purdue, twice in Kansas, and at the Notre Dame National Tournament held here. Also attended was the McGill University International Tournament in Montreal, Canada.

Officers: J. Martzell (Freshman Coach), Prof. L. Sommer (Debate Coach), P. Coffey (President).

T. Banchoff, D. Shaul, G. Goudreau, and B. Dempsey during a debate.

Knights of Columbus

Officers: back row: Mr. E. Sheheen (Trustee), B. McGowan (Deputy Grand Knight), R. Miller (Grand Knight), J. Armstrong (Chancellor), J. Higgins (Inside Guard). Front row: J. Tully (Outside Guard), J. Wells (Warden), B. Loeffler (Recording Secretary), T. Conway (Lecturer). Absent: J. Ulrich (Advocate).

The Notre Dame Council of the Knights of Columbus received its charter from the Supreme Council in 1910, thus becoming the first college council in the United States. Now, while there are councils on other campuses, Notre Dame Council No. 1477 remains the largest and most respected. It has been used as the model in establishing the other collegiate councils.

The officers are all students, but activities and ceremonies are identical with any other council of the K. of C. throughout the country. Many tend to view it as a strictly student organization but this is a gross misconception. Present membership numbers approximately 950 of which only about 400 are students of the University. Alumni throughout the country and Canada prefer to retain their membership here at Notre Dame.

Primarily the K. of C. is a religious organization and accordingly the activities follow. Most noteworthy of these activities is the annual Bengal Bouts for the benefit of the Holy Cross Missions in India. In no year since the K. of C. has taken over this event have they failed to pay more in taxes alone than was previously realized as net profit.

Offices, Lounge, and Council chambers are located in the basement of Walsh Hall.

Chairmen: standing: C. Grace, J. Gormaley, D. Bergen, J. Woulfe, G. Clements.

Seated: D. Stuhldreher, K. Boone, C. Edmundson, B. Porst, R. Francis.

Fred Corkhill—Station Manager

This year student radio station WSND noted its tenth anniversary of fulfilling its motto: "Serving Notre Dame." This service is provided solely for Notre Dame students and is twofold. The first aspect is providing programming to fit the specialized taste of the college student in the fields of music, drama, campus news, special events and sports. The second aspect of this service is providing an outstanding activity for student training. This training features the finest equipment and facilities available in college radio, but benefits not only those who plan careers in communications but also gives staff members experience in sales, business, administrative and technical fields. In this anniversary year WSND staffers looked back over the station's history and recalled the early days of student radio as it skipped around to various locations on campus before settling in the present spacious and modern equipment quarters in the tower of the I. A. O'Shaughnessy Building. But students on WSND realize that they are still pioneers and are constantly seeking new ideas to insure continuation of the station's twofold service.

The Third Order Secular of Saint Francis was founded by Francis at Florence or at Faenza, Italy, in 1221, for such as desired to follow him without leaving the world. The Order of Penance, as it is often called, is a true order and the members, or Tertiaries, share in all the good works performed by the members of the three orders of St. Francis.

Early Franciscan missionaries established the Third Order Secular in the United States for the white settlers, soldiers, and Indian converts. A fraternity was known to exist at Santa Fe long before 1680 and it is likely that there was one in St. Augustine, Florida, before the close of the sixteenth century.

The local fraternity has a membership of about fifty Brothers. Each Brother follows a religious rule which consists mainly of saying a daily office, wearing a scapular and cord, and attending regular cell and monthly meetings. Personal sanctification is the primary concern of the fraternity.

The Bookmen exist as a partial satisfaction of the need, in every university, for inquiry and discussion in an intellectual communion which is not available in the normal structure of classes. Such an organization is not extra-curricular but co-curricular, in that it is necessary to genuine intellectual development. The Bookmen have Literature as their general area of investigation. Each year, the President chooses for attention a significant problem within the larger context, in order to achieve a depth and clarity of study that can result in a coherent body of thought. For this past year the topic was "Freedom and Revolt in Modern Literature," chosen in an effort to understand two highly important aspects of modern creativity. In a paper presented at each meeting, one influential writer is studied in the light of the topic. The purpose of such close investigation is a greater understanding and appreciation of Literature in itself and in relation to the intellectual and spiritual values it embodies. By informal discussion, the play of minds within the subject creates an enlargement in the individual and of a common mind in formation. The final result is a growth in the spirit of the university

Founded on campus soon after the Second World War, the International Relations Club is devoted to the discussion of current events and problems of our national life and policy. The club attempts to provide a means for its members to form their thought on such topics. The club meets once a week throughout the semester, and devotes its attention to the subject presented by one of its members. To promote better discussion the club is limited to twenty-five members. Prospective members must be at least Sophomores.

Since man is not merely a rational animal, but also a social one, the club meets in dinner meetings. It also occasionally meets with its equivalent group from St. Mary's-across-the-Dixie.

The club has national affiliation with the Association of International Relations Clubs, and the Foreign Policy Association.

The Wranglers, composed of 20 undergraduate students, is the oldest continuous active organization at the University. A serious discussion group, the Wranglers is designed to provide thought-provoking topics for its members to investigate.

The members meet weekly during the school year, one of them presenting a paper each week, after which discussion of the subject is thrown open to group participation.

The Wranglers select a different general topic each year as a central theme for all of their papers, and this year's topic was "The Contemporary American Mind." Papers on such subjects as "Thomas Merton," "Walter Riesman," "Robert Hutchins," "Pluralism in America," "The Quest for Community," and "Secondary Education in America" were among the papers discussed.

Mr. Francis O'Malley is moderator of the group. Tom O'Brien is president, and Bernie Troy is secretary.

Commerce Forum

The Commerce Forum experienced one of its most active and interesting academic years in its history. Each senior presented a speech to the Forum concerned with a business, economic, or financial problem of the day. These speeches are rated by all the members, and the best speech of each semester is awarded the Edmund A. Smith plaque. Mike Keenan was awarded this plaque for the outstanding speech of the first semester.

In the social light, the Commerce Forum limits itself to a dinner at the end of each semester, and one social gathering a semester. A noted speaker talks at the dinners, and the awards for the speeches are presented, and the Commerce Forum Keys are given to the graduating seniors. One of the outstanding events of the year is the annual field trip which this year the Forum traveled to Milwaukee, Wisconsin. A visit to different industries highlighted a very interesting and enjoyable two day trip.

University of Notre Dame Press

John P. Defant, Director

Under the direction of Mr. John P. Defant, the University of Notre Dame Press, a member of the Association of American University Presses, is organized to publish the results of research and scholarship for the benefit of other scholars and also to publish authentic interpretations of such scholarship for interested laymen. In 1949 the University Press was reorganized to give the University a centralized publications office.

The policy of the Press is determined by the Board of Publications, composed of the Reverends Paul Beichner, C.S.C., Dean of the Graduate School, Chairman; Philip Moore, C.S.C., Vice-President in charge of Academic Affairs; and Jerome Wilson, C.S.C., Vice-President in charge of Business Affairs.

The Notre Dame Press has published liturgical studies, lecture and conference notes, international studies, results of scientific studies and research, many books of individual scholarly importance, and a series of religion texts now in use in more than a hundred colleges.

The Notre Dame Lawyer

Now in its thirty-second year of publication as a nationally distributed law quarterly, the NOTRE DAME LAWYER explores and analyzes contemporary problems of the law in articles by legal practitioners and professors and in comments and case write-ups by student members of the LAWYER staff. In performing this task, the LAWYER has a double function: (1) a professional role, furnishing significant assistance to the advancement of the learning of the legal profession, and (2) a pedagogical role, furnishing members of the law review staff with academic training of a rigor and quality impossible to achieve in the scope of daily classroom work.

If this first role is summed up as foreshadowing the path of the law, the second may be thought of as foreshadowing the path of the nation's best lawyers. The traditional culmination of law school years is to achieve a position on the editorial board of the law review, an honor open only to men with superior records in law school examinations.

DOME

Roger C. Bennett, Editor-in-Chief

Charles L. O'Neill, Associate Editor

A major innovation has been introduced in the format of the 1956 DOME. Replacing the usual divisions of social, sports, academic, halls, etc., this year's book is arranged, as far as possible, in a chronological order. This calendar of the school year has three main sections: Fall, Winter, and Spring. Two-page shots of the campus, taken of the same setting and from the same camera angle, introduce each of these sections. This departure from the more traditional arrangement has the added advantage of presenting a more accurate portrayal of life as it actually lived here at Notre Dame.

This year's cover features a return to the school colors of blue and gold. The entire book is appropriately dedicated to the Blessed Mother.

The introduction of the book consists of seventeen pages, eight of which are in full color. Because of the utility which such a section provides, a student index has again been included in the 1957 edition.

A staff of five seniors, ten juniors, and a number of sophomores and freshmen had the privilege this year of moving from the old office in the basement of Farley Hall to a fully equipped office in the addition of the LaFortune Student Center.

Fr. Carey, Prefect of Religion, frequently uses the Dillon Hall pamphlet rack to explain questions concerning religion.

Personal conferences with students take up much of the time of Fr. Barry, Off-Campus Chaplain.

Chaplains

There are four men on campus who devote their time each day in helping the individual student solve any problems he might have here at Notre Dame. These four men are the class chaplains. As such, their most important concern is with purely spiritual matters. They make themselves available at any time for conferences with the students, and any man with spiritual difficulties cannot help but profit from a consultation with them. Six mornings a week they hear Confessions and distribute Communion in their individual halls, and they hear Confessions again each week-day night. The pamphlet racks, containing concise and informative literature on a variety of spiritual subjects, are also maintained by the class chaplains. Although these men are primarily concerned with things of a spiritual nature, any student knows that this fact does not prevent him from consulting them on many other matters. If the student has no problems, but is just looking for someone to talk to, a friend, he need go no farther than his own class chaplain.

Giving out daily Communion is one of the duties of Fr. Menard, Sophomore Chaplain.

Fr. O'Neil, Freshman Chaplain, stops for a minute to answer a student's query.

F r e s h m e n

When a Freshman arrives at Notre Dame, he has many hopes, many ambitions. He soon realizes that there is but one way to fulfill these dreams. That is by study, constant study . . . giving up hours nearly every night, hours in which he could be going on dates, seeing movies, or just plain loafing.

Breen-Phillips

Forming the southeast corner of the freshman quadrangle is Breen-Phillips, the smallest of the "Big Four." Among its many distinctions, B-P is the hall possessing the tiniest triples on campus . . . why so many freshman hate the human race; closest to the TV studio . . . convenient for guest appearances; next door to the field house . . . short hop for all sport fans; second farthest from the dining hall . . . Farley takes first place by 127 steps. Besides its 285 occupants Breen-Phillips also houses the athletic department and the coaches' offices.

Cavanaugh

The fourth corner of the freshman quadrangle is filled by Cavanaugh Hall, home of some 300 members of the class of '60. Cavanaugh, like the other three freshman halls, is quite distant from the dining hall, but, unlike the others, compensates for this by being but a few steps from the new Huddle. This location is convenient for the late breakfast or the quick lunch, that is, as long as the bankroll lasts. There is also a rumor around campus that the residents of Cavanaugh have been the main contributors to the new recreation room of the LaFortune Student Center. Who knows, at the end of four years Notre Dame may produce its own pool and billiard champion. Another convenience enjoyed by the "Cav-Men" is the fact that their class chaplain's office is located in their building. Further, they can take advantage of the late Mass and Communion facilities in their own chapel.

Located in the northeast corner of the campus, Farley Hall is the home of 318 partially homesick and totally love-starved young men of the Class of '60. It holds the dubious honor of being the farthest building from the dining hall, and this is evidenced by the fact that Farley men are definitely the thinnest on campus. Survival kits are necessary equipment on those long treks across the frozen wasteland to "X" line. The recreational diversions of the men of Farley are chiefly two: playing table tennis in their spacious basement, or leaning out the windows on the east side of the building to watch the St. Mary's busses arrive and depart to and from the various social functions on campus. Farley also houses the University Press and the offices of the DOME, SCHOLASTIC and JUGGLER.

"N.B.," reads the official bulletin, "The following students are ipso facto . . ." and anguished faces crane to see who have become the latest victims. A familiar scene is taking place on the first floor of Zahm Hall. Other more regular occurrences of daily life are also remembered by the Zahmites, such as the anxious suspense while the morning mail is being sorted; the impatient lines waiting to use the phone at night; the songfests in the shower; the search for that guy down the hall who has a long distance call, and the mornings you had to get up at 5:00 a.m. to study for that all important exam. These everyday happenings make life in Zahm sound fairly normal, but the Zahmburgers go at it with a special zeal possessed only by freshman.

D. Telenko notices how many trump cards B. De Baerner has while De Baerner is talking to L. Becker.

In the northeast section of the campus, situated under the shadow of the Dome, there is a very old structure held together by the ivy on its walls, and bearing a cornerstone marked 1882. Its 140 inhabitants live in constant danger of waking up after a windy night with their hall transferred to the middle of downtown South Bend. However, the residents of this hall probably have the largest rooms on campus, if height is considered, and they enjoy its convenient location for class buildings and recreation spots. Besides, what other hall offers the fun and excitement of so many cockroach hunts during the year? Its name—a most important part of the tradition at Notre Dame, St. Edward's Hall.

Having reached the lordly position of second year men, the sophomores learn to take life at a more leisurely pace than during their frantic freshman days. The sophs break up their study routine with bull sessions on any and all topics from the football team to metaphysics to international affairs. These sessions may not settle any of the world's problems, but they give the sophomores welcome relief from their studies.

Badin

J. Kenney pauses in his writing to dream of Christmas vacation.

Badin Hall is not only the building where the Barber Shop and the N.D. Cleaners are located. It is also the home of 156 specimens of the Notre Dame student, the majority of whom are sophomores. It might be the smallest hall on campus but Badin residents also think it is the most exclusive. They take further pride in its central location and the easy access it affords to three buildings most essential to any Notre Dame man, the bookstore, the dining hall and the post office. It is named after the first priest ordained in the United States, Father Badin, and some derisively claim it was he who laid its cornerstone. One thing is certain, that Badin is a hall with a glorious past and not too long a future.

Howard

Howard Hall, in the southwest quadrant of the campus, could be described simply as four stories of sandy colored brick, built around a passage-way known as the arch. But then there are those strange noises from the spaces between the ceilings and floors. One hundred eighty-four residents know these noises well, and one old sage, a sophomore for several years, claims to have communicated with these "gnomes." He states that they are quite intelligent and well versed in the sophomore curriculum of the University. They have found the shortest routes to all of the campus necessities, such as, the library, laundry, bookstore and dining hall. For the Johnny Weismullers in the hall, St. Mary's College lies only ten minutes away, across the lake, of course. This year's hall politicians have promoted Howard's own newspaper, "The Arch," and have continued the generations-old fight of Howard men—to gain permission to levy a toll tax for the use of their arch.

Lyons

Certainly the most picturesque and probably the most desirable of the sophomore residences is Lyons Hall. In spite of the presence across the quadrangle of Pangborn and Fisher, Lyons still maintains the position of the country club among the second year halls. This is due to the fact that its famed arch, which affords an impressive view of St. Mary's lake, and its unique basement chapel give it the required touch of distinction. Lyons is also located in a strategic position for two necessary extra-curricula activities. It lies in close proximity to the house of muscle building, otherwise known as the "Rock." And for the less athletically minded, who prefer a daily constitutional, Lyons is only a few steps from the path across the Dixie, and a few thousand steps from the nearest class building.

Morrissey

Overshadowing the sophomore quadrangle in the northwest corner of the campus stands Morrissey Hall. Its lopsided tower, oak-panelled lobby and fireless fireplace impress many visitors. Its unique five stories also agonize many residents. Still the Morrissey men who grope through the yellow lit corridors like to think they have passed the first year obstacle and are well on the way to becoming legitimate sons of Notre Dame. This is not to say that all is serious in the life of its 380 residents, for an occasional attack of "freshmanitis" has been known to break out in the form of a pillow or water fight, and since studying has now been developed into a science, sophomore sack-time is the favorite year-round sport.

J u n i o r s

By his Junior year the student thinks that he has gained much intellectually, and has matured considerably. But regardless of what he thinks, he is still bound by the many rules and regulations of the university. Paramount among these is the rule requiring those coming in after lights-out to sign in with the night watchman.

J. Indiveri and F. Murphy prepare for a long night of study.

As you walk across campus en route to the dining hall, you see a great stone mass, sprawling alongside it, similar in size to the Pentagon and containing nearly as many corridors. This monstrosity is known as Dillon Hall, the largest residence on campus, and for that matter, on any Catholic college campus. Because of its location, one would think its inhabitants have few worries about walking to meals. However, this is not the case. Like the legendary labyrinth of King Minos, its corridors are so confusing that it takes the average Dillonite half an hour to find an exit. Added to this confusion, there are times when some brave but reckless senior from Alumni takes a short cut through Dillon, and gets lost in its maze of hallways. Usually the adventurer is rescued, but unfortunately, three of this year's seniors have never been heard from again. Despite these many hazards, the men of Dillon possess a true Notre Dame spirit, as was exemplified by their winning the interhall football championship for the second straight year.

Pangborn Hall, the home of 220 men of the junior class, is the newest of the University's 15 residence halls. The men of Pangborn claim it is the best that Notre Dame has to offer in the way of living quarters, and a brief description of their hall certainly proves that they possess something more concrete than tradition. Pangborn's rooms are, for the most part, doubles. Behind each of the blue, steel doors the following items are to be found: twin beds whose mattresses are almost as comfortable as those at home; two desks with an unusually large working space, built-in desk lamps, and book cases; two very large closets with a dresser between them; spacious windows with drapes whose modernistic design blends smoothly with the interiors of the rooms. Add to these items a beautifully furnished lounge, a T.V. room, a large, modern chapel, and one is convinced that within a short time Pangborn will build a tradition of its own.

Sorin

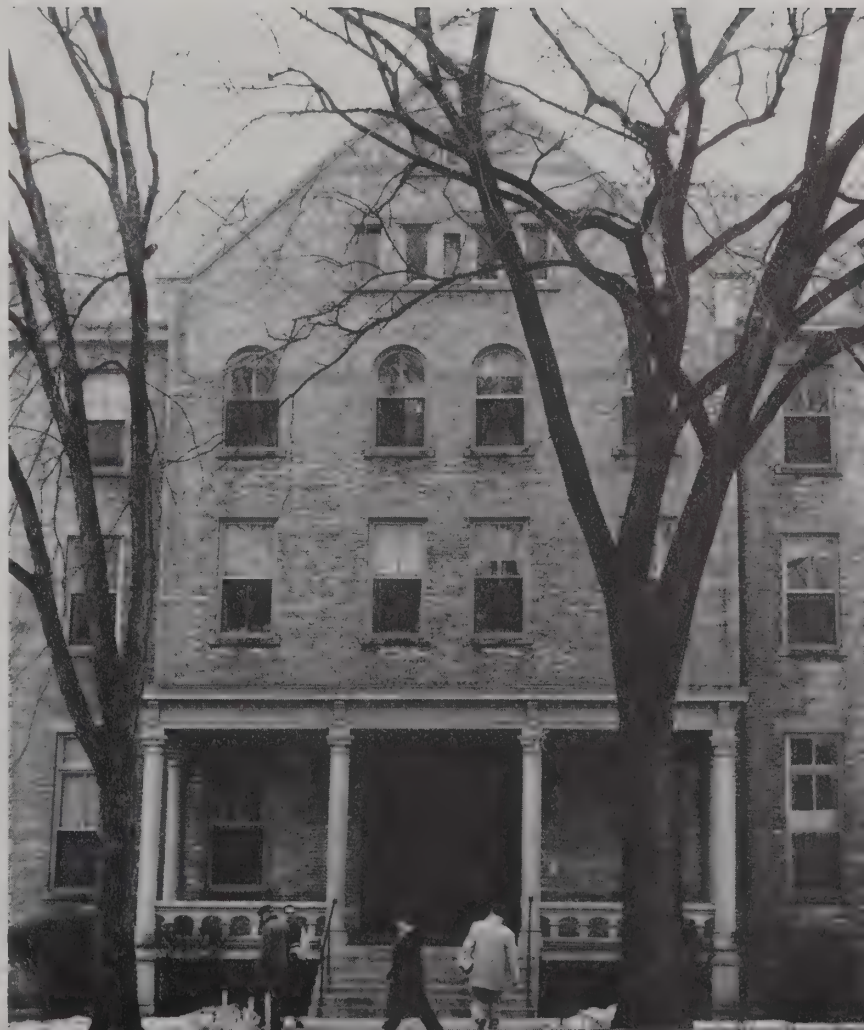

T. Edwards, D. Adams, and W. Hohmann exhibit Sorin's answer to the Dining Hall food problem.

Located on the tradition filled walks of the "Old Quad," stands perhaps the oldest, still functioning residence in the state of Indiana, Sorin Hall. Of a strange, medieval French architecture, Sorin is bound on four sides by silo-like towers and possesses a unique front porch, upon which many of the great men of Notre Dame once leisured. Sub-Sorin, one of the most popular boiler rooms of this great land, may not have all the luxuries of wall to wall carpeting, but its residents keep their spirits high watching over the "Gipper's Chair." Yes, Sorin has always been synonymous with spirit here at Notre Dame, and this year's Juniors have been no exception. Their front porch entertainment, before each of the home football games this fall, made it the most popular spot for campus visitors, and incidentally, brought increased profits to the Sorin sandwich bar.

S e n i o r s

Notre Dame prepares its students for life in a variety of ways. But, after three years at the University, a senior comes to realize that the most significant thing he receives at Notre Dame is a deep awareness of his religion. The years of morning Mass and Communion, trips to the Grotto, and nightly Rosaries give seniors a firm foundation in their faith.

Like a medieval fortress of dark, weathered brick, Alumni Hall stands guard over the main entrance to the campus. This strategic position is regarded by its 320 seniors as Alumni's main advantage over all the other halls on campus. It not only makes an excellent reviewing stand for the weekend date parade, but the fact that the downtown bus stops only a few steps from the door also makes it ideal for those who prefer the liquid nourishment in South Bend to the more substantial kind in the dining hall. Ruled for the past several years by the "Colonel" and housing the campus Dominicans, Alumni further boasts that it alone possesses more vending machines than students.

Fisher

Two floors of law students and architects, and a floor of undergraduate seniors comprise the roster of Fisher Hall. Along with Pangborn, Fisher, completed in 1952, forms the most beautiful corner of the campus just west of the Rockne Memorial. Fisher always has an air of quiet, scholarly, luxurious contentment, and its 187 residents enjoy the country club atmosphere of the golf course situated directly behind the hall. Like its sister hall, Pangborn, Fisher also has a first floor lounge, in which hang the portraits of its donors; a T.V. room, by far the most popular spot in the hall; a chapel which cannot be rivalled for the austere beauty of its modernistic lines. So that no one will think these two halls are identical, it must be noted that Fisher has single rooms almost exclusively. The greatest distinction between Fisher and any other hall on campus is the fact that its second and third floor rooms have all-night lights. This is a privilege reserved for the graduate students, and one universally envied by the less fortunate masses at Notre Dame.

Walsh

J. Zeller and J. Roach take five minutes out for ping-pong.

In the center of the campus reside the 201 men of "Walsh House." The oldest of the three senior halls, Walsh has a tradition dating back to 1909 when its now weathered yellow-brick walls were the pride of Notre Dame. The residents of the former "Gold Coast" enjoy many luxuries not found in any other hall on campus, such as closets of a size that many students think of them as an extra room; somewhat antiquated, though still very usable, bathtubs; and what are said to be the biggest sinks east of the Mississippi. The athletically-minded enjoy the ping-pong tables of the recreation room, as well as the new basketball courts at the rear of the building, and rumor has it that a few of the more scholarly men take advantage of the hall's close proximity to the University Library.

Old College

One hundred and fifteen years ago, the Old College was the center of activity at Notre Dame. From the weather-worn building, now a land mark on our campus, priests were sent forth to schools and parishes in the United States, and to the Bengal Missions in the Far East. At the present time, Moreau Seminary, across St. Mary's lake, trains young men for the priesthood in the Congregation of the Holy Cross. The Old College aids in this undertaking by helping a small group of students review their classical studies before entering the novitiate. In addition to their scholastic pursuits, these men also subject themselves to the discipline of early morning rising, periods of silence, and group spiritual exercises in the Log Chapel nextdoor. The life of the Old College men is planned and orientated with only one goal in mind, to prepare them for the rigors that lie ahead on the long road to the priesthood.

J. Hiebert keeps his mouth shut while B. Carbaho asks for the beer.

From scattered homes around the South Bend area, the off-campus tribe converges on the Golden Dome each morning. There is little doubt that the off-campus student is a special breed of Notre Dame man. His life includes both the benefits of a Notre Dame education and opportunities to seek and know intimately the many facets of cultural and social life in South Bend. On campus, the basement of the LaFortune Student Center is his headquarters. Here he is furnished with lockers and rooms for studying or relaxing. The urban side of the off-campus man's existence sets him apart from his on-campus brother. On the positive side of the ledger, he does not have to worry about lights out, bells ringing, morning checks, and dining hall food. On the negative side, he does have to face the frequent struggle of paying his rent, staying on good terms with his landlady, and getting to school on those cold winter mornings. All things considered, maybe there is something to this off-campus life after all.

VILLAGERS

There is a relatively small number of Notre Dame students unable to use that oft-quoted phrase, "my home away from home," because they are actually residents of South Bend. These men possess the unique privilege of being able to enjoy both the pleasures of life at home, and the advantages of a University education. Having a long acquaintance with South Bend, they never feel the difficulties of adjustment which every bewildered freshman must experience, nor do they feel the concern about that girl back home which every upperclassman must experience. The Villagers elect their own council, which supervises their student activities, represents them in the Student Senate, and sponsors their social functions. Summing up—a very enviable position indeed!

Vetville

Just across the road from the freshman quadrangle lies a small village, as much a part of Notre Dame, and as much a credit to it, as the many impressive structures which adorn the campus. This settlement is known as Vetville, and provides much needed housing for the married students and their families. Besides the burden of classroom work and studies, the Vetville student has the added responsibility of a wife and family. However, life in Vetville is by no means all work and no play. Its residents elect their own mayor and town council, which takes care of the administrative details of the community. This body also sponsors weekly card parties, an occasional "pot-luck" supper, and a few dances. On mom and dad's night out, they never have to worry about junior, because just across the way there is an ample supply of babysitters in the four freshman halls.

While the average student thinks that he hears an innumerable amount of distraction—radios, phonographs, and card games and many more—there is at least one type of distraction that he does not have. This type of distraction, namely children, and its effect on study, is illustrated by vet. Jim Wilson and his family.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME

The Dome

Yearbook

Notre Dame, Indiana

From the desk of the Editor:

We have tried throughout the past year to keep in mind the objective of the yearbook. That objective is to produce an annual with the student uppermost in our minds. The entire staff joins me in saying that we have done our best to give the most accurate and complete coverage to all of the students, and events that they have participated in during the year. We sincerely hope that in future years you will look back upon this year through the media of this annual with pride.

I am glad that I have this opportunity to publicly thank the entire staff for their unselfish and untiring efforts in completing this publication. I would especially like to thank my associate editor Chuck O'Neill for without his imagination and creative ability the book would not have reached the excellence that it has.

Finally, I'd like to thank Mr. John Defant, Director of Publications, whose experience and clear thinking carried us over the rough spots. Bob Lehman of Indiana Engraving for the photo-engraving, and timely service. Delma Studios of New York for the senior portraits. The Haywood Publishing Company of Lafayette, Indiana, for the printing. The S. K. Smith Company of Chicago for the cover. The W. B. Conkey Division of Rand-McNally for the binding.

I cannot overlook the fine staff of the Publications Office. My thanks to Don Doland, Mrs. Burke, Mrs. Cunningham, and Mrs. Mechling.
